P R E F A C E

While engaged in writing a history of dharma-śāstra, it occurred to me several years ago that it would be a very useful and interesting thing if I culled together from the several nibandhas the quotations from the dharmasūtra of Śāṅkha-likhita, that of Hārīta and the smṛti of Kātyāyana (on vyavahāra) and reconstructed these works. The former I published in the Annals of the Bhandarkar Oriental Institute at Poona (vide volumes VII-VIII) and the latter is now offered here. Kātyāyana represents the high watermark of smṛti literature on judicial procedure and the substantive law of inheritance, contracts &c. In the following pages about one thousand verses of Kātyāyana on vyavahāra will be found collected from about a score of Sanskrit commentaries and digests and presented under appropriate topics. It is further proposed to translate these verses into English, to add explanatory and illustrative notes, to point out the provisions of the modern Indian Statute Law wherever the parallelisms are striking and to indicate the important cases wherein the texts of Kātyāyana have been relied on. Dr. Jolly intended to publish a similar restoration of Kātyāyana, but did not carry out his intentions. Mr. Narayan Chandra Bandopadhyaya published about 800 verses of Kātyāyana at Calcutta in 1927. But he left the work incomplete in several respects. He collected passages from five works only, viz. the Dāya-bhāga, the Vivādaratnākara, the Smṛticandrikā, the Parāśara-Mādhaviya and the Viramitrodaya. He did not cast his net over a wide area and so his restoration is not as thorough as could be wished. Besides he did not publish a translation nor did he append explanatory notes. It is my intention to add also an introduction on the age of Kātyāyana and his importance in the ancient Hindu Law. In my history of Dharmasāstra, which will be published in a few weeks, these topics have been dealt with (at pp. 213-221), but I propose to enter into greater details in the introduction to this work. References have been given as to each verse and important readings have been pointed out. I hope that this work on which I have spent much of my time will be found useful and suggestive to all those who are interested in the development of Hindu Law and in the study of comparative jurisprudence.

The system of transliteration adopted here is that of the Bhandarkar Oriental Institute. The works consulted, the editions used and the abbreviations employed in the notes to the text are noted below.

INTRODUCTION.

Kātyāyana occupies a very prominent place among smṛti writers on law and procedure. Next to Nārada and Bṛhaspati he is cited on vyavahāra more frequently than any other smṛtikāra in such commentaries and digests as the Mitākṣarā, the Smṛticandrikā, the Viramitrodaya and the Vyavahāra-mayūkha. Kātyāyana's work on law and procedure must have been of considerable extent. In the present work, over nine hundred quotations from Kātyāyana have been collected. The smṛti of Nārada as printed by Dr. Jolly contains 1028 verses while the quotations from Bṛhaspati collected and translated by the same learned scholar in the Sacred Books of the East series (vol. 33) number 697 verses. Therefore even on a very modest computation the smṛti of Kātyāyana on law and procedure must have contained about fifteen hundred verses, if not more. This conclusion is further strengthened by a comparison of the number of quotations from Kātyāyana on certain selected topics of law and procedure with the number of verses devoted to the same topics in the works of Yājñavalkya and Nārada and in the quotations from Bṛhaspati. The above table will be very instructive from this point of view.

A few observations about the text presented would be quite appropriate here. Owing to oversight a few verses have been repeated (viz., 253 and 267, 477-78 587-88, 471 and 641, 566 and 654, 486 and 957). In a few cases the text of Kātyāyana is presented in two versions (viz. 61-62, 174-175, 537-538, 899-900) by the authorities consulted in reconstructing the text. About a dozen verses are somewhat obscure or difficult of explanation, as we are ignorant of their proper setting or context (e. g., vv. 17, 160, 256, 309-10, 491, 541, 700, 851, 932, 971). A few of the verses here presented as Kātyāyana's are ascribed by some authorities to other smṛti-kāras. The following tables will illustrate this :

Besides these, verses 908-909 and 916 are ascribed to Devala by the Vyavahāramayūkha, verses 425-426 are ascribed to Pitāmaha by the Viramitrodaya and verses 485-86 to the same author by the Parās'aramādhaviya, verses 402-403 are ascribed to Prajāpati by the Parās'aramādhaviya, verses 394-5 are ascribed to Vasiṣṭha by the Smṛticandrikā and several other digests and verse 404 to the same author by the Smṛticandrikā, verses 418-419 are ascribed to Vṛddha-Manu by the Sarasvatīvilāsa, verse 659 to the same by the Viramitrodaya and verses 818-19 to the same the by Vivādaratnākara.

Several verses quoted as Kātyāyana's in the digests occur in the printed Nārada. The following are such verses: 73,⁴ 82⁵, 91⁶, 129, 169, 249, 289, 305, 321, 345, 356-357, 400-401, 437, 451, 455, 493-494, 553, 569-70, 625, 693-94, 696, 698-99, 714, 730-31, 765-66, 769, 893, 939. The corresponding verses of 1 Verses 159 and 820 are ascribed to both Nārada and Kāt. by some writers.

2 Verse 605 is ascribed to both Kāt. and Manu and is not found in Manu.

3 Verse 597 is ascribed to both Vyāsa and Kāt. by Vir.

4 This is also found in Manu.

5 82 is ascribed to both Manu and Kāt. by the Vy. Māt.

6 91, 356-57 are ascribed to both Nar. and Kat. by the Māt. and 129 to both of them by the Todarānanda.

Nārada are indicated in the notes to the translation. A dozen verses attributed to Kātyāyana are found in Manu¹. Besides verses 83 and 884A occur in the Kauṭīliya Arthśāstra, and verses 326 and 327 are the same as Viṣṇu V. 186-187 and verses 463 and 716 (first-half) are the same as Yājñavalkya II. 113 and 183 (latter half).

It is impossible to hold that verses of other authors were in all such cases ascribed to Kātyāyana owing to lapses of memory on the part of the authors of digests or to the careless copying of manuscripts. The fact that such early writers as Viśvarūpa and Jimūtavāhana ascribe several verses to two authors should rather induce us to hold that some verses were borrowed by Kātyāyana, Bṛhaspati and others from still earlier works which are now lost or that Kātyāyana bodily took some verses from his predecessors and incorporated them in his work.

The predecessors of Kātyāyana.

The authors and schools expressly named by Kātyāyana are : Bhṛgu, Bṛhaspati, Gārgīyas (v. 649), Gautamas² (v. 823), Kauśika (v. 825) Likhita (v. 910), Mānavas (vv. 649, 823), Manu (vv. 432, 573, 792). It is to be noted that in v. 519 Kātyāyana himself is mentioned. It is possible that instead of saying ' this is my view ', he uses the less emphatic and more modest method of giving his own views. One remarkable fact is that the views ascribed to Manu and the Mānavas are not found in the extant Manusmṛti. On the contrary the view of the extant Manu is opposed to that of the Mānavas indicated in v. 823. It is possible that the reading ' pravāsanam ' (in v. 823) is wrong and we have to read in its place ' pramāpaṇam '. In that case only that verse referring to the views of the Mānavas will agree with Manu 9-270. The view ascribed to the Gārgīyas and Mānavas

1 342-243=M. 8. 79-80, 344=M. 8-87, 351=M. 8-68, 393=M. 8-78, 535=M. 8-158, 655=M. 8-165 722=M. 8-413, 782=M. 8. 286, 793=M. 8. 285, 894=M. 9-194.

2 The Gautama-dharmasūtra contains no such rule. The subject of theft is treated of in Gautama XII. 14.

about taking bribes (v. 649) is not the same as that contained in Manu 9. 231. Brhaspati is expressly mentioned in the following verses, viz., 152, 170,¹ 346, 474, 537, 664, 682, 718, 871, 874, 884. As the smṛti of Brhaspati has not yet been recovered and as we have only the quotations from Brhaspati contained in the Digests it is not possible to say whether all the views attributed to Brhaspati were really held by him. Verse 152 is attributed to Brhaspati by the Par. M. and to both Brhaspati and Kātyāyana by the Viramitrodaya. We find that the views attributed to Brhaspati in v. 884 were held by him as is clear from the six verses quoted by Aparārka (p. 726) from Brhaspati on Yaj. II. 119.

That Kātyāyana looked upon Brhaspati as a model and as an author whose dicta were entitled to respect follows from several verses of Kātyāyana. Verses 29 and 30 show that Kātyāyana had before him the division of the 18 titles of law into 'dhanamūla' (civil) and 'himsā-mūla' (criminal) made by Brhaspati. Similarly the discussion about decision by dharma, vyavahāra, caritra and rājasāsana (in verses 35-51) is an elaboration of Brhaspati's teaching on this subject. Verses 284 (about three kinds of documents), 477-78 (about the modes of recovering a debt), 470 (which employs the very word nirastārtha used by Brhaspati), 497-500 (about several kinds of interest), 564-565 (about the duty of the son as regards the liability of the father incurred through lust or wrath), 644-645 (about the kinds of valid gifts) presuppose a knowledge of Brhaspati's text.

The references to Bhṛgu's views are many and create some difficult problems. It is generally held that references to Bhṛgu in the smṛtis and digests are intended for the extant Manu-smṛti (which is Bhṛgu's version thereof.) Even so early a writer as Brhaspati says² ' Bhṛgu spoke of sale without ownership after deposit ; listen to it attentively ; I shall speak of it in greater detail'. This clearly refers to Manu 8.4 where sale by one not the owner' immediately follows 'deposit'. Brhaspati elsewhere refers to the extant Manusmṛti not as Bhṛgu's work but as Manu's,¹ e. g. 'Manu has spoken of quantities (units of weight etc.) beginning from the mote in the sun-beam to the Kāśāpaṇa' (this is an obvious reference to Manu 8. 132-136) and 'Manu forbade gambling as it destroys truth, purity and wealth' (this refers to Manu 9. 221, 224.). Kātyāyana therefore must be regarded as referring to the work of Manu whenever he speaks of Bhṛgu. But verses 231, 395, 413, 478, 555, 715, 781, 842² wherein the views of Bhṛgu are referred to have nothing corresponding to them in the extant Manusmṛti, while the views of Bhṛgu in verses 482, 545, 672, 801, 872, 884A, 886, 900 correspond more or less with the views of the Manusmṛti. Kullūka on Manu VIII. 350 quotes Kātyāyana's verse (801) and expressly says 'from the mention of the word Bhṛgu in this verse it is clear that Kātyāyana explains the verse declared by Manu'. Therefore the explanation of the fact that some views ascribed to Bhṛgu are not, found in the extant Manusmṛti lies in this that either Kātyāyana had a text of Manu largely differing from our extant Manu or that he had another smṛti of Bhṛgu before him which has not come down to us or that instead of 'Bhṛgu' in those verses we have to read 'Guruḥ' (i. e. Brhaspati).

1 This verse is variously read, Vir reading it as ' Bhṛgur—abraid ' and Tadarānanda as ' Manur abraid ' instead of ' Gurur-abraid. '

2 निक्षेपानन्तरं प्रोक्तो भृगुणास्वामिचक्रयः । श्रूयतां तं प्रयत्नेन सविशेषं ब्रवी- म्यहम् ॥ from the विवादरत्नाकर p. 100.

That Kātyāyana nowhere expressly mentions Nārada or Kauṭilya is a matter for great surprise, specially when he mentions Bhṛgu and Brhaspati a dozen times or more. No reason can be assigned for this omission. But from several circumstances it is clear that he knew the smṛti of Nārada, and used it and elaborated it. To take only a few examples. Nārada (p. 7 vv. 10-11) states that dharma, vyavahāra, caritra and royal edict are the four feet (pādas) of vyavahāra and briefly describes in what their essence consists, while Kātyāyana in verses 35-51 elaborately defines these four and dwells at length

1 संख्या रश्मिरजासूले मनुना समुदाहृता । कार्पाषणान्ता सा दिव्ये नियोज्या' विनये तथा ॥ quoted by अपरार्क on याज्ञ. II. 99.

2 In v. 842 it is probable that the proper reading is गृहेऽब्रवीद्गुरुः and not-द्भृगुः, since as pointed out in the notes to the translation, Brhaspati has a verse which is almost the same as this.

upon their conflicts and interactions. In verse 202 Kātyāyana prescribes the fines for five kinds of hīnavādīs, which are enumerated by him in the same order in which they occur in Nārada (S. B. E. vol. 33 p. 31 v. 33). In a very long list about persons incompetent to be witnesses Nārada (pp. 86-89 vv. 177-187) mentions 'sanābhi' (180) and 'rājapuruṣa' (v. 185). These two are defined by Kātyāyana in vv. 362 and 364 respectively. Nārada (p. 24 v. 1) says that a plaintiff comes to court after considering the strength of his own case and after resolving to prosecute his cause and so should write down the plaint at once. Kātyāyana, according to the Vyavahāra-mātrikā, explains in verse 134 the force of two adjectives in that verse of Nārada. Nārada (p. 129 v. 8) enumerates seven kinds of gifts, two of which are 'bhṛtiḥ' and 'pratyupakārataḥ'. In vv. 644-645 Kātyāyana explains at length what is meant by these two terms. Bṛhaspati also mentions the seven kinds of gifts of which bhṛti¹ is one. But Kātyāyana uses the very word 'pratyupakārataḥ' that occurs in Nārada while the corresponding word in Bṛhaspati is 'upakāriṇe'. Nārada enumerates (pp. 135-136 vv. 26-28) fifteen kinds of slaves, two of which are 'pravrajyāvasita' and 'anākāla-bhṛta'. Both of these are mentioned in the same words by Kātyāyana in verse 731 the latter half of which is the same as Nārada (p. 136 v. 31 first half). These examples leave no room for doubt that Kātyāyana had before him the work of Nārada and tried to elucidate and elaborate the laconic treatment of law in it.

Another important problem is to consider the relation of Kautīlya and Kātyāyana. In the notes to the translation of the verses 466, 620, 755, 843-845, 857, 861, 902, 921 it has been shown how closely Kātyāyana agrees with Kautīlya, in some cases the very words of Kautīlya in prose occurring in the garb of verse in Kātyāyana. Two verses, as shown above, are common to both. Considering how advanced general jurisprudence, rules of procedure and substantive law are in Kātyāyana there can be no doubt that Kātyāyana is later by several centuries than Kauṭilya. Therefore if there is a borrowing it must be Kātyāyana who borrows. It is not unlikely that both may have borrowed, particularly the two verses that are common to both, from still earlier sources.

Characteristics and special doctrines of Kātyāyana.

(1) Kātyāyana represents the high watermark of smṛti rules about procedure. In some respects he goes even beyond Nārada and Brhaspati and is more stringent and elaborate than those two writers. For example, in verse 221 he propounds a rule similar to the rule of constructive res judicata.

(2) He has a great penchant for distinctions and gives numerous definitions, such as those of vyavahāra, prādvivāka, stobhaka, tīrita, anaśiṣṭa, sāmanta, maula, vṛddha &c.

(3) He coins several new terms. He makes a distinction between jayapatra and pas'cātkāra (vv. 259-265) while all other writers employ the word jayapatra for all judgments (whether delivered after a contest or ex parte). Kauṭilya no doubt uses the word 'pas'cātkāra' but it is used in a different sense.¹ He separately defines (vv. 876, 878) wealth obtained by 'śaurya' and 'dhvajāhṛta', while Nārada and Brhaspati includes both under 'śauryadhana'. Similarly he makes a distinction between 'kanyāgata' and 'vaivāhika' (vv. 879--880), while Nārada (p. 190 v. 6) and Brhaspati (p. 381 v. 78) include both under 'bhāryādhana'.

(4) He gives a more elaborate treatment of 'vidyādhana' (vv. 867-873) than is contained in any other smṛtikāra.

(5) He devotes at least 27 verses to Stridhana and his treatment of that topic has attained classical rank. Nārada devotes only two verses (dāyabhāga verses 8-9) to that topic, Yājñavalkya only six and the quotations from Brhaspati on this topic are not many.

1 वाताभियोगमप्रतिब्रुवतस्तदहरेव पश्चात्कारः । If a man (defendant or accused) does not reply to a charge of injury (or assault) then he is defeated (or punished) that very day.

(6) Kātyāyana (v. 530) speaks of five kinds of sureties, while Nārada knows only three and Yājñavalkya and Bṛhaspati only four.

(7) In verses 16-17 he allows only a limited (and not absolute) ownership to the king over all land.

(8) The court consisted of the judge, the sabhyas, brāhmaṇas, merchants. (vv. 57-59).

(9) Champerty and maintenance were not countenanced (vv. 89-90).

(10) The employment of recognised agents and pleaders was permitted (vv. 91-92). Nārada (p. 29 vv. 22-23) has similar provisions.

(11) Kātyāyana holds, differing from Vasīṣṭha, Yājñavalkya and other sages, that a man has no ownership over his wife or son and cannot sell his son (v. 471).

(12) Kātyāyana allowed the pledge of an article without possession (vv. 517-518).

(13) Kātyāyana (v. 857) allows one-fourth to a son who is not aśvina, when an aśvina son is born to the father, provided the former is of the same caste. In Manu and Yājñavalkya no such proviso is added.

(14) Kātyāyana permits the practice of niyoga following ancient writers like Gautama, Vasīṣṭha, Yāj. and Nārada, though it was condemned by Manu (9. 64-66) and Bṛhaspati (p. 369 vv. 12-13).

The date of Kātyāyana

The foregoing discussion has established that Kātyāyana is later than Kauṭilya, Yājñavalkya, Nārada and Bṛhaspati. In his treatment of ordeals he is less elaborate than Pitāmaha. Pitāmaha quotes Bṛhaspati.¹ So Kātyāyana is later than Bṛhaspati and earlier than Pitāmaha. The external evidence will enable us to arrive at a more precise date. Kātyāyana is profusely quoted by the Mitāksarā, Aparārka and other writers of the 11th and 12th centuries as a smṛtikāra of equal authority with Yājñavalkya, Nārada and Bṛhaspati. In their opinion therefore he was an ancient author. In the Valipat-tana plate of the S'īlāhāra king Raṭṭarāja dated śake 932 (1010-11 A. D.) one verse of Kātyāyana (296) about the requisites of a valid royal edict is quoted as a smṛti.¹ Medhātithi on Manu (VII. 1.) ascribes to Kātyāyana the rule that in case of conflict between the dictates of dharmaśāstra and of arthaśāstra, the king should prefer the former (v. 20). Medhātithi on Manu VIII. 216 speaks of a Kātyāyanasūtra.² Whether he refers to another work of Kātyāyana in prose or whether Kātyāyana's smṛti on vyavahāra included prose passages also, or whether Medhātithi only gives in prose the purport of a verse of Kātyāyana similar in principle to v. 657 it is difficult to say. The second alternative is almost improbable, as no other commentator or digest has quoted a single prose passage on vyavahāra from Kātyāyana. In favour of the first alternative, it may be urged that Kātyāyana is enumerated as one of the exponents of Dharma in S'āṅkha-Likhita, Yājñavalkya (I. 4-5) and Parāśara. As the quotations from Kātyāyana represent a stage of jurisprudence later than the extant Yājñavalkya, the reference to Kātyāyana in Yājñavalkya must be to some earlier work of another Kātyāyana or the verses about the exponents of dharma in Yājñavalkya must be a later addition. As Medhātithi knew a verse of Kātyāyana which is quoted by the Mit. and other digesta there can be little doubt that Medhātithi at least knew a work in verse of Kātyāyana. Therefore it appears that the third alternative referred to above is more probable than the other two. Medhātithi flourished between 825-800 A. D. (vide my 'History of dharmaśāstra' Vol. I. p. 275). Viśvarūpa (on Yaj.) quotes eleven verses of Kātyāyana (124, 125, 126, 130, 136, 139, 140, 141, 541, 806, 828). Viśvarūpa flourished in the first half of the 9th century (vide History of dharmaśāstra p. 263). Viśvarūpa looked upon Kātyāyana as a great smṛti writer like Yaj.,

2 'यो बान्यः कस्यचित्कर्मणि धनमावध्य अर्धतो निवर्ततेति कात्यायनीये सूत्रे धनमावध्य आसज्य धनव्ययं कारयित्वा यदि अर्धकृते निवर्तते सोऽपि तद्वहेदित्यनुवक्तः'.

Nārada and Bṛhaspati. This position he could not have attained in a century or two. Hence Kātyāyana cannot be placed later than 600 A. D. As Kātyāyana is later than Yājñavalkya, Nārada and Bṛhaspati he could not have flourished before the 3rd or 4th century A. D. Therefore the smṛti of Kātyāyana must be placed between 300 to 600 A. D.

There is a work called Karmapradīpa on ācārya, śrāddha and other topics (excluding vyavahāra) ascribed to Kātyāyana; Vide History of dharmasāstra, Vol. I. pp. 218-221 for a discussion as to its authorship and other matters, Kātyāyana and Western Jurisprudence.

Kātyāyana represents the last stage of the development of law and procedure in the smṛtis. He comes almost at the end of the period of about a thousand years during which from scanty and scattered beginnings in the earliest Dharmasūtras, principles of an indigenous system of jurisprudence were slowly evolved and matured. It would be unfair to institute a comparison between Kātyāyana and modern jurisprudence of this or the last century. Even so, some of his rules such as those about the contents and characteristics of good plaints and written statements, about the evidence of witnesses and about documents, about constructive res judicata are startling in their modernity. A study of the verses indicated in the Index where there is a close correspondence between the dicta of Kātyāyana and modern Anglo-Indian Codes (such as the Civil Procedure Code, the Contract Act, the Evidence Act, the Limitation Act, the Transfer of Property Act) will amply corroborate this statement. In order to appreciate the intrinsic merits of ancient Indian Jurisprudence as represented by Kātyāyana, the proper course would be to compare it with the most developed system of ancient Jurisprudence in the West, viz., the Roman. Kātyāyana probably flourished as shown above about the same time as Justinian (483-565 A. D.) or perhaps a century or two earlier. In the following an attempt will be made to compare a few of the dicta of Kātyāyana with the Institutes of Justinian, the great Roman legislator and it is hoped that it will be found that both present a striking similarity on many points (particularly in the law of contracts) and that, where they differ, good sense, equity and logic do not often lie with the Roman legislator.

Under the old Roman Law of the Twelve Tables the father's power over his children included the power of sale or even putting to death. Even Justinian says (Lib. I Tit. IX. 2) :—' Our children begotten in lawful wedlock are in our power. The power which we have over our children is peculiar to the citizens of Rome ; for no other people have a power over their children such as we have over our own.' Ancient Dharmasūtras like that of Vasiṣṭha (15. 2) held that parents had the power to sell, gift away or abandon their children. But later smṛti writers curtailed this power. Yājñavalkya (II. 175) and Nārada (p 128 v. 4) both forbade the gift of a son, while Kātyāyana (v. 471) says that the father can only control his son, but he has no power to sell or gift away his son. Kātyāyana no doubt says (v. 639) that according to the sūtras in times of adversity a son may be sold or given away. But this latter does not appear to be his own view, but is rather the view that he finds ancient texts advocated. Similarly according to ancient Roman Law all that children acquired was for the benefit of their parents, but Justinian (Lib. II. Tit. IX. I) made a change viz. that all that children acquired by the help of the fortunes of the father belonged entirely to the father, but in all else the father was to have the usufruct while the son was to retain the ownership. According to Manu (VIII. 416) whatever was acquired by the son belonged to the father. But this rule was modified by Yājñavalkya (II. 118-119) and others who said that whatever was acquired without detriment to the father's estate became exclusively the son's and the father or other co-parceners had no right over it. Kātyāyana elaborately defines and illustrates self-acquisition (866-873). In one verse (851) Kātyāyana appears to give two shares to the father when the property was acquired by the son without detriment to the father's estate and half the property when it was acquired with the help of the father's property. The views of Yājñavalkya and Kātyāyana are much in advance of Justinian and more favourable to the acquirer. Even when wealth was acquired with the help of the father's estate Vasiṣṭha (17. 57) gave two shares to the acquirer.

The rules of Hindu law were therefore more equitable to the acquirer than the rule of Justinian.

According to ancient Roman Law if any one had received bonafide by purchase, gift or other legal means a thing from a person who was not the owner, he became the owner by one year's use in the case of moveables and by two years' use in the case of immoveable property situated in solum Italicum. Justinian (Lib. II Tit. VI) altered these unreasonably short periods and prescribed that moveables should be acquired by user for three years and immoveable property by the 'possession of long time' i.e. for ten years for persons present and twenty years for persons absent, wherever the property might be situated. Ancient Indian jurisprudence showed more concern for rights of ownership in property. Ancient writers like Manu (VIII. 147) and Gautama (XII. 34) held that if a chattel were enjoyed for ten years before the eyes of the owner by another without protest, the ownership was lost. Yājñavalkya (II. 24) appears to have prescribed 20 years in the case of immoveable property and ten years in the case of moveables for loss of ownership by adverse possession. Nārada (p. 62 v. 89 and p. 63 v. 91) prescribed that possession within living memory cannot confer ownership if unaccompanied by title but when it has been enjoyed for three generations and thus passes beyond living memory it becomes independent proof of ownership. But there was divergence about what was meant by 'living memory' or 'three generations.' Brhaspati (p. 313 vv. 23-24) says that a generation means a period of 30 years; so three generations would come to about 90 or 100 years and this is the period of living memory according to the Mitākṣarā on Yājñavalkya (II. 27). Vyāsa followed a middle course and cut down the period of living memory to sixty years and Kātyāyana (v. 318) does the same. Considering the natural inclination of most strong men to seize the property of the weak and the unsettled state of the country in those times owing to wars and foreign invasions the period prescribed by Kātyāyana is not unreasonable. It may be noted that till the passing of the Prescription Act (2 and 3 William IV Chapter 71) English law clung to the singular rule that the expression 'Time immemorial' included and denoted the whole period of time from the reign of king Richard I (1189

A.D.) and that the Prescription Act prescribes a period of sixty years for making a right by enjoyment absolute and indefeasible.

Justinian (Lib. II. Tit. VI. 1, 9) prescribed that possession however long would not confer ownership in the case of free persons, sacred or religious things, fugitive slaves and things that belong to the state fiscus. A similar rule is given by Kātyāyana (v. 330).

According to Justinian (Lib. III Tit. XIV. 2-3) he who receives a thing but for his use (commodatum) is bound to employ his utmost diligence in keeping and preserving it and it would not be sufficient for him to show that he had taken the same care of it which he was accustomed to take of his own property. But a person with whom a thing is deposited (depositum) was only answerable if he was guilty of fraud and not for a fault such as carelessness or negligence. Kātyāyana on the other hand places all kinds of bailment on the same footing (v. 592) and prescribes for all bailments the rule that the bailee would not be liable if he takes as much care of the thing bailed as he takes of his own property (v. 594, 598). That the rule of Kātyāyana is more reasonable will be clear to any one and the Indian Contract Act (sections 151-152) requires the same amount of care from every bailee as Kātyāyana does.

Slavery was recognised by Indian Jurisprudence as well as by Justinian. Manumission of slaves was effected according to Justinian (Lib. I. Tit. V. 1) in various more or less complicated ways; but according to ancient Indian writers a very simple procedure was prescribed (vide Nārada p. 138 vv. 42-43). Justinian (Lib. I Tit. VIII. 1) says 'slaves are in the power of masters, a power derived from the law of nations; for among all nations it may be remarked that masters have the power of life and death over their slaves and that everything acquired by the slave is acquired for the master.' He further on provides that he who without reason killed his slave is to be punished equally with one who has killed the slave of another and that if masters too harshly treated their slaves (short of death) the slaves were to be ordered by the Magistrate to be sold. The ancient Indian texts never gave the power of life and death over slaves to their masters. On the contrary Manu said (VIII. 299-300) that a master could not inflict more punishment on his slave than he could inflict on his own son and that punishment was to be administered only on the back (and never on the head) with a rope or a small bamboo stick. Manu (IV. 130) enjoined on a man not to quarrel with his parents' children, wife and slaves and laid down that, as a slave was like one's shadow and as the daughter was the highest object of tenderness, one must not even when offended by them show resentment (IV. 185). Manu (VIII. 416) no doubt prescribed that what a slave acquired belonged to the master. Kātyāyana however (v. 724) appears to have held that what the slave got through the favour of his master did not belong to the master. Kātyāyana further provided a remarkable rule (v. 729) viz. that a master was to be fined two hundred panas if being well-off he desired to sell a female slave who was devoted to him and who wept over the proposed separation. These and other provisions show that the ancient Hindu Law as to slaves was decidedly more humane than the Roman Law.

Justinian (Lib. III. Tit. XXIII) says 'If earnest has been given, then whether the contract was written or unwritten, the purchaser, if he refuses to fulfil it, loses what he has given as earnest and the seller if he refuses has to restore double.' This very rule occurs in Kātyāyana (v. 541).

Kātyāyana was the greatest ancient Indian champion of the rights of women to their property. He defines at great length what is woman's peculiar property. He prescribed that over women's wealth of the type called saudāyika (v. 901) she had absolute power of disposal, even as regards immoveable property (vv 905-906). Not even the husband nor her son had any power over her peculiar wealth and Kātyāyana went so far as to say that the husband and others, if they deprived her of such wealth, were liable to be fined (vv 912, 915). Comparing these provisions with Justinian's (Lib. II Tit. VII. 3, Lib. II. Tit. VIII, Lib. IV. Tit. VI. 37) it appears that the position of the wife as regards property was better under Hindu Law than under Justinian. The position of the wife under the English Common Law was that of utter legal subjection. By that law, as the husband and wife were regarded as one person, the wife was incapable, with some insignificant exceptions, of acquiring or enjoying any property, real or personal, independently of her husband. This continued till so late as 1882, when the Married Women's Property Act (45 and 46 Vict. Chapter 75) was passed. Even after that Act, the old law continues as regards marriages celebrated before 1st January 1883.

It is beyond the scope of this Introduction to compare and contrast exhaustively the rules of Kātyāyana and the Institutes of Justinian. Enough has already been stated to show that a comparison between the two would be far from unfavourable to the Indian sage. The only point of importance in which Justinian can be claimed to have gone much beyond the Indian sage is in the law of wills. Owing to the universal prevalence of the joint family system in India and the practice of adoption, the law of wills was not developed in ancient India. Kātyāyana however made a very near approach to wills when he provided that, if a gift was promised by a man for a religious purpose whether in good health or when suffering from a disease, or when a man promised a gift to a brāhmaṇa, the son or other heir was to be made to deliver or pay the promised gift even after the death of the promisor (vv. 566, 642).

It is gratifying to see that human reason, whether in the East or in the West, reaches fundamentally identical solutions of practical problems, when untrammelled by the dead weight of scriptural authority or when not dwarfed by alien domination.

Kātyāyana on Vyavahāra

(The qualities of a king)

1-2. The king should be disciplined, endowed with (the study of) the sāstras, possessed of a treasury and of valour, well-disposed towards brāhmaṇas, generous by nature and devoted to truth and dharma. (He should be) free from haughtiness, harassment (of subjects), wickedness, rashness and irascibility, (he should be) ready-witted, full of humility (and yet) high-soaring (in aims), engaging (readily) in conversation and pleasing in appearance.

3. Glory very much resorts (to a king) whose senses are under his control, who can curb himself, who wields (the rod of) punishment for those who fall victims to temptations, who does (everything) after deliberation, who is extremely steady.

(Duties of kings)

4. By reason of their being endowed with an abundance of valour, learning and wealth and particularly on account of the supreme power (they wield), the minds of kings always go astray (even) on the slightest cause (or impulse).

5. Therefore brāhmaṇas should always enlighten the mind (of the king) as to the duties of the king ; he (the king) should not transgress the highly purifying and holy dicta of the smṛtis.

6. The gods became denizens of heaven by the power of the sounds of the Veda; even they, being gratified by the honour paid to brāhmaṇas (by the king), become more delighted there (i.e. in heaven).

7. Therefore kings should ever assiduously honour the brāhmaṇas ; by this he again and again (gains) the position of being Indra and of being the lord of men.

8. The chief of the gods (viz. Indra) coming down from heaven stands (before people) in the form of the king ; he (the king) should ever do that whereby he would attain to the position of him (i. e. of Indra).

3. 'Atyantam' may also be connected with 'niṣevate' and then means 'till his last days.'

8. Compare Manu VII. 4-8.

9. Kings who abide by the duties peculiar to themselves attain to the position of Indra; but those (kings) whose actions go astray (from the path of dharma) have to reside in the Avīci hell (after death²).

10. That king, who gives way to (sudden) wrath without proper thought, no doubt would reside in an horrible hell for half a kalpa.

11. He (the king) should appoint a minister who is a brāhmaṇa, is endowed with these qualities, who is (always) absorbed in (state) business, who is devoted to the king and who is the best of his family.

12. Where the ministers, the sabhyas (members of the assembly of justice) and physicians are given to speaking what is agreeable (to the king), the king would there be soon deprived of his kingdom, of dharma and of happiness (respectively).

13. He (the king) should not direct his wrath towards them (ministers, sabhyas, and physicians) when they tell him (the truth), since these must always tell the king what is proper and what is firmly fixed.

14. Where the king himself looks into all actions according to the dictates of dharma, there the people behave well and reside in happiness.

15. Constant protection of the subjects, eradication of evil-doers, honouring brāhmaṇas,—for these purposes the king was made.

9. ' Avīci ' is one of the 21 hells prescribed for sinners. Vide Yāj. III. 222-225 and Vi. 43. 1-22.

10. Read ' narake ' for ' narakam '. ' Kalpa ' is an enormous period. It is a day of Brahmā and is equal to a thousand divine yugas, each divine yuga being equal to 12000 human years. Vide Manu I. 68-72.

11. ' Endowed with these qualities. ' Probably this refers to the qualities of the king enumerated above.

12. If the minister were to give such advice as would be agreeable to the king and not what would be of real benefit to the state, the king would lose his kingdom. Similarly if the sabhyas were to decide according to the whims of the king, they would be perpetrating injustice (i. e. he would lose dharma). If physicians were to prescribe what was agreeable to the king, his health and happiness would suffer.

15. Compare Manu VII 83 and IX. 253 and Yāj. I. 323. The Kautiliya contains a special adhikaraṇa (4th) on kaṭakas'odhana.

16. The king is declared to be the lord of the land, but never of other kinds of wealth ; therefore he should secure the sixth part of the fruits of land but not otherwise at all.

17. Since (human) beings reside on it (on land) their ownership thereof has been declared. The king's ownership is restricted to taking one-sixth as a tax, since the latter is dependent on good and evil portents (or natural phenomena and calamities of storms, rains, locusts etc).

18. That king, who, giving up greed, acts in this manner, is blessed with sons and his domain and treasury prosper.

19. The king, who unjustly takes from his kingdom taxes, fines, share of crops and tolls, incurs sin.

20. He (the king) should discard the teachings of politics and resort to the dictates of dharmaśāstra (sacred law).

21. Even when the king is at fault, (the conqueror) should not ruin the country (for the vanquished king's faults), since he (the vanquished king) does not start on (his career of) wrong-doing with the consent of his subjects.

22. Whatever (gift) a king offers in a proper manner to a suppliant without distress (to himself), that gift saves him ; such a gift made for the purpose of (accumulating) merit becomes enduring (in its results).

23. Whatever is gained by kings after justly attacking and conquering their enemy, is untainted and fit to be bestowed (in gift) and not anything else which is acquired in a different way.

16-17. The idea underlying these verses seems to be that the king is the owner of all land in the state; therefore he is entitled to demand a sixth part of the produce of the land. The actual cultivators of the soil have only a qualified ownership over land, which they are said to own because they reside on it and produce crops. The latter half of 17 is difficult to construe. The translation above is only tentative. According to the V. M. the king was not the owner of the soil (p. 91 text). Kātyāyana's view seems to be the same as that embodied in section 37 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code.

20. This embodies the rule of conduct in the case of conflict between the teachings of arthaśāstra and dharmaśāstra. Vide Yāj. II. 21, Nār. I. 39, p. 15 and Ap. Dh. S. I. 9. 24. 23. for a similar idea. Kautilya also says: राज्ञे प्रवृत्तिर्येतद्वर्त्मन्येन केनचित् । न्यायस्तत्र प्रमाणं स्यात्तत्र शब्दे हि नश्यति ॥ p. 150 (text).

24. The king should appoint as his purohita (a family priest) a brāhmaṇa who is (highly) spoken of (by the learned), who is well-disposed, endowed with perfect (Vedic) learning, who is not greedy and who speaks the truth.

(Definition of Vyavahāra)

25. When the ramifications of right conduct, that together are called dharma and that can be established only with effort, have been violated, the dispute (in a law court between plaintiff and defendant) which springs from what is desired to be proved (such as a debt), is said to be vyavahāra.

26. 'Vi' is employed in the sense of 'various,' 'ava' in the sense of 'doubt', 'hāra' means 'removing'; 'vyavahāra' is so called because of its removing various doubts.

27. The king should not, through being won over or through greed of money, take upon himself the disputes of men

24. Compare the qualifications of a purohita in Kāṭīya (p. 15) and Yāj. I, 313, in both of which the word 'uditoditam' occurs and is variously explained. Mit. says 'endowed with qualities spoken of in the s'āstras,' while Aparārka explains 'in whom are born the qualities that are spoken of as required in ministers.'

25. This verse gives the conventional (rūḍha) sense of 'vyavahāra' and the next verse gives its etymology. Some of the words are variously explained. Apar. explains 'dharmākhyā' as 'which sets forth dharma' and he refers effort (prayatna) to the labour involved in proving one's claim by means of documents, witnesses &c. The Par. M. explains 'nyāya' as meaning 'worldly conduct approved of by respectable people' and 'vistara' as 'decision based upon reasoning,' 'prayatna' as 'effort to do what is prescribed and to avoid what is forbidden,' 'sādhyā' as 'wealth of which a person is robbed and which he wants to recover'; the Vir. takes 'nyāya' to mean 'pramāṇa' (i. e. śruti and smṛti), takes 'nyāyavistare' as qualifying 'dharmākhye', the meaning being 'when dharma which is unfolded (i.e. under stood through) by śruti and smṛti is obscured.' The Vir. (p. 6) offer another explanation, 'when the pramāṇas, śruti and smṛti and others which expound dharma are shattered (by delusion or carelessness &c.) Hārta defines vyavahāra similarly 'that is declared vyavahāra. when the attainment of one's dharma and the avoidance of the dharma of another is brought about by nyāya' (vide Sm. C. III. p. 2, Par. M. III. p. 7., Vir. p. 6).

27 Compare Manu, VIII. 43 for a similar precept. Sm. C. (III. p. 61) ascribes this verse to Nārada. Pītāmaha says that the king was to act suo motu without a private man's complaint in the case of 50 chalas, 10 aparādhas and 22 padas. The chalas included mischief on the royal road, abuse of the king ; the aparādhas included disobedience of royal edicts, mixture of castes, abortion &c. ; the padas included incendiarism, mischief to embankments &c. Vide Sm. C. III, pp. 62-65, when they do not themselves contend (in a court).

28. He, who causes (physical) injury or does not give back through wickedness what he owes to (his creditor) even though the latter beseeches (him), should be dragged by order of the king.

29. (Vyavahāra) has two aspects, which come to be eighteen owing to the manifoldness in the objects to be secured (by litigation); the eighteen again become 1008 owing to the multifariousness of the matters to be proved.

30. What the plaintiff complains of (before the court) is the root of the litigation ; the two springs (of vyavahāra) are said to be non-remission of what is due and injury.

31. This (vyavahāra) is said to have four feet i. e. stages viz. the plaint, the defence (or reply), the deliberation (as to burden of proof) and the adducing of proof.

32. Dharmaśāstra (sacred law) and Arthaśāstra (science of politics and government) are declared to be the two main branches (of vyavahāra) and victory and defeat are declared to be the two fruits.

29 The two aspects of vyavahāra are civil (dharmamūla) and criminal (himsāmūla); the former contain 14 titles of law and the latter 4. These eighteen titles can be subdivided into 132, according to Nār. (p. 12). Vide also Br. p. 283 verse 5 for division into civil and criminal disputes.

30 Compare बृहस्पतिः ' हिंसां वा कुरुते कश्चिदेयं वा न प्रयच्छति । द्वे हि स्थाने विवादस्य तयोर्बहुतरा गतिः ॥ ' (स्मृतिच. (III p. 2) ; vide Br. p. 283, v. 4.

31 According to Br. the four pādas are plaint, reply, kriyā (adducing of proof), and decision (vide Apar. p. 616), while the Vir. quotes (p. 59) another verse of Bṛhaspati's where the four pādas are bhāṣā (plaint), uttara, kriyā and pratyākālita (Br. p. 289 verse 1). The meaning of pratyākālita according to the Vir. and Apar. is ' deliberation of the judge and assessors as to where the onus probandi lies and as to the method of proof. ' According to the Mit. (on Yāj. II. 8 pratyākālita in this sense is not a vyavahārapāda, since it is a function of the judge only and has no direct relation to the litigants, but pratyākālita in the sense of ' decision of the suit ' may be a vyavahārapāda. According to Nār. (p. 7, v. 10) the four feet of vyavahāra are : dharma, vyavahāra, caritra, royal edict.

32 Verses 30 and 32 seem to refer to the dictum of Hārīta about vyavahāra ' एकमुक्ते द्विस्तानो द्विकम्बो द्विकस्तथा ' (स्मृतिच. III. p. 27).

33. That man is declared to be stobhaka who with a sole eye to money and without being urged by the king first informs (the king) of a matter which is censured by śāstra (sacred law).

34. That man is declared to be sūcaka who is appointed by the king himself for discovering the wrong-doing of others and who coming to know of it conveys it to the king.

(Comparative strength of dharma, vyavahāra, caritra and rājas'āsana)

35. In a dispute where the person guilty of wrong-doing accepts (confesses to) his responsibility for it and where the real owner of the money (in dispute) secures his wealth by the admission of the defendant the decision is by dharma (moral law) itself.

36. That is said to be vyavahāra (decision by judicial proof) where, for the purpose of deciding the causes (of litigants), those who are to execute the sacred law (i. e. the judge and assessors) put forward some principles of dharmaśāstra (viz. examination of plaint, reply, witnesses &c.).

33-34 A stobhaka is a private informant who gives information to the king for a reward, while a sūcaka is a servant of the king or an officer of the criminal intelligence department. These two verses have reference to chalas, aparādhas and padas as to which the king was to proceed suo motu. Read राज्ञापचोदितः

85 Nārada (vide 31 above) spoke of vyavahāra as four-fold. But what he meant is made clear by Bṛhaspati ' धर्मेण व्यवहारेण चरित्रेण नृपाज्ञया । चतुष्प्रकारोऽभिहितः सन्दिग्धे विनिर्णयः ॥ स्मृतिच० III. p. 21. Vide Br. p. 285 v. 18. 'Decision' is the fourth pāda of vyavahāra according to Br. and this last can be arrived at in four ways viz. by dharma, by vyavahāra, by caritra and by rājas'āsana. When a person guilty of a crime (doṣa) admits his guilt (through repentance and on account of being afraid of sins) without fighting out the proceeding and when a defendant also admits in his reply his liability to pay, there the decision is said to be by dharma, as the admission is due to the desire to follow dharma and to the fear of adharma. Here there is no necessity of proof, or usage, or royal edict. It is therefore that Nār. says ' तत्र सत्ये स्थितो धर्मो व्यवहारस्तु साक्षिषु । चरित्रं पुस्तकरणे राजाज्ञया तु शासनम् ॥ '. This very verse occurs in Kauṭilya (p. 150 text) where we read चरित्रं संग्रहे पुसास.

36 It is therefore that Nār. says that decision by vyavahāra rests on witnesses, as they are the principal instrument of proof. Compare Br. p. 286 v. 22.

37. Whatever a person practises, whether it be according to dharma (the letter of the sacred law) or not, because it is the invariable usage in a country, is declared to be caritra (usage).

38. What a king establishes as dharma which is not in conflict with the smṛti rules on justice and with the usages of the country is a righteous royal edict.

39. Where a cause is tried by (an appeal to) reasoning and ordeals are eschewed, there (decision by) dharma is overruled by vyavahāra and not in other cases.

40. (The king) should not disregard the fixed rules of conduct among those who belong to the pratiloma castes and among inhabitants of forts (or inaccessible mountain places), even if they are opposed (to rules of smṛti).

87 Certain usages observed by the people of a country may not be in accordance with the rules contained in certain dharmaśāstras (such as marriage with a maternal uncle's daughter); yet if the question of the validity of such a marriage comes before the court, it is to be decided according to usage and not according to dharmaśāstra. Here a decision based on usage (caritra) is itself called caritra. Vide Manu I. 108 on Ācāra (usages) being transcendental law and Yāj. I. 343 on the king's duty to respect the usages of a conquered country. Nārada's text as read by Caṇḍeśvara 'चरित्रं पुस्तकरणे' means 'documentary evidence', but Par. M. (III. p. 10) reads चरित्रं तु स्वीकरो, which means the same thing as above. Vide Vir. p. 9 for criticism of these two readings. व्यास also says 'देशस्थितिः पूर्वकृता चरित्रं समुदाहृतम्' (स्मृतिच० III. p. 23) and पितृमह also says 'यद्यदाचरति श्रेष्ठो धर्म्यं वाधर्म्यमेव वा । कुलादिदेशाचरणाच्चरित्रं तत्प्रकीर्तितम् ॥' (स्मृतिच० III. p. 58).

38 A decision in a cause arrived at by the king's own intellect and not in conflict with Smṛti or usages is said to be a decision by royal edict.

39 These and the following verses illustrate the dictum of Nārada about the four that each succeeding one is stronger (or superior to) than each preceding one (उत्तरः पूर्ववाचकः). Vide Nār. p. 7 v. 10. Kauṭ. (p. 150 text) has the same verse. Where the decision is not given on the admission of the defendant or on trial by ordeal, but according to the methods of proof (such as witnesses, inference) laid down in dharmaśāstra, the decision is by means of vyavahāra. बृहस्पति says 'शास्त्रं केवल-श्रित्य क्रियते यत्र निर्णयः । व्यवहारः स विज्ञेयो धर्मस्तेनावहीयते' (स्मृतिच० III. p. 24, वार० p. 12). Vide Br. p. 286 v. 25.

40-41 When a girl of a higher caste marries a male of a lower caste, the progeny is called pratiloma. Vide Manu X. 11-41 and Yāj. I. 93-95.

✓ 41. When a king gives a decision in accordance with such rules of conduct (i. e. according to usage) then vyavahāra is overruled by caritra.

42. Where kings consider that an usage is opposed to sacred law, there the usage is overruled by the king's command.

43. Each succeeding one (out of the four viz. dharma, vyavahāra, caritra and royal edict) when possessed of these characteristics overrules (each preceding one); where (each succeeding one) overrules (preceding one) in other circumstances, there justice (dharma) is destroyed.

44. If a king decides (a case) by his own fiat where there is a text (of the śāstra capable of deciding it), it leads him away from heaven, it causes ruin to people, it brings danger (to the king) from the army of his enemy and it strikes down the roots (lit. the seed) of his (long) life.

45. Therefore a king should decide the causes (of people) according to the rules of s'āstra; but in the absence of sacred texts, he should carry out (judicial administration) according to the usages of the country (lit. the views of the country).

46. Whatever course of conduct is in vogue in a country, is of long duration and is not opposed to the vedas and smṛtis, is said to be the usage of the country.

47. (In disputes) between the residents of the same country or the same capital or the same hamlet of cowherds and of the same town or village, (the decision should be) by their own

For the idea in these verses, compare बृहस्पतिः देशस्थित्यानुमानेन नैगमानुमतेन वा । क्रियते निर्णयस्तत्र व्यवहारस्तु बाध्यते ॥' (स्मृतिच० III. 25, वीर 7 p. 12 and Br. p. 287 v. 26).

42 Where usages are opposed to smṛti and it is likely that enforcing them would engender discontent and commotion among the people, the king's command may supersede such usages. It is therefore that in verse 136 below a plaint which is opposed to the interest of the nation is said to fail.

43 Nārada's dictum (उच्चारः पूर्ववाचक) quoted on verse 39 is not a universal rule. It is rather an exception. This is made clear by this verse that where judicial procedure can properly be carried out, or where there are local usages (not opposed to the country's interest &c.) the king cannot interfere by an edict.

45 Compare Manu 8. 3.

47 This lays down the rule of decision in case of the conflict of conventional usages, but (in disputes) between these and others (the decision must be) in accordance with the sacred texts (dharmasāstra).

48-50. Whatever conventions are settled in accordance with the consent of the (people of a) country should always be preserved in writing sealed with the royal seal. Such conventions should be sedulously upheld like (the dictates of) sacred law and (the king) should decide (disputes) after considering them. Whatever (trade) conventions are reduced to writing by traders as fit to be carried out, those must be given effect to and (the king) should not start anything contrary to them.

51. Whatever is decided upon (once by the king) as the authoritative usage of a country and whatever he does as approved of by the vedas and smṛtis though not in vogue (as a custom or convention), that should not be again reversed (by the king); he should avoid what is not in accordance with smṛti rules.

(The hall of justice)

52. That place, where the decision of the truth of the plaint (lit. the cause or root of dispute) is carried on by a consideration of the (rules of the) sacred law, is (called) the Hall of Justice (dharmādhikaraṇa).

53-54. The king, having risen in the morning, performed ablutions, being composed in mind, having shown due honour to his guru, his astrologer, physicians, deities, brāhmanas, and the family priests and having saluted the elders and the rest and being decked with fine flowers, ornaments and apparel, should enter the court room that has a pleasing appearance.

various systems of law, where the parties to the litigation do not belong to the same country, town or village.

48-50 These principles applicable to the usages of a country and the custom of a trade also hold good in the case of the usages of a caste or family, a guild or corporation &c. Vide Pitāmaha 'ग्रामगाष्ट पुरअणीसार्थ सेनानिवासिनाम् । व्यवहारश्चरित्रेण निर्णेतव्यं वृत्तः पतेः' ॥ (मृत्तेच. III. p. 58). Vide Br. p. 287 v. 28 and Manu 8. 41. Verse 85 below should have been placed after these.

53-54 Vide Br. p. 280 verses 21-22 for the same verses.

55. The king, dressed in a simple (subdued, not gaudy) manner, having gone to the court-room and being composed in mind, should look into the causes of litigants while sitting or standing facing the east, along with persons learned in the three vedas, elders and councillors well-versed in statecraft.

56. The king who looks (into causes) according to the sacred law along with the judge, the ministers, the brāhmaṇas, the family priest and the assessors (sabhyas) attains heaven.

✓ 57-59. (The court-room) should be presided over by incorruptible and diligent assessors (sabhyas), by wise brāhmaṇas who are (perform the work) hereditary, who are well-versed in the meaning of sacred texts and the science of politics, by a few merchants who form a group (or guild), who are men of high family, character, well advanced in years, are endowed with good conduct and wealth and are free from malice. In that (court-room) merchants are to be appointed to listen (to the cause) and to look to the administration of justice.

(Time of holding the court)

60. The king, who strikes down his enemies, should decide the causes in the court-room in the first half of the day according to the course laid down in the sacred texts (śāstra).

61. Those three parts of the day after omitting the (first) eighth part of the day are declared to be the best time

55 Compare Manu 8. 1-2. Kul. explains that the king may decide while standing if the matter is simple or slight. The Vy. Māt. explains that the king's attire should be simple, as otherwise the parties might be dazzled by his splendour and might forget what they had to say. Compare Br. p. 280 v. 20.

57-59 The Mit. notices that there is a distinction between sabhyas and brāhmaṇas ; the former are specially appointed by the king, the latter are not. The Mit. says that, according to Manu 8. 10-11, the sabhyas were to be three, while according to Br. they were to be 7, 5 or 3. Vide Br. p. 278 v. 11. Vide Yāj. II. 2 for qualifications of sabhyas. The Vir. explains कुरुक्षेत्रैः as ' old. ' The merchants are to be other than the sabhyas and were to be associated with the judge and sabhyas according to Mit. for placating the populace.

61 The whole day (of 30 ghaṭikās or 12 hours) is to be divided into 8 parts, then the first part (or 1½ hours) is to be set apart (for daily duties of bath, worship &c.) and the three parts (4½ hours) up to noon were to be devoted to hearing the causes, Kaut. (text p. 37 and tr. p. 42) for (looking into) disputes according to the sacred texts.

62. The three parts of the day after the first eighth part are recognised in the śāstra by the wise as the time for (administration of) justice.

(The judge)

✓ 63-64. When the king cannot himself decide the causes (of litigants), then he should appoint thereto (in the court) a brāhmaṇa learned in the various śāstras, who is vigilant and well-born, who is impartial, who does not cause disgust to the people, who is steady (or incorruptible), who is afraid of the next world, most devoted to observance of śāstric rules of conduct, assiduous and free from irascibility.

65. The king should appoint for (deciding) disputes (a judge) who is not cruel, who is sweet-tempered, kind, who is hereditary, clever, energetic and not greedy.

66. One who has studied only a single branch of learning would not know how to decide causes; therefore kings should appoint for (deciding) disputes one who knows many śāstras as the best person.

✓ 67. Where a brāhmaṇa (endowed with the qualities enumerated) cannot be had, (the king) should appoint a Kṣatriya or a Vaiśya proficient in the sacred law, but he (the king) should carefully avoid a śūdra (as a judge).

68. Whatever is done by others (as judges) than these must be regarded as done wrongly, even if they be officers (of the king) and even if by chance it is done (the decision is) according to the sacred texts.

divides the king's day into eight parts, but assigns only the 2nd part and not 3rd and 4th also as in Kāt.) for looking into the causes of citizens and of people in the country.

62. This means the same thing as the preceding. It is unlikely that the original Kātyāyana contained both verses. Both are well authenticated; so they probably represent two versions of the same verse.

63 Compare Manu 8. 9 and Yāj. II. 3.

65 Read कृमायातः for क्षमायातः in the text.

67 Compare Manu 8. 20.

68 The jurisdiction to decide cases rests with judges and sabhyas who belong to the brāhmaṇa and the two other castes. If one who is not appointed a judge, but is an officer of the army were to decide a dispute even according to śāstra that would be a decision without jurisdiction and so a nullity, just as in modern times if a court having no jurisdiction at all over the matter in dispute were to decide it, the decision could be a mere nullity, even if on merits the decision may be found to be right.

69. It is settled that one who asks questions with reference to the matter in dispute is a 'prāḍ' (a questioner); he, who distinguishes in that (dispute as to what party is in the right), is thence called ' prāḍvivāka ' (a judge).

70. If the judge were to hold conversation in private with a party while the matter (in dispute) is undecided, he becomes liable to be punished and also particularly the assessors (if they do the same).

[The Members of the Court]

71. The best of brāhmanas, who are not avaricious, who possess wealth, who know the sacred law, who (always) speak the truth and are proficient in all śāstras, should be made sabhyas (assessors).

72. Where the sabhyas decide (a matter) in violation of the sacred law there dharma (justice) being overcome by adharma (injustice) does undoubtedly destroy (the king).

73. Where justice is slain by injustice and where truth is strangled by untruth while the sabhyas look on (with apathy), there the sabhyas (members of the court) are themselves destroyed.

74. The members of the court should not connive at the king when he begins to act unjustly ; if they do so, they along with the king fall headlong into hell.

75. Those members of the court, who follow (approve of) the king who proceeds in an unjust manner, also become participators therein (i. e. in the sin due to unjust decision); therefore the king should be awakened by them (to the right course).

69 This gives the etymology of the word प्राड्विवाक. The judge asks the plaintiff what his case is and the defendant what his reply is and then finds out which of them is in the right. Therefore प्राड्विवाक is a compound of two words प्राड् (from प्रच्छ् to ask) and विवाक (from विच् with वि). It seems better to derive विवाक from वच् with वि, as the Vy. Māt. does in the alternative विचार्य वा जयपराजयरूपं विविधमर्थं वक्षति विवाकः. Compare Br. p. 278 v. 12 for derivation.

71 Compare Br. p. 279 v. 13, Nār. p. 37 verses 4-5.

73 This is the same as Manu 8. 14 and Nārada (समालक्षणाध्याय 8). So it is likely that Kātyāyana embodied such a popular verse in his work.

75-76 There is no contradiction in these verses. The latter says that the sabhya should not then and there oppose the king's desire, but should at the moment mollify the king, while the former says that gradually the

76. Coming to know that the mind of the king is straying from the path of justice, a member of the court should then say what is agreeable (to the king); (by so doing) the sabhya would not incur sin.

77. A member of the court must certainly speak out words (decision) that are in accordance with the sacred law and the science of statecraft. If the king does not listen (to the advice of the sabhya), the sabhya would then be free from sin.

78. When a king directs (the judge or member of the court) to do injustice to (to give a wrong decision in the case of) disputants, then a member of the court should beseech the king (that his order will lead to injustice) and should turn him away from wrong-doing.

79. When a sabhya decides wrongly through affection, ignorance, greed, or infatuation, he should be punished; for he is in that case declared to be not a sabhya (i. e. unworthy to be a member of the court).

80. After correctly understanding how to decide the cause, a member of the court should announce (his decision); he should not announce (his decision) otherwise (i. e. without understanding); if he does so he is liable to a fine double (of what the defeated party in a cause has to pay).

81. Whatever loss is caused (to a litigant) through the fault of the sabhya, the latter should be ordered to make it good ; but (the king) should not disturb the decision of the matter in dispute between litigants.

king should be brought round to see the right path. The reading (in 75) 'बोधनीयः शनैर्बुधः' (the king should be gradually awakened to his duty) is therefore preferable.

77 Compare Nār. p. 37 verse 7 and p. 39 v. 15 and Manu 8. 19.

79-80 Compare Nār. p. 22 v. 67 and Yāj. II. 4. The Mit. on Yāj. II. 4 explains in this way. The words 'liable to a double fine' do not mean 'double of the matter in dispute,' since in certain cases (such as rape, abduction &c.) the matter in dispute is incapable of valuation.

81 This applies where after a decision is pronounced, it is found that a wrong decision was given by a corrupt assessor. In such a case the decision stands, but the erring assessor has to make good the loss occasioned by his decision.

(Gradation among those who decide causes)

82. Family council, corporations, assemblies, one appointed (as a judge) and the king ; these have the responsibility in (deciding) disputes. Each succeeding one out of these is superior to (each preceding one).

83. The king should investigate the causes of ascetics by those learned in the three Vedas only and also of those who are adepts in jugglery and in yogic practices and should not investigate them himself for fear that he may rouse their anger (against himself).

84. (The king) should give advice (admonition) to those who are of high caste and character, and to his guru, teachers and ascetics through one who is endowed with true knowledge (and not himself directly).

85. That is called family usage which has come down hereditarily in a family as the dharma to be observed (by members of that family); (the king) should preserve it (intact).

(Method of questioning the plaintiff)

86-88. (The king or judge) should question the litigant (who approaches) at the proper time (of the court), who bows (to the king or judge) and who stands before him ' what is your grievance, what is the injury done to you, don't

82 Vy. Māt. ascribes this verse to Manu also. It is not found in Manu. It is Nar. I. 7 (vide p. 6). Yāj. II. 30 is a similar verse, where the word 'pūga' is used in place of 'gaṇa.' 'Kula' or family gatherings are explained by the Mit. as groups of agnatic and cognatic relatives, while Vy. Māt. explains as 'the family of the parties.' Mit explains 'śreṇi' as associations of persons following one trade whether they belong to the same caste or not (such as weavers, betel-nut sellers &c.), while Vy. Māt. explains as " associations of artisans and traders etc.; 'gaṇa' means 'assembly of brāhmaṇas etc,' according to Vy. Māt. and 'pūga' means according to Mit. 'assemblies of persons residing in one village or city, though of different castes and professions.' All these are like modern pancāyats. Compare Br. p. 281 verses 28-30.

83 Compare Br. p. 281 v. 27 for a similar rule. This verse occurs in Kauṣ. text p. 39.

84 Separate as संपन्न उपदेशः.

86-88. The words 'किं कथं' and 'का पीडा' respectively refer to civil and criminal matters. Vir. p. 52 explains that if the plaintiff were to reply that defendant does not return a debt given to him by the plaintiff in a former life, it is not a cause that can be entertained. 'The seal' means be afraid, speak out, man !'. The (judge) presiding in the court should ask ' by whom, where, at what time and why (was the grievance or injury caused).' When thus asked whatever he replies should be considered (by the judge) with the assessors and the brāhmanas and if the cause be judicially entertainable, then he (the judge) should deliver the (court) seal to the plaintiff for calling (the defendant) or he should order the (court's) officer (to call the defendant).

(Substitutes or recognised agents of parties)

89-90. A person though other (than the defendant,) if put forward by the defendant before the judge (as defendant) should be regarded as the defendant and he also who is accepted (by the plaintiff) himself (as the defendant). It is the right of the person charged (to give a reply) and not of another person, since the latter is unconnected (with the dispute); (but) even a stranger may be allowed (to have the right to defend,) if he is put forward (as the defendant) by the person charged (by the plaintiff).

91. For whomsoever a man carries on a dispute (in a law court) whether the latter be appointed by the plaintiff or deputed by the defendant, the victory or defeat belongs to the former (and not to the representative).

probably a sealed order or summons.' The court's officer (or bailiff) was called ' sādhyapāla. ' Vide व्यास quoted in स्मृतिच० (III. 39) साध्यपालस्तु कर्तव्यो राजा साध्यस्य साधकः। क्रमायातो दृढः शूद्रः सभ्यानां च मते स्थितः ॥' and Br. p. 279 v. 15, which says that he was to be appointed to summon parties and witnesses and to keep them in custody (when necessary). For the last verse, compare बृहस्पति ' यस्याभियोगं कुरुते तथ्येनाशङ्क्यापि वा । तमेवाकारये- द्राजा मुद्रया पुरुषेण वा ॥ ' स. वि. p. 79 and स्मृतिच० III. p. 72.

89-90. See Order III of the Civil Procedure Code on recognised agents, some of the provisions of which are very similar to the following verses. The general rule is contained in the first half of verse 90, viz. defendant must answer the plaintiff in person; to this three exceptions are allowed; defendant may send some one as his deputy (2nd half of 90), the defendant charged by the plaintiff may put forward another person as the defendant, or the plaintiff may accept as the defendant another person. These verses and verse 92 forbid what is called in England champerty and maintenance.

91. This is the same as Nār. p. 29 verse 22. The appointment may be due to illness, or incapacity to argue one's case. This verse contains the germs of the modern profession of pleaders.

92. Slaves, menials, pupils, persons deputed, and relatives, these should not be punished when they speak (on behalf of another, their master etc.); any one other than these (if meddling in litigation) deserves punishment.

93-95. A representative (of plaintiff or defendant) is not allowed in (charges of) brāhmaṇa murder, drinking wine, theft, sexual intercourse with the wife of an elder (incest) and in other grave sins. A representative should not be given in man-slaughter, theft, indecent assault on another's wife, eating forbidden food, kidnapping of a maiden and intercourse with her, harshness (vākpāruṣya and daṇḍapāruṣya), counterfeiting coins and measures, and also in sedition; but the man himself (the plaintiff or defendant) should engage in the dispute.

(Summons)

96. The king should not summon to appear in person those who are intent upon (engrossed in) performing religious rites for securing (heavenly) reward, persons who are ill, idiots, who are not at ease (owing to calamities), who are under the influence of intoxicants, who are raving, who are despondent and women.

97. (The king should not summon) a young woman whose family is dilapidated, a lady of good family, a woman who is recently delivered, a maiden who is of a higher caste than the claimant, (since) these are declared to be under the tutelage of their kinsmen.

98. Summoning (in person) is allowed in the case of those women on whom the family depends, women who are

92. Compare Nār. p. 29 verse 23.

93-95. The reading of Vy. Māt. would mean 'in mutual disputes between saṅghas (religious or other associations).' The Sm. C. reads 'in other disputes of a coarse kind' and says that verses 94-95 illustrate what are such disputes. Vide Vi. 34. 1. for atipātakas.

96. For the meaning of अशुद्ध्य compare वैशेषिकसूत्र 'यतोऽशुद्ध्यनिःश्रयसिद्धिः स धर्मः.'

96. Sm. C. says that women who are dependent are meant here. Compare with this and the next Nār. pp. 18-19 verses 52-54 and Br. p. 288 v. 34. The principle underlying verses 96 and 97 in regard to summoning women has been followed in sec. 132 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act. V of 1908).

unchaste, courtezans, women without family and degraded women.

99. A person who asserts his claim with arms in hand, without wearing an upper garment, with hair dishevelled, sitting down on a seat, or with his left hand, should be fined.

100. He, who when summoned, disregards the king's order (to appear before the court) though able to do so, should be fined by the king according to the method laid down in the (smṛti) injunction.

101. The fine should be fifty (paṇas) in the case of slight causes (when the defendant does not appear though summoned), two hundred as the minimum in the case of middling ones and in the case of heavy causes the fine should always be 500 (paṇas) at least.

102. Whatever figure is put down as the fine for any wrong must be understood as referring to paṇas (to be paid to the king) or their equivalent price.

(Restraint or arrest)

✓ 103. He, who, through bad disposition, causes injury or does not give what he is bound to give to one who requests him to do so, should be dragged (before the court) by the king's order.

104-105. After informing the king of the cause (matter in dispute) and when the matter affirmed (in the plaint) is beyond doubt, he (the claimant) should employ restraint (of the

99. A claimant must approach the court in a decent manner. This verse is an expansion of the word प्रपन्न in verse 86 above.

101. Apar. explains that these are copper paṇas.

102. The reading 'śaktitah' is better and means 'according to the ability of the person fined.'

103. 'Injury' refers to criminal matters and 'deyam' stands for all civil disputes.

104. Vir. explains that when it is apprehended that some time would elapse before the summons from the king could be served on the defendant, the plaintiff should keep under restraint or arrest (called āsedha in Sanskrit) the defendant. Compare Nār. p. 17 v. 47. Āsedha (which means arrest or restraint by king's order ' according to Mit.) according to Nār (p. 17. v. 48), was of four kinds: when the defendant is told ' don't go away even a step from this place till the decision ' it is local restraint (स्थाननिषेध) when he is told ' you must present your defendant) till the arrival of the summons. One who deserves to be arrested should be punished, if he breaks (the restraint) when he is arrested.

106. That man who restrains (the defendant) so as to prevent him from exercising his limbs or from talking and breathing freely, when the defendant does not deserve to be (so restrained), should be punished and not the (defendant) who breaks such restraint.

107-108. Those who have climbed up trees and mountains, those who are seated on elephants, horses, chariots and in boats and those who are under difficulties— all these should not be arrested by those (plaintiffs) who want to establish their claims; so also those who are afflicted with disease, those who are overwhelmed by calamities, those who are engaged in sacrifices, those who have not come out (of the litigation in which they are already engaged), the intoxicated, the lunatic and the idiot — these should not be arrested.

109. A husbandman (should) not be arrested at the time of the sowing season, nor a soldier at the time of (the marching of) the army, nor one who has gone after having promised (to return) nor should one who has fixed a time (for his appearance) be arrested in the interval (i. e. before that time).

self on the 5th day of the month' (Sm. c.) or 'you must not do a certain thing for a certain time' (Vir.), it was temporary restraint (कालोपधि), when told ' don't go on a journey till the decision ' it is restraint of journey (प्रवासोपधि), when told ' don't do such and such an act e. g. exposing an article for sale ' (Sm. C.) or ' don't do this or that act such as taking a bath ' &c. (Vir.), it is restraint as to actions (कर्मणः उपधि). If he disregarded these restraints he was liable to be punished. It will be noticed that ' āsedha ' included several modern processes such as attachment or arrest before judgment (section 94 and Order 38 of the Civil Pro. Code) or temporary injunction (Order 39 of the Civil Procedure Code).

107-108. Compare Nār. pp. 18-19 verses 52-54, Br. p. 288 verses 35-37.

108. ' Those who have not come out &c. ' — Compare Yāj. II. 9. ' अस्मिन्योगमनिर्यथैव नैनं प्रत्यस्मिन् योजयेत् । अस्मिन् कृतं च नान्येन नोक्तं विप्रकृतिं नयेत् ' ॥ and Nār p. 19 v. 55 and Kaut. (text. p. 149 ' न चास्मिन् युक्ते भिद्योगोक्तिः ') Compare sec 135 (2) of the Civil Procedure Code as to freedom of parties, their agents and witnesses from arrest while attending or going to and returning from a tribunal.

110. When the husbandman is ready to reap the crop, so also when the rainy season approaches, (the plaintiff) should not make (the defendant) engage in the dispute from the beginning (of the sowing of seeds) to the gathering (in of the crops). If (the plaintiff) arrests one who should not be arrested, the fixed rule is that he should be punished by the king.

111. The defendant when restrained by order of the king should stay (i. e. should not break the order of arrest) and the wise say that (when he is so arrested) others should not attack him (by another suit).

112-113 The king should make the plaintiff give as much subsistence (lit. boiled rice) to the messenger, after the cause is finished, as is required for a day or two (that he spent in summoning and guarding the defendant &c.) having regard to the time and place. Those who know the essence (of dharma) recognise that the subsistence (lit. food) due to the summoner in all cases depends upon the time, the place, the age (of the summoner) and the ability (of the parties).

(Persons not acceptable as sureties)

114-116. The master, an enemy, one authorised by the master, one who is under arrest, one fined, those who are accused (of grave sins), one who is a sharer in family property, an indigent person, those who are under a vow of perpetual studenthood, one who is appointed on the king's business, those 109-110 Compare Br. p. 288 verses 36-37.

112-113 Compare Kaut. (text. p. 149) who says that ' the wages for the puruṣa are one-eighth (of the fine or matter in dispute), that the subsistence on the way (for witnesses) depends on the value of the matter in dispute and that both these should be paid by the party that is chastised by the king. ' The last means that the costs of the suit fall on the defeated party. Dr. Sham Shastri's translation (p. 190) ' fees for witnesses shall cover $\frac{1}{8}$ of the amount ' is not correct, as ' puruṣa ' does not mean ' witness, ' but ' bailiff. ' Vide notes on verses 86-88 above.

114-116 ' Saṁśayaṣṭha ' is explained as ' abhiśaṣṭa ' which is explained by Haradatta as one guilty of the grave sins enumerated in Apastamba-dharmasūtra I. 7. 21. 8.; ' rikṭhi ' means ' one who has a share in ancestral wealth, such as a brother ', ' atyantavāsinah ' is explained by the Mit. as ' naiṣṭhikabrahmacārinah '. The Vir. p. 58 says that the Mādānaratna read ' anyatra vāsinah ' which it explained a, who are ascetics (sannyāsins), one who is unable to pay (the money due or amount in dispute) to the creditor (or successful party) and fine equal to that (the amount in dispute) to the king, one whose father is living, so also one who incites (the party from whom surety is demanded), one whose antecedents are not known-- these should not be accepted as sureties.

117. If there be no surety given by the plaintiff who has a proper cause for dispute, he should be guarded and should give to the messenger (the person who keeps guard over him) wages at the end of the day.

118. A person belonging to the three higher castes, if without a surety, should be (confined) guarded by (warders) who stand outside (the lock-up), but (the king) should keep S'ūdras and others confined and fettered (if they cannot give sureties).

119. If he (person without surety) breaks (the restraint) and runs away, he should be fined eight panas, but in the case of persons of all castes, there should be no obstruction to the performance of (daily) obligatory actions (or duties such as bathing, worshipping, sandhyā prayers &c.).

120. The king should not allow a litigant to proceed with the litigation, if he retains the property or money which he has (been shown to have) seized ; it should be delivered

' dwelling in a different country. ' Yāj. I. 10 lays down that the judge should require both parties to give a surety who would be able to pay the decretal amount and the fine that the defeated party would have to pay to the king (उभयोः प्रतिपुत्रोद्धिः समर्थः कार्यनिर्णये). These verses enumerate those who are not proper sureties.

117 The reading ' yogyastu vādinah ' would be preferable (meaning ' for the two parties a surety, who is a fit one in relation to the matter in dispute ') but it is doubtful whether it is the original reading.

120 Read ' grhīta ' for ' grahīta ' in the text. According to the Sm. C. this verse applies to a litigant who is shown to have seized upon the property in dispute ; in such a case he should be made to hand it over to the other party if the latter is worthy of being entrusted with it or it should be handed over to a third party. Here we have the germ of the appointment of a receiver under Order 40 of the Civil Procedure Code. The Vy. Māt. reads ' nyāyo ' for ' nyāye ' and explains differently ; ' grahana ' means property pledged or mortgaged. ' If a creditor sues for recovery of money charged on some over to the other litigant or should be kept with a third person (as receiver).

(The order in which plaintiff and defendant are to address)

121. The plaintiff (lit. the attacker) should first affirm (his case) and then the defendant (the person attacked). When they both have finished, the members of the court (the sabhyas) and after them the judge (should speak).

122-123. Whoever has suffered greater injury or whose matter is more important should have the position of the plaintiff and not he who first informs (the court). Whoever suffers greater loss of wealth or greater bodily injury should be given the position of the plaintiff and not he who first informs (the court).

property the suit should not be proceeded with as long as he retains the property hypothecated; the property should be first returned to the debtor defendant (if he is worthy of trust) or should be kept with a receiver. The words of Vy. Māt. are ग्रहणं बन्धकं तत् तस्मिन्नेव समर्पणीयं यद्यसौ प्रत्यायितः। असत्यत्वे तु मध्यस्थे रथापनयिष्यत् स्वयमेव चायिनः समुपस्थितत्वात् प्रत्यर्थिविषयम्. ' What follows these words is not quite clear.

121 The plaintiff's affirmation is called ' pratijñā ' or pūrvapakṣa and the defendants ' uttara. ' The order in the case of sabhyas and judge does not apply to the preliminary questions they put to the plaintiff, but only to their deliberations after they have heard the parties viz. to ' kriyā ' and ' nirṇaya '.

122. This verse states an exception to the rule contained in 121. The general rule is that he who first approaches the court with his complaint is the plaintiff and dominis litis. Compare Nār. आह्वा लेखः पट्टकः शासनं वा आधिः पत्रं विक्रयो वा क्रयो वा । राज्ञे कुर्यात्पूर्वमावेदनं यस्तस्य ज्ञेयः पूर्वपक्षो विधिज्ञैः ॥ Dr. Jolly (Nār. p. 34 v. 38) is wrong in translating ' is known as defendant ' (it should be ' as plaintiff '). Where both parties are in the position of plaintiff and defendant (because both make a claim against each other, as in a partition suit), Br lays down the rule that where groups of persons come together claiming to be heard first, then the position of being first heard should be given according to the order of castes or after looking to the gravity of the injury or loss of each (vide Br. p. 290 v. 4). Vide Manu 8. 24 for the proposition that the causes of litigants should be investigated in the order of the four varnas. Vide Vir. p. 61 for elaborate rules. First rule is that he who comes first should be heard first. The second is that if several persons come at the same time, precedence is governed by the order of castes. Where the injury is greatest, that case should be heard first irrespective of caste or time of coming. Time of coming to court is followed when caste is same.

(Characteristics of a plaint)

124-126 The plaint should be presented after putting down the period (of the transaction in dispute with reference to the king then reigning), the year, the month, the fortnight (bright or dark), the tithi (lunar day), the time (of enjoyment of the matter in dispute), the location (of the land &c.) the country, the place (village &c), the caste or species, the position of the body (or limbs), the age (childhood, youth &c), the dimensions or measurements of the thing sought to be recovered (by suit), the material (dravya, in dispute), the amount (of money &c in dispute), plaintiff's own name, the names of the kings (of the country) in order, the dwelling place (address), the name (or description) of the thing claimed (i. e. the relief claimed), the names in order of ancestors (father, grandfather &c of both parties), the injury or loss (caused by the defendant), the person who got (the property by gift or sale &c) and the donor (or transferor), the reasons why the plaintiff submitted (to the enjoyment of his property by the defendant for a time) and other (necessary) details.

127-128. In disputes about immoveable property (the plaintiff) should set out (in the plaint) the following ten (details) viz, the country, the place (village &c), the situation (boundaries of the field &c, or the figure) the caste, the name, the dwelling-place (of the parties), the measure, the name of the field, the father and grandfather (of the parties), enumeration of the former kings.

124-126 These verses are an elaboration of similar verses of Br. ' उपस्थिते ततस्तस्मिन् वादी पक्षं प्रकल्पयेत् । निरवयवं संप्रातिष्ठं प्रमाणगमसंयुतम् । देशस्थान-समामासपक्षाहर्जाति नाम च । द्रव्यं संख्योदयं पीडां क्षमालिङ्गं च लेखयेत् ॥ व्य. मा. p. 294 and स्मृतिच० III. p. 81. Vide Yāj. II. 6. and V. M. (text p. 12) for a similar quotation from another smṛti. Compare Civil Pro. Code Order VII rules 1-3 and 6 setting out contents of the plaint. All the above need not occur in each plaint, but they must be stated according to the facts of each case.

127-128 ' Measure ' means ' so many nivartanas in extent ' (or acres as in modern times).

129. Whatever (the plaintiff) being inflamed by any one of the passions such as lust speaks before the court should all be reduced to writing on a wooden board or some similar material with the word 'yes'.

130-131. He (the plaintiff) should delete superfluous (or unnecessary) matters (from the plaint) and should fill in gaps. He can set forth on the floor (additional matters or delete them) till the (form of) the plaint is finally fixed. The judge should have the plaint written down on a board with chalk as narrated naturally (by the plaintiff) and then on a leaf (or paper) when it is corrected.

132. He (the scribe) who writes down the words of the plaintiff or the defendant differently from what they narrate should be punished as a thief by the king who desires to enforce dharmā.

133. He (the plaintiff) should get (time for setting out his plaint) till it can be drawn out of him or for three or seven 129 'Rāgādīnām' refers to rāga (sexual desire), krodha (wrath or anger), and lobha (greed), or as Sar. says to rāga (partiality or love), dveṣa (hatred), lobha and moha. 'Karaṇa' means 'adhikaraṇa' (hall of justice). This rule requires the scribe of the court to put down in writing whatever specially important circumstance a plaintiff lets out in a moment of passion. An instance in point is the remark of the Śākara in the Mṛcchakaṭika where he adds 'na mayā.' This verse is also the same as Nār. (p. 27 v. 18).

130-131 These verses provide for the amendment or striking out of unnecessary, embarrassing or scandalous matters from the plaint. Compare Civil Pro. Code, Order VI rules 5, 16, 17. The word 'bhūmau' also includes 'wooden board etc.' on which the plaint is written. At first the plaint should be written on the ground or a board as a draft and after amendments and striking out, the final plaint is to be inscribed as a court document on birch bark or palm-leaf or paper. Compare Br. p. 292 verses 14-15. Amendments were to be allowed until the defendant filed his reply. Vide Nār. p. 25 v. 7. 'Narrated naturally' means 'without fear or pressure from the judge or assessors etc.'

133 This and 135 contain exceptions to the general rule that plaintiff should get no time from the court to set out his plaint, since the plaintiff comes to court after well considering the strength of his case and determined to prosecute it; compare नारदं सुनिश्चितं लक्षणं स्वस्वार्थं स्वार्थप्रचोदितं लेख्ये पूर्ववाद् तु कृतकार्यविनिश्चयोऽपि (quoted in व्य. मा. p. 290) and Nār. p. 24 v. 1. कौटिल्य also says कृतकार्यविनिश्चयो हि अभियोजनं नाभियुक्तं (p. 149). 'Sollekhanam' days so that the man who wants to narrate his dispute collects his wits.

134. Since he (the plaintiff) makes his resolve (to file the suit) a long time after the cause of action arises, therefore he does not get time (after coming to the court), but the opponent gets time (to file his reply).

135. Where in a suit the wits of the plaintiff or defendant desirous of (prosecuting) his claim forsake him, there time should be granted to both plaintiff and defendant.

(Defects of a plaint)

136. The plaint that is opposed to (the interests or usages of) the country, that is prohibited by the king, that contains a mixture of several titles of law, does not succeed (i. e. must be rejected as bad).

137. A king, from a desire to find out the truth, should certainly entertain even such a cause as contains many pro-makes no clear sense. So it would be better to read 'श्रो लेखन' (meaning writing down the next day '. Nārada has the verse 'श्रो लेखनं वा स लभेत् अहं सप्तादमेव वा । अर्थो तृतीयपदे तु युक्तं सद्यो घृवं जयी ॥' (vide Nār. p. 24 v. 3). But the first half of that verse in the context refers to the defendant's getting time. '

134 The Vy. Māt. (p. 290) says that Kāt. here simply explains the two words सुनिश्चितवशयन्तः and तृकयंविनिश्चयः in Nār., quoted under the last verse, which are adjectives (qualifying the noun plaintiff) that contain the reason why plaintiff after he comes to court should be allowed no adjournment to present his plaint.

136 Compare Br p. 291 v. 13 and Nār. p. 26 v. 12. Apar. says that a king's order 'in my kingdom there should be no dealing in rupees' is an example of what is prohibited. A plaint saying 'defendant stole my gold, I deposited a thousand drammas with him, he sold a cow to me without being its owner' is an example where several padas (titles of law), viz. 'steya', 'nikṣepa' and 'asvāmi-vikraya' are mixed up. This would cause confusion if they were to be all investigated at the same time, as the evidence in each case and the burden of proof would vary. Therefore these several titles should be investigated at different times. Vide Civil Pro. Code order II rules 4 and 6. The words 'bhāṣā', 'pakṣa' and 'pratijñā' mean the same thing, as the Mit. on Yāj. II. 6 says:

137 This rule is not opposed to the preceding. It can be explained in two ways. If several causes of action (such as recovery of debt, deposit, sale without ownership) are mixed up in a plaint, the king may accept it and investigate them at different times. Or the verse may mean that the cause of action (such as ṛṇādāna) may be the same, but the several positions and as is stated definitely so far as judicial requirements are concerned.

138. That plaint is regarded as unacceptable which lacks (the mention of) the time and place (of the cause of action), that omits the (statement of the) material (dravya) claimed or the amount and that is wanting in the dimensions of the thing claimed.

139. The plaint of that man who does not write down that the opponent does not wish to do what is just or that he does what is unlawful does not stand (or bear fruit).

140. He (the king) should abandon (not entertain) a plaint as vitiated that contains an unknown (or imaginary) grievance, that discloses no injury, that contains letters making items in it may be different and so the reliefs may be different (e.g. as Apar. says, a plaint may assert that defendant borrowed a hundred gold coins in Benares, purchased a year afterwards some cloth and then in another place purchased cows or corn). Such a plaint is not bad.

138 Compare Nār. p. 26 v 11.

140 The Vy. Māt. (p. 295) notes that Br. had almost this very verse (Br. read 'sadoṣam ca' for 'nirābādham' and 'pakṣaṁ rājā vivarjayet') and quotes five verses from Br. to explain these six. There is no agreement among the writers on the meaning and examples of these. According to Apar. and Mit. the example of 'aprasiddha' is 'my hare's horn has been taken away by the defendant,' while according to Brhaspati 'aprasiddha' is that grievance which was never asserted by anybody and the Vir. notices this example and says that it would be an example of 'asādhya' according to Br. and gives 'defendant stole my field drawn by a thousand ploughs' as a proper example. The Vy. Māt. criticizes this and the other examples given by the Mit. and Apar. as opposed to śāstra. An example of 'disclosing no injury' is 'defendant carries on his work by the light of the lamp in my house.' According to Mit. and Apar. a plaint containing the letters 'ka, ca, ṭa, ta, pa' is incoherent. Br. gives two meanings of 'nirartha,' viz. 'where the injury is so slight that no man of ordinary temper would complain about it' (compare sec. 95 of the Indian Penal Code) and the example would be 'he looked at me with a smile.' Another meaning is 'a plaint that contains no information that can be brought under the fourteen titles of law beginning with ṛṇādāna that are based on money (i.e. civil actions)'. An example of 'niṣprayojana' is 'he sing sweetly near my house.' Br. accepts this meaning and gives another, viz. 'a plaint which does not contain information that can be brought under any of the four criminal titles of law' (such as pāruṣya, sāhasa &c.). An example of 'asādhya' according to Mit. it was; ridiculed by Devadatta with the knitting of his brows.' Wis-no coherent sense, that gives no cause of action, that is in capable of proof and that is self-contradictory.

141. Those cognisant of (the true nature of) a plaint declare that to be a proper plaint which is free from the faults of a declaration, which is capable of proof, possessed of good reasons, definite and not self-contradictory.

142. (The plaint should be) concise in words, abounding in meaning (contents), unambiguous, not self-contradictory, free from arguments that would defeat it and capable of refuting opposite arguments.

143. When the plaintiff presents a plaint as described above, then the defendant should give his reply corresponding to the (contents of the) plaint.

144. If a statement, being asserted by the plaintiff in the hearing of the defendant, is not traversed (by the defendant) or if the defendant remains silent when he should have given (a reply), it (should be held by the court that it) is admitted (by the defendant).

nesses can hardly be found to prove this, nor can there be any writing and as it is a slight matter ordeals are inappropriate. According to Br. 'hare's horn is stolen' would be an example of 'asādhya.' An example of 'self-contradictory' would be 'I was cursed by the dumb man'; while Br. explains 'viruddha' to mean 'opposed to the interests of the country, the capital or the king.'

141 The Vy. Māt. has a lengthy disquisition on this verse, particularly on the first half. In Sanskrit logic pratijñā, pakṣa, and sādhyā are words sharply distinguished from each other, while here in this verse they appear to be practically identical. Vide my notes on V. M. p. 26. Nārada declares 'pratijñā' to be the essence of all judicial proceedings (Nār. p. 6 v 6). If the plaintiff changes his pleading, he loses ; similarly his assertions in the plaint must not be opposed to common experience or pratyakṣa or self-contradictory. The faults of pratijñā are enumerated in Vy. Māt. as follows ; प्रतिज्ञादूषणानि च परस्परविरुद्धार्थ-पदप्रयोग-प्रतिज्ञान्तरकरण-प्रतिज्ञाहानि—प्रतिज्ञासंन्यासाश्रयासिद्धि—धर्मिग्राहकप्रमाणवि-रोध-विरोधिधर्मान्तरग्राहकप्रमाणबाधितत्वादिति । 'प्रतिज्ञाहानिसंन्यासाद्विरोधान्तराणि च । प्रतिज्ञादोषमध्ये किं वसन्त्येतानि नोचिस्म ॥' इति (p. 292). The words 'capable of &c.' mean that the plaint should anticipate such pleas as limitation, res judicata and state how they would not affect him.

142 Compare Civil Pro. Code, order, VI rules 1 and 7.

144 Compare Civil Pro. Code Order VIII rule 5.

(Whether the defendant's reply must be given at once or after some time).

145. If, after hearing the matter (the plaint) consigned to writing, the defendant for some (proper) reason requests for time in the suit, it should certainly be given to him.

146. (The reply should be given) at once or in one day or three or five days according to the importance (of the matter in dispute). He (the defendant) should get three fortnights or a week in (suits for recovery of) debts and similar causes.

147. The king should grant little or long time to the defendant looking to the time (of the transaction in dispute), the capacity (of the parties) and the gravity or slightness of the causes.

148. Time should be granted (to the defendant to file his reply), viz. a day, a month or a fortnight, or a season (two months) or even a year or even beyond that according to the requirements of the importance or otherwise of the cause.

149. Where the value (of the thing in dispute) would deteriorate or there would be destruction or loss (of the thing), there no time should be given (for a reply) since the matter is urgent (lit. ending in total loss).

150-151. In (disputes about) cows, bulls, fields, women, marriage, deposit, loans (of things for use), gifts, purchase and sale, violating a maiden, theft, quarrels (pārusya), wrongs attended with force, treasure, deceit, perjury, (the king) should make (the defendant) reply at once.

152. (The king) should make (the defendant) reply quickly even at an unusual time in disputes about crimes attended with force, theft, pārusya (abuse, assault and battery), cows, accusations (of having committed grave sins), urgent matters, land. (Thus says) Brhaspati.

147 Verses 154-155 explain what time to file a reply is to be granted in accordance with the time of the transaction in dispute; while verses 156-158 refer to time given according to capacity and verse 148 determines the time according to gravity of the cause.

148 Compare Br. p. 293 v. 6.

149 For the meaning of 'ātyayika' compare 'atyaye' below in verse 152.

152 Compare Yāj. II. 12 and Nār. p. 17 v. 45 for a very similar verse.

Atyaya' means 'loss of life or destruction of the thing in dispute.' 'At an unusual time' means 'even at night.'

153. As regards causes (or transactions) that arise at once the king (or judge) should make (the defendant) file his reply at once or he may give time to the defendant in causes which arose a long time ago.

154-156. When the transaction is recent (the reply must be made) at once, when it is a month old, a day may be granted (for filing the reply), when it is six years old, three days, when it is twelve years old seven days may be given, when twenty years old, he (the defendant) should get (a delay of) twenty days or half a month, when thirty years old a month, beyond that (i. e. when more than 30 years old) the time may be three fortnights ; or (the king) may himself grant as he wishes any time short of one year ; (he may grant) a year to those who are idiots or lunatics or overwhelmed with disease.

157-158. Where (the defendant) has gone to another land or if the whereabouts of the subject-matter (of dispute) are not known, or the vendor of a thing or the witnesses are staying in a foreign land, there time should be granted to men (defendants) till they return to their country. Even when once time (or adjournment) has been granted, it may have to be given again looking to the importance of the cause.

159. After that (i. e. after the plaintiff has finally completed his plaint) the opponent who has heard the contents of the plaint should narrate (to the court) his reply corresponding to the contents of the plaint.

160. If a person (the defendant) does not present himself when a decision has to be given on usages, the gift (or return) of money, desirable actions and service (or worship of deities), then (the king) should not cause an error (in the decision by deciding in defendant's absence).

157 'Mūla' means ' the person from whom a thing is bought ' in cases where another man claims ownership over it. Vide Vir. p. 379.

160 The sense of the first half is not quite clear; 'chala' means 'mistake or mistaken utterance.' Compare Yāj. II. 19 'छलं निरस्य भूतेन व्यवहारान्नयेन्तृपः।' and Nār. p. 13 verse 29 'it may be founded on truth or on error etc.'

161. If at that time (when defendant has to give a reply) there is an obstacle due to fate or the king, he (the defendant) is not defeated (in the suit) merely by his not challenging (the plaintiff's assertions) or his giving up (his defence).

162. (The defendant) should establish the defects (i. e. calamities) due to fate and king by means of witnesses; but (the defendant) who acts crookedly (perversely) should be made to pay a fine equal to the money (in dispute).

163. The opponent (lit. the person attacked) should (not) deliver a counter-attack against the plaintiff in any matter except in cases of assault and battery, theft, adultery, and urgent matters.

164. The king should cause (the defendant) to give a reply according to the requirements of justice after paying regard to whatever rules of practice have been handed down traditionally in matters (of dispute).

(Reply of four kinds)

165. A reply may be of four kinds, viz. admission of the truth (of the plaint), denial, a special plea, and the rule of former judgment (or res judicata).

166. If the opponent on hearing the contents of the

161. ' Daivarajakṛto doṣaḥ ' means ' interference due to an act of God or the king's action (act state), i. e. irresistible force. Compare Br. p. 295 v. 9.

162. " Crookedly &c. " means ' if the defendant absents himself without there being any difficulty due to act of God or king, a decree ex parte should be passed against him and he should be fined. '

163. The proper reading seems to be अभियोक्तारं नाभियुज्जीत. The reading in the text would be opposed to Yāj. II. 9. ' अभियोगमनिर्स्तीर्य नैनं प्रत्यभियोजयेत्. कुर्वाप्रत्यभियोगं च कलहे साहसेषु च ।, कौटिल्य (III. 1 p. 149); अभियुक्तो न प्रत्यभियुज्जीत अन्यत्र कलहसाहसार्थसमवायेभ्यः ' and Nār. (p. 19 verse 55) For ' Atyaya ' vide verse 152. Compare Civil Pro. Code order VIII. r. 6. The idea of this verse is that defendant should not be allowed to demand by his reply an independent claim that does not arise out of the same cause of action or transaction as that in the plaint. For such a claim he will have to file a separate suit. But if plaintiff alleges assault by the defendant, the latter can allege prior assault on himself by plaintiff.

165. Compare Nār. p. 25 v. 4 and Br. p. 294 v. 9.

plaint denies them either in express words or by implication that is a reply of denial.

167. If the opponent were to deny the cause of action, (contained in the plaint) that should be understood in judicial procedure as the reply of denial.

168. Declaration of the truth of the claim (in the plaint) is said to be (reply of) admission.

169. A reply of denial is of four sorts (i. e. put in any one of the following forms of expression), viz. 'this is false,' 'I don't know anything about this,' 'I was not then present there' (at the transaction mentioned in the plaint), 'I was not born at the time (of the transaction in plaint)'.

170. If the defendant, accepting the matters set out by the plaintiff as correct, sets up a plea, then Bṛhaspati declared that the plaint becomes weak (i. e. fails).

171. That is declared to be (a reply of) former judgment when a person, though defeated (lit. sunk) in a (former) proceeding, again causes (a plaint) to be written and is addressed (answered) with the words 'you were formerly defeated.'

172. (The reply of) former judgment is of three sorts (when the defendant says) 'I shall establish by means of the presiding judges or witnesses or a document that he (the plaintiff) was defeated by me formerly.'

167 The Vy. Māt. p. 301 ascribes this verse to Bṛhaspati.

168 The reply of confession or admission is variously named 'satyottara,' or 'sampratipattyuttara.'

169 This is practically the same as Nār. p. 25 v. 5.

170 Vir. reads 'Bhṛgu said,' 'Adharya' means 'weakness of the plaint.' The Par. M. (III. p. 72) ascribes the verse to Bṛhaspati. Read वृत्. मा. for भृ. मा. in the footnote. An example of kāranottara or pratyavaskandanottara is where the plaintiff says that defendant took hundred rupees and the defendant replies either that he returned them or that they were gifted to him. The reading 'Bhṛgu' of Vir. seems to be an emendation purposely made and Kātyāyana appears to have taken three quarters from Br. and substituted 'adharyam etc.' for 'pratyavaskandan tu tat' of Br.

172 A plea of former judgment could be established in three ways, viz. citing the judges who decided the former case, by witnesses who knew of the decision or by means of a document (the written judgment in the former case).

(Defective answers or defects in answers)

173-174. A reply, that is ununderstandable, or self-contradictory, incomplete, too wide, dubious, impossible, not clear, irrelevant, full of the fault of exaggeration, that does not thoroughly meet (all the points of the plaint), that interrupts the plaintiff in stating his plaint, mysterious, making no sense, unconstruable without further exposition, unreasonable (or absurd) is not commended by the wise. That reply which interrupts the plaintiff in setting out the plaint, that does not thoroughly meet (all the points in the plaint), that is mysterious or makes no sense, that is unconstruable without further exposition and that is unreasonable, does not conduce to one's success.

176. That reply is ununderstandable which is narrated by one who does not know the peculiar marks (of the matter in dispute, such as the colour of a cow) or the figure (having long horns &c.) or the number (such as a thousand) or the particular convention (or times of the matter in dispute) or is narrated in a language other (than the one known to the judge or assessors).

177. That reply should be regarded as self-contradictory when (a defendant) says thus ' I returned in my boyhood (plaintiff's dues) and (again says) ' I did not return '.

173-175 Here again the terms are differently explained by different writers. Vide notes to V. M. pp. 28-29. Besides verses 174-175 seem to be only different readings current in different localities. All the terms, except a few, are explained by Kāt, himself in verses 176-186. Compare Br. p. 293 v. 8. An example of an impossible reply is where a person of 20 says ' my grandson returned the debt'. Vir. explains 'not clear' as meaning one of which even the letters cannot be easily made out. An example of ' full of exaggeration' given by the Sm. C. and Parāśaramādhaviya is, when the plaint asserts ' defendant has to pay me a hundred' the defendant's reply is ' I paid two hundred.'

176. The explanation of the first half is in accordance with the Parāśaramādhaviya.

177. According to the Mit. (on Yāj. II. 6) and Apar. ' akula ' in verse 175 means the same thing as ' viruddha.' The example of ' akula ' given by the Mit. is where, when the plaintiff charges defendant with a hundred suvarṇas, the defendant replies that he took them but does not owe them to the plaintiff.

178. That is said to be an incomplete reply where (a defendant) for saying ' this plaintiff was formerly defeated by me in this very matter ' only says ' he was formerly by me '.

179. That reply is too wide when (in a reply of admission) having to say ' I took ' (as alleged in the plaint), the defendant says, ' I have carried out what was to be done ' and then adds ' I formerly took the property or money (alleged). '

180. The wise hold that the reply is ambiguous in a judicial proceeding when instead of replying ' deyam mayā ' (' it has to be returned by me ') he gives such a reply as ' mayā deyam ' (which means both ' it has to be given by me or it has not to be &c.).

181. That is declared to be an irrelevant reply where (the defendant says that) the plaintiff either through strength or weakness formerly concealed a crime attended with force; this is regarded as unsaid (i. e. as no reply).

182. That reply is said to be not meeting thoroughly (the plaint) when to a plaint averring ' I gave to him a thousand and a half ' the answer given is ' that half I returned '.

178. Here the defendant omits the important word ' defeated ' and hence the reply is incomplete. The Mit. and Apar. say that the example is where in a plaint charging a debt of one hundred the defendant says ' Yes. I owe five. '

179. The Mit. says that an instance of a ' too wide ' reply is where, when the plaint avers a debt of one hundred, the defendant replies he owes two hundred.

180. The expression ' mayādeyam ' may be read as ' mayā deyam ' or as ' mayā adeyam ' owing to ' avagraha. '

181. ' balābalena ' may also mean ' very strong ' on the analogy of such words as ' carācara, ' ' calācala ' ' patāpata, ' ' vadāvada. ' The defendant in this avoids replying to the substance of the plaint and only puts forth something about the bad character of the plaintiff. Compare section 52 of the Indian Evidence Act which says that proof of character is irrelevant in civil proceedings and section 54 about the character of the accused in criminal proceedings.

182. An example of ' avyāpi ' (which is the same as ' avyāpaka ') is according to Apar. where the plaint says ' he took a hundred in Ujjain in the month of Caitra ' and the defendant replies that he did not take in Ujjain in Caitra. This is an evasive reply. He must say he never received anything from plaintiff. Compare Civil Pro. Code, Order VIII. rule 4.

183. That reply is said to interrupt the (plaintiff's) words where, before the plaintiff has completely set forth his plaint, (the defendant replies) ' I did not formerly take (from him) '.

184. That reply is said to be mysterious in judicial proceedings when the reply is ' how will anyone give a red lotus that he (plaintiff) did not accept ? '.

185. Those who know the (principles about) replies regard that reply as making no sense when it is put in the form ' Is it always to be given by him alone ? It may be given by me ' (or is it always not to be &c.).

183. ' Vyastapada ' is differently explained by Mit. as meaning ' that sets forth a different title of law ' and the example given is when plaintiff avers that defendant owes a debt of a hundred the defendant replies that plaintiff kicked him. Here ' title ' alleged is ' ṛpadāna ; but the reply contains the title ' ' daṇḍapāruṣya . ' The Vyavahāra-tattva notes that Bhavadeva read ' astavyastapadavyāpi ' and explained it as meaning ' full of words having no connected meaning . ' This would be somewhat like ' ākula . ' Vide Vir. p. 85 also.

184. The idea is : defendant meant to say that he offered back the red lotus to the plaintiff but he did not receive it and so he could not return it. He does not expressly say so, but puts forth his reply in the form of a question and in a way that is not clear. Besides the word ' tamarasa ' was not well known, not being universally used and being a word borrowed from Mlecchas. Vide Śabara's Bhāṣya on Jaimini I. 3. 10. This is the explanation of the Parāśaramādhaviya (III. p. 75). The S. m. C. appears to take it differently. The defendant really meant to say ' I did not take a red lotus from you and therefore I do not give it back . ' The Mit. explains ' nigūḍhārtha ' as containing an innuendo against the judge or assessors or the plaintiff e. g. when plaintiff says ' he owes me a hundred ' and defendant replies ' do I alone owe to him ' (suggesting that even the judge and sabbhyas owe to him). Apar. explains it as meaning ' containing words the meaning of which is not well known ' and gives ' arjuni ' (in the sense of cow) and kāśyapī (the earth) as instances.

185. The first half contains a question and the answer is doubtful, depending as it does upon the tone in which it is uttered. Besides ' sadā-deyam ' and ' mayā deyam ' are ambiguous, as we may separate the words into ' sādā deyam ' and ' sadā adeyam '. Vide note on 177 for the meaning of ' ākula ' given by the Mit.

186. That reply, which is in the form 'crows have teeth' though (as a matter of fact) crows have no teeth is called 'asāra' (absurd); in truth it is not a good reply.

187. (A reply) that falls short of the matter in dispute, that is not clear, that is incomplete or too wide or unconnected; or not thoroughly covering (the points of the plaint), that is absurd or dubious, cannot traverse (defeat) the opponent (the plaint here).

188. That can never be a (proper) reply which is ambiguous, irrelevant, incomplete, too wide, covering only a part of the plaint.

189. That is not a (proper) reply which is a reply of admission as to a portion of the plaint, and a reply of a special plea as to another part (count in the plaint) and is also a reply of denial as regards another portion, since there is a blending (of several kinds of reply).

190. In one and the same proceeding, the burden of proof cannot rest upon both the parties (at the same time) nor can both succeed in (simultaneously) establishing what

186. The Mit. says 'asāram' means opposed to reason or common sense and gives the instance; where plaint avers that defendant borrowed a hundred rupees at interest, paid the interest but not the principal and the defendant replies that he paid the interest but never took the loan.

187. The reading is probably 'prastutād-anyad' for 'alpaṃ' and it would mean 'irrelevant.'

189. If there is blending of several kinds of reply at the same time, it is an उत्तराभास and not a proper उत्तर. This is the view of Kāt. The reasons are given in the following verse. But if the various kinds are not investigated at the same time, there is no defect.

190. For a detailed explanation of this verse, vide my notes to V. M. pp. 23-35. 'Kriyā,' as Kāt. himself explains in verse 216 below, means 'means of proof such as witness, documents etc' and it also means 'burden of proof.' In a reply of denial the burden is on the plaintiff, in a reply of special plea or former judgment it is on the defendant, in a reply of admission there is no necessity to adduce proof. If a reply is a combination of denial and special plea (or res judicata), the burden of proof will be on both parties. But plaintiff and defendant cannot simultaneously proceed to discharge the burden. This is stated in the first half. If both parties cannot be allowed to discharge the burden of proof simultaneously, they cannot both succeed at the same time. This is set forth in the words 'na cārthasiddhirubhayoh.' If a defendant combines a they desire to prove nor can two methods of proof be employed (simultaneously) in the same proceeding.

(Matters that cause failure in litigation)

191. If (the defendant) after accepting what is first stated (by the plaintiff) were to set forth in his reply a plea stronger (than the averments in the plaint), then the latter (the plea) has to be established (by evidence) and not the former (viz. the averments in the plaint),

192. (The defendant) should give a reply corresponding with the matter (alleged in the plaint); (the king or judge) should, if he does not (voluntarily) give a reply, compel him to give it by means of such methods as coaxing, deceitful tricks &c. till the object (viz. the giving of a reply and finding out the truth) is accomplished.

193. If any matter is not alleged by the plaintiff (in the plaint) either through oversight or fraud, but is given out in reply of a special plea with a reply of former judgment, they have to be proved by means of different evidence. For example, where plaintiff avers ' he owes me a hundred suvarṇas and rupees ' and the defendant replies ' the suvarṇas were returned and as to the rupees there is a former judgment,' the fact of the return is to be proved by witnesses or by a receipt (or other document), while the judgment has to be proved by producing the jayupatra or citing the judges as witnesses. The means to prove the special plea will not prove the former judgment and vice versa. Hence a simultaneous reply of special plea and former judgment is not proper as two different means of proof will have to be simultaneously employed. This is set out in the words ' na caikatra kriyādvayam. '

191. This only means that in a ' kāraṇottara ' (reply of special plea) the onus of proof is on the defendant. Compare verse 170 above

192 The four-well known means are : sāma, dāna, bheda and danḍa. They are defined by Hārita as ' प्रियपूर्व वचः साम भेदस्तु भय दर्शनम् । अर्थापकर्षणं दानं दण्डस्ताडनबन्धनम् ॥ ' (quoted in Sm. C. III. p. 104). The same work quotes a verse of Vasiṣṭha enumerating seven means ' कौटिल्यं सामभेदौ च दण्डश्चेति चतुष्टयम् । मायोपेक्षेन्द्रजालानि सप्तोपायाः प्रकीर्तिताः ॥

193 While the reply is in course of being given, if the plaintiff alleges any matters in addition to those stated in the plaint, the plaintiff may be allowed to do so and the defendant's reply to the additional

the midst of the reply, then it should be accepted (by the judge) so far as both (the plaintiff and defendant) are concerned.

194 When a defendant, though urged by the (four) methods, would not give a reply, he should be regarded as defeated after seven days have expired and should give (to the plaintiff what he claims).

195 If a person, after lodging a plaint, abandons (his original claim) or puts forward a different one he (must be deemed to have) resorted to a totally different case. Such a plaintiff becomes a losing party.

196. If a person, who having made an attack or charge against another, (afterwards) says ' I did not put forward any dispute' (against him), he thus becomes one who speaks contradictory things ; (the judge) should direct him also to be a losing party.

197. That plaintiff, who having caused (his plaint) to be written (on paper or a leaf) desires to subtract sentences from it or to add them to it, would become a losing party. He does not deserve to be the plaintiff.

matters may also be accepted. This implies that after the reply is completely set out, the plaintiff cannot add any thing. This is expressly stated in verse 206. Compare Civil Pro. Code, Order VI r. 17 and Order VIII rule 9.

194. Compare Order VIII rule 10 and order IX r. 6. Vide also Kauṭ. (text p. 149) and translation p. 190 ' the defendant may be allowed three or seven days etc. '

195. Compare Nār. p. 19 v. 56 and p. 29 v. 24 and Yāj. II. 9. The V. M. notes that such a plaintiff becomes liable to be fined, but does not altogether lose his cause if it is of a civil nature (text p. 19). For the fine in such a case vide verse 202 below. Kauṭ. also enumerates (p. 149) many causes of Parokṭa the first of which is ' forsaking the point first set out, he goes over to another. '

197. The Sm. C. explains that as long as the plaint is written only on the ground with chalk etc. the plaintiff is allowed to add to or subtract from it (vide verse 193 above) and that this verse applies only when the reply has been fully set out. If he adds or subtracts while the reply is being given he is only to be fined, but does not lose his case altogether,

198 The wise hold that the members of the court (sa-bhyas) and witnesses are (called) ' kriyā . ' He is styled ' kriyādveṣī ' (shunning judicial investigation) who through ignorance (or infatuation) hates (or avoids) that ' kriyā . '

199. (A litigant) if he does not present himself (before the court) after he is summoned, he loses his cause at once.

200. If a litigant even when asked ' speak out does not say anything (remains silent) he deserves to be at once confined (in jail). The next day that foolish person should be understood to have become a losing party.

201. Where he (a litigant) desires to obtain a long time (a long delay or adjournment) merely under a pretext, that should be regarded as deceitful and is declared to be a reason leading to loss of the cause.

202. One who changes his pleading should be fined five paṇas, one shunning judicial investigation should be fined ten paṇas, one failing to appear twelve paṇas, one who remains silent sixteen and one who absconds after receiving summons twenty paṇas.

198. According to Nār. p.31 v.33 there are five classes of persons who may be called ' hīnavādī ' (cast out in their pending suit) viz. ' anyavādī ', ' kriyādveṣī ', ' nopasthātā ', ' niruttara ' and ' āhūtaprapalāyī '. Verses 195-197 illustrate the first. This verse illustrates the second. Verse 202 lays down the fines for each of these. Vide Br. p. 295 v. 5 for four kinds of hīnavādī.

199. This speaks of ' nopasthātā ' of Nārada ; compare Order IX rules 3, 6, 8.

200 This explains ' niruttara . '

202 The Sm. C. explains that Nār. enumerates five ' hīnavādīs ' to show that each succeeding should be fined more heavily and not because there are only five kinds, since there are other kinds also. Vide Nār p. 31 v. 33 for these five terms. Br. (p. 295 v. 5) mentions four kinds of hīnavādīs, two of whom ' the silent ' and ' absconder ' are the same as in Nār., but two others ' sākṣi -- parājita ' (convicted by witnesses) and ' confessing ' are different. These five classes of hīnavādīs, though liable to fine do not lose their civil claims, as Nār. says ' a verbal error does not annul the claim in actions of any kind ; so if the case relates to cattle or to a woman or to land or to debt he is liable to punishment but his claim is not annulled. ' The latter half only illustrates civil disputes. Vide Mit. on Yāj. II. 19 and Manu VIII. 53-56 for hīnavādīs. Vide also Kauṭ. text p. 149

203. The king should punish (fine) him who, though thrice summoned, does not come (to court) or absconds though summoned and allows five days to pass (without appearing before the court).

204. Where (a litigant) divides (induces to be partial) even a single one out of the members of the court that have listened to the trial and where he offers a bribe to the opponent he must be indicated as a losing party.

205. In a civil dispute if a litigant himself threatens (the other side) or offers a bribe to him or threatens him through another or restrains him, in these cases the litigant becomes hina (i. e. a losing party or is cast off).

206. (The hinavādī) should be fined in accordance with the offence charged and no opportunity is to be given for litigating the same matter again; when the averments of both (plaintiff and defendant) have been written down and the consideration of the dispute (by the members of the court) has started, whoever then adds what is improper is cast off from his claim.

207. He, who after announcing his witnesses, does not bring them (before the court) at the trial at his sweet will that litigant in consequence of this loses after thirty days.

205 Vir. and Sm. C. ascribe this verse to Br. The same results follow whether these causes occur singly or cumulatively.

206 The first half here refers to criminal disputes as explained by the Vir. (p. 101) which ascribes the first line to Brhaspati. The last two lines mean that he loses his claim altogether, if he makes a case not in keeping with what he stated in the plaint after the judges have begun to consider the matter. Compare Yāj. II. 16. The reading 'anuktam' of Apar. means if he avers what was not said in the plaint, which means practically the same thing as above.

207 'At his sweet will'-this means 'not being prevented by fate, or the king or some other irresistible force.' Br. (p. 295 v. 7) has almost the same verse साक्षिणस्तु समुद्दिश्य यस्तु तान्न विवादयेत् । त्रिशद्रात्रात् त्रिपक्षाद्वा तस्य हानिः प्रजायते ॥ (स्मृतिच. III. p. 110). Vide also Br. p. 295 verses 8-9 for ate or King.

208. If a man has been defeated because he filed no reply through having absconded or because he resorted to a different case (from the one in the plaint), his cause may again be tried, but not of him who is defeated in accordance with texts laying down that result (viz. irrevocable loss of the cause).

209. The wise declare a retrial of the cause for him who was defeated in accordance with texts speaking of a ' hīna ' (losing or cast off) litigant; but there is no retrial for him who is defeated in accordance with texts that lay down (in express words) the loss (of the matter in dispute).

210. Those (litigants) who after informing (the king) are won over by money and compromise (their dispute) by a private arrangement would be liable to a double fine, since they thereby cheat the king.

(The stage of the adducing of proof.)

211. Even the plaint reaches the position of being the reply when there is a special plea (raised in the reply); hence it is declared that in such a case the adducing of proof must be

208 The first part means that if he can sustain his case on other sound grounds, a litigant, who has his cause cast out for absence, or for change of pleading, can demand that the case may be heard. But if he is guilty of conduct which has been declared by express texts to entail irrevocable defeat (such as in verse 206) then he cannot have a retrial. Compare Nar. p. 34 verses 40-41

209 Compare Civil Pro. Code Order IX. rules 4, 9 that provide for setting aside the dismissal of a suit and rule 13 that provides for setting an ex parte decree aside.

210 The Vir. (p. 104) explains that they would have each to pay a fine double of that imposed on a party defeated after a contest and not double of the property in dispute, since the rule would be inapplicable to criminal and other cases where there is no property in dispute. But if the king is informed or if a matter is compromised with his permission, there is no fine. Vide Br. pp. 285-296 v 10 for a very similar verse where Dr. Jolly's translation ' to pay twice the amount (in dispute) as a fine ' is not correct. Vide Br. p. 296 v. 11-12 for compromise with king's permission.

211 The idea is that when in a reply of kāraṇottara, otherwise called pratyavaskandana, the defendant admits the facts in the plaint and raises a special plea, the plaint really becomes the reply and the reply (i. e. the special plea) becomes the claim (pūrvapakṣa) and it is directed towards the establishing of what then becomes the claim (viz., the special plea).

212. When (the plea) after being properly amended is written down in this way and when a reply free from defects has been given, it is necessary that the defendant or the plaintiff should take up the adducing of proof.

213. That is (styled) sādhya (the claim to be established) which the plaintiff himself proposes to clearly establish and that is (styled) sādhana (means of proof) by which the entire claim (of the litigant) is established.

(Means of proof and their relative strength)

214. Documents, witnesses, enjoyment (or possession) these three are known as means of proof. Reasoning is the consideration of certain characteristics which cannot be explained otherwise (than on the hypothesis propounded) and there are ordeals of poison and the like.

the defendant who has to begin to establish his special plea (i. e. the onus probandi as to the plea is on the defendant) and the plaintiff has not to prove his allegations of fact, since they are admitted. Compare Nār. p. 31. v. 31. The Vir. (pp. 79-81) has an elaborate note on this verse, in which the varying interpretations of this verse read with the texts of other sages given by Pradīpa, Vācaspati-miśra and Raghunandana are considered. According to the second writer a plea is either stronger than the plaintiff or of equal strength or weaker and that in the case of the first kind of plea (stronger than the plaintiff) the burden of proof is on the defendant, while in the other two kinds, the burden of proof is on the defendant. The Vir. does not accept the threefold division of the special plea and adheres to the general propositions laid down in Nārada and Vyāsa that in a reply of special plea or res judicata the burden is always on the defendant and that in a reply of refusal the burden is on the plaintiff. Compare Br. p. 297 v. 20 for burden of proof.

212. In some cases (as stated in the previous note) the burden is on the defendant and in others on the plaintiff. Compare Br. p. 294 v. 2 and Yaj. II. 7 and also बृहस्पति, “ये तु तिष्ठन्ति वरणे तेषां सत्यैर्विभावता । अथ द्विस्त्रोत्तरं स्यद्वा तद्वैकस्य वादिनः ॥” quoted in स्मृतिचं. III. p. 113. The deliberation of the court as to on whom the burden of proof lies is called pratyakulita by some, while Nār. p. 29 v. 21 seems to style the additional statements of plaintiff and defendant pratyakulita (वादिष्वपि निवेदितं कथं चतुर्नवादिना स्मृतम् । तत् प्रत्यकलितं नाम स्वपादे तस्य लिख्ये ॥)

213. ‘लक्षद्विस्तु युक्तः स्याद्’ is explained by Vir. as translated above.

214. For the means of proof compare Yaj. II. 22. Vasiṣṭha XVI 10 contains the first half.

215. When the plaint has been completely written down in proper words, the plaintiff should establish by proof (his claim) after the third stage.

216. The matter to be accomplished is called 'sādhyā' and the 'means' are styled 'kriyā'. The latter (i. e. means of proof) are twofold, viz. divine and human ; human (means of proof) are documents, witnesses and the like and divine (means of proof) are the balance and the like.

217. A wise man should avoid, when witnesses can be had, the divine means (of proof). (A litigant) who employs divine means (of proof) when witnesses are available, becomes a losing party on that account.

218. If one (party to the litigation) puts forth human (means of proof) while the other (party) puts forth divine means, then the king should accept human means of proof and not divine.

219. When men dispute, if there be human means of proof though only reaching a portion (of the allegations in the plaint), then the human means should be accepted and not divine means, though they may be complete (i. e. completely cover all the allegations).

215. Vide verse 31 and notes thereon for the four stages of a judicial proceeding. The Sm. C. takes (III. p. 124) the word 'likhita' to mean 'reply'.

216. We must read 'dhatādir' for 'vadhādir'. The first two lines are ascribed to Vyāsa by Sm. C. (III. p. 124) and Vir. (p. 111.). Compare Nār. p. 30 v. 28 where we have धटादिदैविकी मृता and Brhaspati ' द्विप्रकारा क्रिया प्रोक्ता मानुषी दैविकी तथा । एकैकानेकधा भिन्ना मृताभिस्तत्त्ववेदिभिः ' quoted in स्मृतिच. III. p. 124.

217. 'Witnesses' is illustrative and stands for all human means of proof (such as documents &c.). Yāj. II. 22 also expressly states that ordeals are to be employed only in the absence of documents, witnesses and enjoyment. Compare Nār. p. 30 v. 29.

219. 'A portion' here means a substantial part of the allegations and not any part whatever however trifling or irrelevant it may be. Vide verse 222 below. For example, if the plaintiff asserts that defendant borrowed a certain sum at a certain interest and if he can prove, when the defendant denies all, the borrowing by human means but not the exact amount nor the rate of interest, then he would succeed and defendant would not be allowed to have recourse to divine means. Compare Yāj. II. 20 and Visnudharmasūtra VI. 22. for the proposition that when the plaintiff establishes a part of his claim (in case defendant denies everything) defendant has to render the whole of the claim.

220. The divine (means of proof) are of five kinds and human of three kinds.

221. When (a litigant) abandoning a strong ground resorts to a weak one (to prove his case), he would not be again entitled to rely on that (strong ground) after the members of the court have decided as to who should succeed.

222. That ' kriya ' (proof) that would establish several unsubstantial parts (of the allegation of the party) but not the essential part should be cast off since it is unsubstantial (weak). That means of proof which would establish both sides (viz. the plaintiff's and the defendant's,) should be cast off entirely.

223. In disputes when witnesses exist, divine means of proof are not prescribed and when there is a document, neither ordeals nor witnesses (are prescribed as the proper means of proof).

224. A document becomes lost (or useless) by time and it may be found by judicial investigation to be tainted (tampered or forged). In a judicial proceeding where no documents or witnesses exist, he (the litigant) should indicate (rely on) divine proof. In (a claim) that is to be established by divine proof, he should not employ a document or (other) human means of proof.

220. 'Five'—this does not mean that there are no more, but that they are not less than five. Pitāmaha speaks of nine kinds of ordeals.

221. This rule lays down that a litigant must rely upon all available grounds of attack or defence, whether strong or weak, and if he fails by relying upon a weak ground he cannot agitate the same matter on other and stronger grounds. This verse propounds the same strict rule of res judicata as is contained in explanation 4 of section 11 of the Indian Civil Pro. Code of 1908.

223. ' When there is a document ' — this contains the germ of the rule in section 91 of the Indian Evidence Act prohibiting, when a contract is in writing, the adducing of other evidence to prove the terms of the contract.

224. ' A document,.....time ' — This means that the letters may become illegible by lapse of time.

225. Whatever are declared as the conventional usages of the associations of traders, of guilds (of artisans &c.) and of groups (of Brāhmanas) and the like, the means of proving them are documents, neither ordeals nor witnesses.

226. Enjoyment alone is weightier in the case of the making and use of doors and ways, as also in the case of water-courses and the like, and not writing nor witnesses.

227-28. In the case of (disputes about) things given (or promised to be given) but not given, in decisions (of disputes) of servants with their master, in the matter of taking back a thing after it is sold and when a person having purchased a thing does not pay the price, in gambling and prize-fighting—when a dispute arises in these matters, witnesses are the means of proof, neither ordeals nor witnesses.

229. When the dispute that is investigated is about 'sāhasa' (heinous offences) or about physical injury or abuse and defamation and in causes that spring from force, witnesses or ordeals (are the means of proof).

230. In the case of persons guilty of secret heinous crimes the investigation (into their guilt) has to be made by

225. For 'śreni' (guilds) and 'gana' vide notes on verse 82 above and also verses 679-80 where Kat. himself defines 'pūga' and 'gana'.

226. It is better to read '—bhoge' as Parā. M. does and connect 'kriyā' and '—bhoge' with both 'door' and 'way'. If 'kriyā' and 'bhoga' were taken to be separate subjects of enjoyment, it is difficult to bring out their sense. This verse refers to easements and enunciates the doctrine that they are acquired and proved by undisturbed enjoyment for a long time. Vide section 15 of the Indian Easements Act of 1882. In Lalubhai v. Bai Amrit I. L. R. 2 Bom. p. 299 at p. 312 this verse is referred to.

227-228. Verse 227 refers respectively to the titles of law called 'dattapradānika', 'svānipālāvivāda' and 'krayavikrayānuśaya'. In ancient India sales and gifts were made without a writing and property passed by mere delivery. Hence as a general rule witnesses were the only means of proof in these cases.

229. Compare बृहस्पति 'वाक्पारुष्ये महीवादे निषिद्धा दैविकी क्रिया । प्रदातव्या प्रयत्नेन साहसेषु चतुर्विधि ॥' quoted in अपराक p. 629. Vide Nār. p. 98 v. 241. This verse prescribes an option between ordeals and witnesses.

230. The first part states an exception to the rule in verse 229. The latter half means that ordeals are not to be resorted to simply because there are no witnesses, but only when there is no clue to their ordeals and by means of reasoning, marks, by the gestures and by the outward manifestations (sweat etc.), by the voice, the eye and movements.

231. In the case of all sāhasas (heinous offences) of the gravest kinds, (the judge) should examine the truth by means of (lit. by the eye or sight of) ordeals, even though there be witnesses. (This is the view of) Bhṛgu.

232. Where the witnesses are equal, there also (the judge) should find out the truth by means of ordeals. In disputes about offences entailing death penalty if the plaintiff (or complainant) has recourse to ordeals though there be witnesses, (the judge) should not question witnesses.

233. In (disputes as to) debts the means of proof are declared, through the desire of doing good to the people, to be either a writing or witnesses or some sort of reasoning or the like or divine means.

234. One should prove a debt by means of these in order, viz. urging (dunning) the debtor (to pay) on each occasion, putting forward some argument and the third being oaths.

guilt by means of even 'reasoning &c.' 'Īṅita' is explained as 'down-cast look and the like' and 'ākāra' as 'perspiration, horripilation &c. due to emotions of fear &c.' though both words are given as synonyms in the lexicon of Amara. Vide Manu VIII. 25-26 for the same means of arriving at mental states.

231. According to Nār. p. 202 v. 3 'sāhasa' is of three kinds viz. of the first, middling and highest degree and according to Nār. p. 203. v. 6 'taking human life with poison, weapons or the like, intercourse with or assault on another man's wife and whatever else that causes destruction of life' is called Sāhasa of the highest degree. The minimum fines prescribed for these three kinds (Nār. p. 203 verses 7-8) were 100, 500 and 1000 paṇas respectively.

232. The equality of witnesses on both sides may consist in the number and in their trustworthiness. The offences that entail death are the five mortal sins. Compare बृहस्पति 'महापापमिश्रापेषु निक्षेपहरणे तथा दिव्यैः कार्यं परीक्षेत राजा सत्स्वपि माक्षिषु ॥' (quoted in अय. मा. p. 316). Vide Manu XI. 54. for the five great sins.

234. The Sm. C. explains 'Codanā pratikālam' as 'urging the debtor for several times in the presence of third persons to pay the debt.' Whenever the time for payment arrives and the debtor though dunned does not protest it is first method. 'Yuktileśa' means 'you took from me so much money for such and such a purpose in a certain place and at a certain time.'

235. If (the debtor) though urged (reminded) again and again three, four or five times (by the creditor) does not refute (or protest against) the latter's words, he must carry out (pay back) the object (the debts)

236. If dunning be protested against, he (the creditor) should follow him up with arguments relating to the place, the time, the connection (subsisting between the two parties), the amount (of the debt) and the actions (of the two).

237. If arguments also are futile he should decide by means of the ordeals alone such as fire, water, righteousness and the like that may be appropriate to the property involved, the time and the strength (of the defendant).

238. Where a document is declared before the king to be fraudulent (i. e. forged or fabricated), there the king occupying the seat of justice should find the truth by ordeal.

239. In (disputes about) land and in harshness of words (reviling and abuse) (the king or judge) should not prescribe ordeals.

240. In disputes about immoveable property ordeals should be avoided. (The litigant) should establish his claim by means of witnesses, by writing or by possession.

241. In all disputes the king should always give a decision by means of the pramāṇas (documents, witnesses, possession) or by inference or even by ordeals.

235-237. These verses are almost the same as Nārada (ṛṇādāna 236-238) and explain the three methods in verse 234. Vide Nār. p. 97. In 236 what is meant is that the creditor should himself remember the time, place &c. and remind the debtor of them. 'Sapatha' includes both oaths and ordeals. Compare Manu. S. 109. The reading 'Sapathair- enam ardayet ' of Nārada means ' he should make him undergo ordeals' and is better.

239. This is not in conflict with verse 239 which gives an option between witnesses and ordeals in the case of ' reviling ' etc. That verse refers to serious offences of reviling while this refers to slight ones.

240. This verse is almost the same as that of Pitāmaha quoted in Sm. C. (III. p. 121) ' स्वावरेषु विवादेषु दिव्यानि परिवर्जयेत् । साक्षिभिर्लिखितेनाथ भुक्त्वा चैतान् प्रसाधयेत् ॥ ' We should read ' parihārayet ' (in the text).

241. ' Inference '—Gautama (XI. 23 24) says that in arriving at justice ratiocination is the means etc. ' (न्यायाधिगमे तर्कोभ्युपायः । तेनाभ्यूह्य यथास्थानं गमयेत् ।)

242. Pramāṇa (means of proof) is said to be three-fold, viz. documents, witnesses and possession. The wise say that 'hetu' is inference and tarka (ratiocination).

243. In the absence of each of the preceding (the king should decide) with the succeeding, but never otherwise, (he should decide) by the pramāṇas that are indicated by the litigants, viz. possession, documents and witnesses.

244. No one should prescribe ordeals for the plaintiff (lit. the attacker) ; those who are adepts (in the knowledge) of ordeals should offer ordeals to the defendant.

245. In a reply of denial, it (vyavahāra, the legal proceeding) has four stages (lit. feet) and so in pratyavaskandana (reply of special plea) and in the reply of former judgment, but it should be known to have (only) two stages in replies of admission.

246. Defeat is said to be two-fold, viz. declared by another (i. e. by the judge) or by oneself. The former is of ten kinds and the latter is only of one kind.

243. The first half must be read with verse 241 and it means that if pramāṇas are available he should decide with their help, if not available then by ratiocination and then by ordeals. If no ordeals are possible, then the king's own discretion is the final arbiter, as Pitāmaha says 'लेख्यं यत्र न विधेयं न मुक्तिर्न च साक्षिणः । न च दिव्यादत्तरोस्ति प्रमाणं तत्र पार्थिवः ॥' (quoted in स्मृतिच. III. p. 123).

244. This means that in a reply of denial, there cannot be an ordeal, as there the burden of proof is on the plaintiff. Yāj. II. 96 notes that ordeals may also be left to the option of the parties also i. e. even the plaintiff may undergo an ordeal.

245. In verse 31 above the four stages (pādas) of a judicial proceeding are enumerated. In a reply of admission, there is no need to deliberate as to the burden of proof or the means of proof and so there are only two stages, viz. plaint and the reply. The Vy. Māt. p. 284 notes that where the plaint is such that it deserves no reply, there are only two stages, viz. the plaint and the decision (of the court) rejecting it ; similarly where the reply is no real reply, there are only three stages plaint, vitiated reply and judgment in favour of plaintiff).

246. In the reply of admission or confession, the party is defeated by his own words. This is the one kind of defeat due to one's self. The Sm. C. (III. p. 130) notes that what he considered (verse 259) is to be written by another, but his own opinion (verse 261) was to be written in his own hand by the king.

247-248. Going over to another (ground of) dispute (i. e. change of pleading or front), conflict between former and later averments, defects in the production of one's means of proof, lending support to what the opponent says, non-mention of the place of the transaction in dispute, mention of a wrong time and place (for the transaction), bribing witnesses, hatred of saying out things (when examined), putting forward of an improper place and interfering with questions put to witnesses (these are the ten kinds of defeat due to another).

(Documents)

249. Documents are declared to be of two kinds viz. made in one's own hand and made in the handwriting of another; (the first is valid) whether attested by witnesses or not. The validity of both follows from the usage of the country (where they are written).

250. That should be known as a document written in one's own hand which is written by the debtor with his own hand though there are no witnesses (on it); the wise regard it as valid.

251. (One) should should cause the origin (of the parties to the transaction), the caste, the names and the amount of money to be written (in a writing). In this way one remembers what was done; a matter that is not consigned to writing perishes (by lapse of time).

252. A document should be attested by witnesses and should be so written as not to transfer the order of letters (required to express the sense), should observe the local conventional usages (as to documents) and should contain full details as to all matters.

249. This is Nār. p. 75 v. 135.

250. Yāj. II. 89 affirms that a document written by oneself is valid. even though not attested by witnesses, against the person writing it in the absence of force or fraud,

251. 'Prayuktasya' may also mean 'what is lent at interest.' As to writing perpetuating testimony compare Br. p. 304 v. 2 and Nār, p. 58 v. 70.

253. That document which contains the proper framing of letters and sentences, which is unambiguous, all the letters of which are clearly legible, the stops of which are not lacking in the proper order, attains validity (lit. success or perfection).

254. That writing is called sthitipatra (deed of conventions) which is made for the validity of (for preserving intact) the usages of men versed in the four Vedas, of a city, of corporations, of groups and of the citizens.

255. That is known as visuddhi-patra (deed of purification) which is given to persons with attestations of witnesses when they have performed the penance (prescribed) and have become free from the accusation (of the commission of grave sins).

256. That writing is called a samdhi-patra (deed of peace) which recites what happened when an accusation is brought (against a person) before all the best (leading) people.

257. A deed of boundaries is made when a dispute as to boundaries is decided.

258. That document is declared to be royal which has on it the king's own hand and which is marked with the royal seal and which is attested by witnesses in all matters.

253. 'The stops of which &c.' - this is the translation of 'ahinakrama-cihnam' which may also mean 'the seal on which is not out of order.' This will apply only to a royal document

254. Vyāsa as quoted in Sm. C. (III. p. 135) enumerates eight kinds of writings, viz. cīraka, svahasta, upagata, ādhipatra, krayapatra, sthitipatra, saṁdhipatra and viśuddhipatra. The Sm. C. notes that there are other documents also such as a deed of partition. Br. p. 304 v. 4 divides writings of ordinary people into seven varieties (viz. of partition, gift, purchase, mortgage, agreement, servitude and debt and royal edicts) into three. Br. gives definitions of these seven.

256. This verse is rather obscure. What is meant seems to be that a compromise arrived at as to an accusation before the leading people of the place is put down in writing which is then called 'saṁdhi-patra.'

259-264. The statements of the plaintiff and the defendant, the averment (of the plaintiff as to the relief claimed), the statements of witnesses, the decision of the dispute, how the matter was considered by himself (by the king), these should be set out in their order in writing. First the statements of the plaintiff and defendant should be set out, after that the words of the sabhyas, of the judge or of the family members and therein also should be written the decision of the case according to the rules of Smṛti and the (final) opinion (of the king). The plaintiff is to be put in possession of the matter that he succeeded in proving after being commended (on his success) and the king should give him a writing under his own hand and he should make the members of the court who were there (at the time of the hearing) and who are proficient in Smṛti to sign (the judgment) as in the case of (other ordinary) writings. A writing executed in this mode the wise declare to be ' paścātkāra '. Where the litigant discharges his burden of proof by resorting to the (prescribed) means of proof only, there (the document) is called paścātkāra ; the term is not applied to all (decisions in all matters).

265. That is jayapatra (a document recording victory in a litigation) which is given to those who are cast off (in their cause) because they aver something other (than what

259-264. The latter half of 260 and 261 explain what is meant by ' yathāpūrvam ' in the first half of 260. Kāt. applies the term paścātkāra to a final judgment arrived at after hot contest between the parties, i. e. where all the four stages of a judicial proceeding have been gone through. If there is only a reply of admission or if the suit is decreed ex parte or if the plaintiff or defendant is non-suited for being a hīnavādī, then the decision is not a paścātkāra, but it is a jayapatra (document of success). ' Kulāni ' (family members) - we saw above in verse 82 that they were the court of lowest jurisdiction. For the contents of judgment compare Civil Pro. Code, Order 20 rule 4.

265. Kāt. restricts the use of the word jayapatra to a judgment given in cases of those whose claims are cast off for various reasons without a thorough trial while he applies the word ' paścātkāra (lit. means ' refutation ') to a judgment given after complete contest. Herein he differs from Brhaspati, Vyāsa and others who employ the word jayapatra for was first stated) and other hinavādis and which contains a recital of what happened.

(Examination of documents)

266. (The judge) having summoned by order of the king should examine as justice requires documents according to the usages about documents (prevalent in the country) and witnesses according to the characteristics of witnesses (laid down in smṛtis).

267. This is 253 above.

268. That is said to be a document marked with the hand of another, which is in accordance with local usage, which gives the year, month, fortnight and the like and the rate of interest, and bears the signatures of the debtor, the witnesses and the scribe.

269 That becomes a false document the letters wherein stand away from their proper places, are not in a line, are ambiguous, and do not possess the characteristics (of genuine writing).

270. (That writing) is defective which is opposed to local usage, which is ambiguous, which is devoid of the proper order (of words and sentences), which is executed by one who is not the owner (i. e. the proper and authorised person) and which is wanting in the (statement of the) matter to be effected (by a document).

271. A document executed by a person intoxicated, or by one under fear or one defrauded, or executed by one who is or all judgments. Compare Br. p. 298 verses 3-4 for the contents of jayapatra. Kāt. seems to have been the first to coin the word pāścātkāra. Sm. C. (III, p. 129) gives a definition of jayapatra from Bṛhaspati. — 'पूर्वात्तरिक्रिय-युक्तं निर्णयान्तं यदा नृपः । प्रदद्याज्जयित्ते लेख्यं जयपत्रं तदुच्यते ॥'

266. The latter half occurs in Nārada (Vide Nār. p. 23 v. 70).

268. Compare Nār. p. 76 v. 136. The words ' rate of interest ' are illustrative and imply pledges and other transactions.

271. Compare Manu VIII, 163, Nār. p. 76 v. 137 and Br. p. 307 v. 23 for very similar provisions. Compare sections 10-12, 15-18 of the Indian Contract Act (of 1872). Manu (VIII. 165 and 168) declares that all transactions brought about by fraud or force are invalid and vide verse 464 by a lunatic or who is distressed (by misfortunes or diseases), by women, by children and by those who are not independent (i. e. who are not their own masters) has no validity.

272. If a person even after (an invalid transaction) is publicly announced does not (take steps to) annul (it) the next day, then it would come to be valid, except transactions entered into by persons intoxicated or lunatics.

273. A document may be vitiated (invalid) owing to the defects of witnesses or of the scribe or to the fraud of the creditor or of the executant.

274. A document made by persons guilty of faults becomes vitiated while one made by persons free (from any fault) should be declared to be valid (lit. pure). That document (which is made) by witnesses, writer and executant guilty of deception (becomes vitiated).

275. The defects of the means of proof (such as documents and witnesses), when they are latent, must be declared (pointed out) by the litigant, (who wants to impugn them) at the proper time (viz. when they are adduced in the trial), but the patent defects must be declared by the members of the court at the time (of the consideration of the evidence) by reference to the (rules of) Smṛtis.

276. The defects should be so pointed out that the witnesses, the writer and the executants would be found to be false ; a document becomes invalid when these are (shown to be) vitiated.

277. When the opponent (defendant) avers that (the document) was not written by the scribe (by whom it purports to have been written) or that it was not seen by the witnesses (by whom it is attested), then the document is said to be (charged) as false.

below). In I. L. R. 5 Bom. 99 at p. 104 the text of Bṛhaspati is quoted and it is suggested that 'strimatta' should be taken as one word in the sense of 'under female or aphrodisiac influence,' but this verse of Kāt. shows that that is not a correct way of understanding Bṛhaspati's text, since Kāt. separately mentions 'woman' and 'matta.'

275. Vide v. 378 below. The words 'by reference etc.' should be connected with both latent and patent defects.

276-277. These lay down and illustrate the method of pointing out the defects of documents as required by 275.

278. (A litigant) should not challenge a means of proof by (alleging) a defect which is false; if he were to make a false attack (against the proof adduced by his adversary) he would be liable to be fined and would lose his cause (the object he wanted to secure).

279. When (a document) has thus been challenged as invalid before the court (lit. before the royal seat), it should be considered and he (the judge) should examine the faults (alleged) in the document, holding consultation with brāhmaṇas.

280. A document becomes vitiated (invalid) by anything that makes the witnesses or scribe or the executant thereof false; it is to be declared valid (lit. pure or free from faults) if these are free from defects.

281. A document written in his own hand by the creditor and not attested by witnesses would be held to be false, if the maker of it (viz. the creditor) would not be able to establish that it was made by him (with the consent of the debtor).

282. If the debtor denies his own signature made on a document, the matter should be decided by (the evidence of) the witnesses on the document or by the opinion (i. e. evidence) of the scribe.

283. In disputes about documents whether written (by the man denying them) or not, the decision (about the genuineness) of it must be made by (the evidence of) witnesses; when a document is challenged as false, the litigant should cite the witnesses thereon (as his evidence).

279. ' Holding.....brāhmaṇas ' - vide notes on 57-59 above.

280. If the faults pointed out by a litigant are not refuted by his opponent, then the document becomes invalid. Compare 274 (first half which is almost the same as the latter half of this verse.

282. Compare section 68 of the Indian Evidence Act.

284. When in the case of all the three kinds of documents a doubt arises in the minds of men, then one should establish (their genuineness) by producing the signatures of the debtor, the witnesses and the scribe thereof (for comparison).

285. If the scribe along with the witnesses be dead, the document would undoubtedly be proved to be genuine by (a comparison of) their (admitted) signatures and the like (with the signatures on the disputed document).

286. When there is doubt about the signature of the debtor (on a document) whether he be living or dead the decision about (the genuineness of) that document is to be made by (comparison with) other documents executed by him with his own hand.

287. Even when all these (viz. writer, witness and executant) whose signatures are made on the document which bears the royal seal are dead, that document is still held valid even though they are all dead.

284. Compare Yāj. II. 92 and Nār. p. 78 v. 143. Br. (p. 304 v. 3) divides writings into three sorts, viz. those written by the king (rājalekhyā), those written in a particular place (sthānakṛta) and those written by a person with his own hand (svahastalikhita). ' Sthānakṛta ' appears to mean ' written by professional scribes appointed by the king or his officers and attested by witnesses. ' Compare Nār. p. 75 v. 135. Kāt. is probably referring to this three-fold division made by Br. VI. (VII. 3) divides documents into three varieties, viz. rājasākṣika (i.e. written by kāyasthas appointed by the king and bearing the signature of the presiding officers), writings attested by witnesses, writings without witnesses.

285. Vide VI. VII. 13 for a similar idea. Compare section 69 of the Indian Evidence Act and for proof of hand-writing by comparison sec. 73 of the same Act. According to the Sm. C. ' the like ' include the gotra, caste etc. '

287. The validity of the document is due to the royal seal which is prima facie evidence of genuineness. This provision is somewhat like sections 59-60 of the Indian Registration Act of 1908 and is a precursor of the solemnity attached to registration as laid down by the Privy Council in 8 Bombay Law Reporter 375. Apar. restricts this rule to a royal edict bearing the royal seal.

288-289. What is directly perceptible is not (allowed) to be overruled by inference ; therefore the decision about a document which is challenged as false is to be arrived at on the testimony of witnesses, since (the debtor or executant) may himself challenge a document as false for securing wealth to himself. A document (without attestations) should be proved to be genuine by (comparison with other) documents and one that is attested by witnesses by the (testimony of) witnesses.

290. When it is alleged that a document is false (the litigant) who would not establish it to be valid by the testimony of the witnesses and of the scribe, should be made to pay the highest amercement.

291. When (a debt) has not been claimed by (the creditor) able to do so from (a debtor) who has wealth enough (to discharge it) and who is near (the creditor), then the bond (recording the debt) loses its strength, as this raises a suspicion that the debt has been paid off.

288. This applies to a case where a document is attested by witnesses and the debtor or executant denies it. In such a case the court is not to rely on comparison of the debtor's signature on the document with other admitted signatures of his. This process would be one of inference. Hence witnesses are in such a case to be examined and their testimony is weightier than mere comparison of handwriting. A witness is so called according to Manu (8. 74) and Vi. (8. 13) and Nār. pp. 79-80 verses 147-148 because he has himself seen or heard a matter or experienced it, i. e. his testimony is direct. The latter half restricts comparison of handwriting to a document which bears no attestations and it occurs in Nārada (कण्वादान verse 145), where Asahāya explains it differently, while the translation above follows the interpretation of the Sm. C.

290. Apar. construes the verse differently: 'when an allegation, of falsity is made as to the writer (i. e. executant) of a document.' The highest fine was 1000 panas according to Manu VIII. 138 or 1080 according to Yaj. I. 366.

291-292. Vide Br. p. 308 v. 28 for same verses. Not being seen or read out to anybody leads to the inference that it was not meant to be acted upon, as it was neglected for a long time. Compare Br. p. 309 v. 31 ; also Nār. p. 77 v. 141 for a very similar verse.

292. A document (executed) beyond thirty years, which has never been seen (by anybody) nor read out (by the creditor to anybody), does not attain validity even though the witnesses (on it) be living.

293. If a man does not show a document even though the debt (evidenced by the document) has ceased to bring interest and if he does not press the debtor (for payment), the document loses validity.

294-295. (The judge) should consider very carefully a document that is put (purports to be) in the form of a pas'cātkāra (judgment after contest). If such a document stands (the test of) reasoning, then it is valid ; otherwise it should be cast aside and he (the judge) should again decide (the matter in dispute). When what is not true has been established as the truth through ignorance, it should be set aside, even though it was established as valid with effort by (former) kings.

296. A (royal) edict becomes valid when it is free from defects as to the seal (thereon), as to the mode of writing it, as to its enjoyment (or custody), when it has the proper characteristics (of an edict) and when it bears the genuine signature of the king.

297. That writing which is free from faults and which is made known (to the people round about) attains validity.

298. If the debtor does not declare the patent defects of a document even when he has seen it, the document when it has stood (unchallenged) for twenty years becomes firm (i. e. unchallengeable thereafter).

293. The Sm. C. explains that this happens when the debtor is near at hand and is well able to pay.

294-295. For pas'cātkāra vide verses 259-264 above. Vide verses 495-496 as to review of judgment.

296. 'Kriyāśuddha' is explained by the Sm. C. as meaning 'free from ungrammatical words and from the fault of disconnected words.'

298. 'Debtor' - this word is only illustrative and stands for all who are affected by a document. This proscribes a period of twenty years for avoiding voidable documents.

299. When a thing is enjoyed for twenty years on a writing in the neighbourhood of (an opponent) able (to challenge the enjoyment), then that writing becomes free from defects.

300. If for twenty years a pledge has been undoubtedly enjoyed, then the pledge becomes valid by that writing and free from defects (even if they existed at its inception).

301. When a dispute as to boundaries is decided, a deed of boundaries is made ; faults therein must be declared up till twenty years therefrom (and not thereafter).

302. Where a debt is consigned to writing accompanied with the pledge (of a thing as security for the debt), that (writing) is regarded as valid, even if the witnesses be dead, provided there is (some) slight enjoyment by the creditor (of the thing pledged).

303. A document, even though not bearing a seal and even though the witnesses thereon be dead, is valid if he (the executant) has obtained something (on the strength of the document from the creditor) or has paid back (something) though not specified (on the document itself).

304. If (the creditor) has received something (from the debtor) or if (it be proved that) the creditor made an open assertion (that he holds a document against the debtor), then the document is valid even though the witnesses thereon be dead.

305. A document, which is openly shown on each occasion, is read over or of which others are reminded, becomes valid in all cases even when the witnesses are dead.

299-300. Apar. says that verse 298 refers to a document that is vitiated in its inception, while verse 299 refers to a document which is not vitiated but the witnesses on which are not living or which cannot be compared with other admitted documents. In the latter case twenty year's enjoyment under the document makes the thing belong to the enjoyer. Verse 300 gives an illustration of verse 298 with reference to things pledged under a document which has some defect.

305. ' Openly shown etc. ' - This means ' when it is shown to assemblies of people in the village or of traders etc. whenever an occasion to show it could arise ' (such as for demanding periodic interest etc.). This verse explains what is meant by ' prajñapti ' (open assertion) in v. 304. Vir. p. 200 ascribes this to Nārada. It is Nār. p. 77 v. 140.

306. A document is in no case cast off by ordeals or by witnesses. The mode (of proving a thing) by writing is always superior and hence it is not cast off by any other mode.

307. The proof by writing can be refuted (or superseded) only by another annulling document relating to the same matter or by a document (again) made specially for the same matter and not by any other means of proof (such as witnesses.)

308. Just as the reflection (of a thing) made in a mirror is seen as if it were something real, though it is non-existent (unreal), so clever people fabricate copies of documents (i. e. they can fabricate writings resembling the genuine hand-writings of other persons).

309-310. When a writing is given to another after taking money (from him), where a writing is concealed, when it is in the hands of another or when it is confined in another's house, where money is given or returned by first passing a writing, this should be understood to be the rule in deciding about the genuineness of documents.

311. He who makes a false document about the sale or mortgage of immoveable property, should be deprived of his tongue, hands and toes, when he is properly proved (to be a forger).

306. The witnesses here spoken of are not those on a document. This verse says that oral evidence cannot prevail over a document. Compare Br. p. 309 v. 31.

307. The idea is that one document (such as a mortgage or sale) can be annulled only by another document which reverses what was done before (such as a reconveyance or resale) or by a document of later date embodying the same transaction. Compare sec. 92 of the Indian Evidence Act on the prohibition as to allowing oral evidence for altering or varying the terms of a written contract or grant.

308. The Sm. C. (III. p. 148) quotes a similar verse from Vyāsa 'लेख्यमालेख्यवत्केचिद्विद्वन्ति कुशला नराः। तस्मान्न लेख्यसामर्थ्यं तं सिद्धि- कान्तिर्वा मता ॥'. Compare Br. 307 v. 20 and Nār. p. 23 verses 69, 71-72.

309-10. The meaning and context of these verses is not quite clear.

312. When a document is broken by dirt (soiled by dirt), when it is burnt, when it becomes perforated, when it has passed away (into another country or in another's hand) and when it is rubbed off owing to perspiration, another document should be caused to be written.

(Possession)

313. Documents, witnesses, possession - these are regarded as three pramāṇas (means of proof). Among human pramāṇas, possession is regarded as equal to a faultless (valid) document.

314. When there is doubt (dispute) about a way, doors for exit (and entrance), water-courses and the like, undoubtedly possession is the weightiest among means of proof.

315. A witness is weightier than mere inference, a document is weightier than witnesses (i. e. oral evidence); unbroken possession for three generations is weightier than all these.

316. Reliance should not be placed on (mere) possession by the wrongful possessor or his son (as his strong point) in the case of beasts, women and men (slaves). This is the settled Dharma (Law).

317. Possession is declared to be of two sorts : viz. with title and without title. Possession which continues for three

312. Compare Yaj. II. 91 and Nār. p. 79 v. 146.

313. Compare Nār. p. 58 v. 69.

314. Verse 313 declared 'documents' and 'possession' as equally weighty means of proof. This verse declares that in certain disputes (about easements) possession is superior to the other pramāṇas. Vide verse 226 above. Nār. (p. 60 v. 77) emphatically declares that as regards immoveables possession counts most (is nine points of law) even though there be a document and witnesses.

315. Vide Manu VIII. 25-26 for signs from which inferences were to be drawn about intention or other mental states of men. What is meant by 'three generations' is made clear by Kāt. himself in v. 318.

316. Vide Lalubhai v. Bai Amrit I. L. R. 2 Bom. 299 at p. 310 for explanation of this verse.

317. 'Agama' means 'origin of title' or 'title'. According to Br. p. 309 v. 2 ownership of immoveable property can be acquired in seven ways, viz. by learning, purchase, mortgage, conquest, as generations is independent (means of proof of ownership without actual proof of title), but if it is less (than for three generations), then it (is proof of ownership) if accompanied with title.

318. Possession from the grandfather is superior, possession from father also is approved; unbroken (possession) for these three generations (viz. grandfather, father and the dowry (with wife), inheritance in a family, and succession to kinsmen. Nārada as quoted in Sm. C. mentions six sources of ownership, viz. by inheritance in family, gift, purchase, conquest, marriage and succession to a childless kinsman. Vide Gautama 10. 39-41 for sources of ownership. Vide Br. p. 313 vv. 26-27 for a similar proposition about possession.

318. There has been a great deal of divergence of opinion among the sages and nibandhakāras as to what length of possession would by itself constitute ownership. Nārada laid down that possession within living memory cannot confer ownership if unaccompanied by title, but when it is enjoyed for three generations and thus passes beyond living memory (i. e. when it is asmārtakāla) it becomes independently proof of ownership (vide Nār. p. 62 v. 89 and p. 63 v. 91 and Br. p. 313 vv. 26-27.) But there is no unanimity as to what is meant by three generations. The Mit. on Yāj. II. 27 says that 'smārtakāla' (time within living memory) is one hundred years as the Veda declares that 'man lives for a hundred years.' Three generations would approximately extend to 100 years and so enjoyment for three generations is another way of saying the same thing as asmārtakāla. The Par. M. (III. p. 142) says that according to one smṛti each generation means a period of 25 years 'वर्षाणि पञ्चविंशतु पौरुषे भोग उच्यन्ते'; while according to Bṛhaspati, quoted in the same work, each generation is a period of thirty years (vide Br. p. 313 vv. 23-24). 100 years are rather too long a period and so Vyāsa cut down three generations to sixty years and Kāt. is of the same opinion. Yāj. II 24 (literally interpreted) appears to have been satisfied with only 20 years in the case of immoveable property and ten years' enjoyment in the case of moveables. Various interpretations of this verse of Yāj. were proposed in order to avoid its conflict with the dicta of other sages. Viśvarūpa explained that the real purport of this verse is to enjoin upon a man to be vigilant about his property (and not apathetic), since if another enjoyed his property for twenty years without any protest, there was danger of his being defeated in a court of law and that this verse did not lay down that twenty years' enjoyment would confer ownership on a wrongful possessor. The Mit. and most other writers of digests explain this verse as prescribing that the owner, if he allows another to enjoy his property for 20 or ten years, would lose the produce (or man himself), extending over sixty years, becomes firm (i. e. independent means of proof as to ownership).

319. When anything has been held under proper possession accompanied by title, the possessor gets it (i. e. becomes complete owner of it), it can then in no case be taken away from him (by judicial proceedings).

320. A litigant who relies only on possession and who has lost the document of his title should state in the assembly (of justice) the (length of) time (of his possession), the means of proving that (i. e. possession) and (the source of title such as) gift.

321. (In cases falling) within the memory of man, it is desirable that possession must be accompanied with title in order to be proof (of ownership) as to land; but in cases beyond the memory of man possession extending over three generations in succession (is independent and valid proof of ownership), since there is no certainty that there is no title.

profits) of his property if he were to sue for the profits (but he would not lose the property itself). The Vy. Māt. connects this verse of Yāj. with the preceding and says that it means that if a donee, vendee or pledgee allows the property to remain for twenty years with the donor, vendor or pledgor and then the latter transfers it to another, the first dealing, though prior, is of no effect. Manu (VIII 147), Nār. (p. 60 v. 79) and Gautama XII. 34 also say, that if a chattel be enjoyed for ten years by another before the very eyes of the owner without protest from him, he loses his ownership.

319. The Vy. Māt. explains that 'proper' means for twenty years. If a man in possession can show legal origin for it and also twenty years' enjoyment, his title to the property is perfect.

320. Vide Nār. p. 62 v. 86 which says that he who pleads only possession but does not adduce title is to be considered a thief.

321. 'Anugama' is explained by the Mit. and most other commentators as 'certainty that there is no title', while Kalpataru explained it as 'āgamānusandhāna' (vide Vir. 205) and Vy. Māt. as 'trace or connection of title' (āgamasya anvayaḥ). Vide my notes on V. M. p. 60 for detailed explanation. This is the same as Nārada (ऋणादान v. 89) except that the latter reads, मुक्तः for भूमेः and लिखिताभावे for अनुगमाभावात्.

322. As regards the first (possessor) title is the means of proof (of ownership); as regards those in the middle (i. e. the second and third generations) enjoyment accompanied by title (is the means of proving ownership), but unbroken possession for three generations is by itself the means of proving ownership (in the fourth generation).

323. The (first) occupant, though he may have possession, should clear (by evidence) the defects (alleged) in the document (under which he holds), but his son (or grandson) should clear only the defects in possession and would not suffer for (lit. obtain) the defects of the document (of his title).

324. Whatever property has been (first) acquired by a man, if he were impeached (by another), he should clear (his title to) it. In his case possession, even though he enjoyed the property for a long time, is not desired (as the proof of ownership).

325. (The king or judge) should not out of greed interfere with possession which is immemorial and not known (to have originated without title).

326. When a property has been enjoyed by (a man's) father according to the usual mode of enjoying (the property), that (man), when the father is dead, should not be called upon (to prove title), since he got that property (from his father) by enjoyment.

322. • Dānam ' (gift) stands as illustrative of sources of title. The first possessor must show legal title; in the case of his son and grandson, they have to put forward some title and also possession, while the fourth generation can rely only on possession for three prior generations (and need assert no other title). Compare Yāj. II. 27 about the relative strength of title and possession.

323-324. Compare Nār. p. 63 v. 90, Br. p. 313 v. 25 and Yāj. II. 28. The Mit. explains that the first occupant is liable to fine if he cannot show title, his son and grandson need only show immemorial possession and they are not liable to fine even if they show no title nor immemorial possession. In the latter case they may at the most lose the property. Vide ' आगमस्तु कृते येन स दण्ड्यस्तु मनुदरन् । न तत्सुतस्तु त्वतो वा भोग्यद्वान्निस्तयोऽपि ॥ ' quoted in स्मृतिच. III p. 165 and मित्ता. on यāj. II. 28.

326-327. Both these are Vi. V. 186-187. Compare Br. p. 313 v. 26.

327. When a land has been duly enjoyed by three generations, the fourth secures it (as owner) even in the absence of a document.

328. Just as milk produces by lapse of time curds which is full of taste, so possession transmitted for three generations becomes the source of conferring (ownership) by lapse of time.

329. That possession which is unbroken and of long standing (immemorial) is strong (valid independently) in law. Possession, even though interrupted, (is valid) provided it was established by an ancestor (as based on title).

330. One should not put forward (mere) possession (as proof of ownership) in the case of women (female slaves), temple property and state property, of the property of minors and those who are learned in the Vedas and as to (what is inherited) from the father and mother.

328. Compare Nār. p. 63 v. 91 and Br. p. 313 v. 27.

329. This is the same as Br. p. 314 v. 31. The principle is the same as that underlying Art. 142 of the Indian Limitation Act, viz. if a man establishes title and dispossession by another within twelve years before suit, he succeeds in ejectment 'Strong' means 'rendering futile a document etc. opposed in tenor to it.'

330. Compare Manu VIII. 149, Vasiṣṭha XVI. 18 Nār. (p. 61. v. 81), and Br. p. 312 v. 21 (who mentions idiots and Yāj. II. 25. ' Temple property ' - Compare section 10 of the Indian Limitation Act (1908) as amended by Act I of 1929 according to which there is no limitation for a suit for following trust property in the hands of a trustee or in the hands of his legal representative or voluntary assignees or for an account when property has become vested as a religious or charitable endowment in him. ' State property ' - compare Art. 149 of the Indian Limitation Act which prescribes sixty years for any suit by or on behalf of the Secretary of State for India in Council; ' minors ' - compare section 6 of the Indian Limitation Act in favour of minors, lunatics and idiots. Vide Gautama X. 48-49 according to which the property of minors and students was to be under state protection until they attained years of discretion and until return from their teacher. Vasiṣṭha 7-8XVI; ' from the father or mother ' - compare the rule of modern judicial decisions that the possession of one co-heir is not necessarily adverse to the other co-heirs. Vide notes below on verse 335 and verse 844 for the age of majority

331-333. If a brahmacārī, who was engaged in his vow (of Vedic study) extending over thirty-six years and a man in pursuit of wealth who remains in another country for a long time, were to return (from his teacher's house) and being free from his vow were to look out for his wealth, then enjoyment extending over fifty years will (alone) make him lose his property (by the possession of another). Twelve years are declared to be the period for studies for (mastering) each Veda and the time (of apprenticeship during which possession by another does not become adverse) for those who learn crafts is said to be the period required till they become masters in them.

334. The property of these (students of Veda and of crafts), which was enjoyed by their friends and relatives while they were absent and of those who have been convicted by the king (and imprisoned), is not lost by lapse of time.

335. When a thing has been enjoyed by a man's agnates and cognates and by his own people, there (ownership of the thing) would not result from mere possession; one should regard possession (as leading to ownership) in others (than these).

(Reasoning)

336. That man, who, when besought (for repayment) by the litigant (creditor) three, four or five times, does not employ a refutation (of the assertion) becomes (established as a) debtor after that.

331-332. 'Thirty six years' - A Brāhmacārī had to spend 12 years in the study of each of the three Vedas. Vide Manu III. 1 Gautama II. 51 and 52, Yāj. I 36. 'Samāvartana' - means 'returning from the teacher's house after finishing Vedic study and taking the ceremonial bath.' Vide Manu III. 4, Gautama II. 55, Vasīṣṭha VIII. 1.

335. Compare Br. p. 310 v. 11. This contains the principle that the possession of one co-owner or tenant-in-common is ordinarily the possession of all and that the mere fact that the profits of a property have been enjoyed by only one tenant-in-common for many years or that he alone is in sole possession does not by itself amount to the ouster of others and is not necessarily adverse to them. Vide I.L.R. 46 Bom. 213, 31 Bom. L.R. 199 and 1030 (P. C.), 47 Cal. 274.

336. Compare Nār. p. 97 v. 237. If a creditor several times addresses a debtor saying 'you owe me money' and the debtor does not protest against such assertions, he will be held to be a debtor, 337-338. Offer of a bribe, effacing the means of recognition, holding out a temptation (to the witnesses or sabhyas) and suppressing the expression of one's thoughts (on the face etc.) - these are the means of establishing (a claim against a person). Where the denial (of liability) by a litigant is clearly made, if one of these is clearly established by the opponent, then the matter charged (such as a debt) is established as against him.

(Witnesses)

339. The king should not delay in making the witnesses depose. A serious fault, viz. turning away from justice, would result from delay (in examining witnesses).

340. The king should himself examine the witnesses that are present (in court) and should consider along with the members of the court the statements made by witnesses.

341. Where it is doubtful who the witnesses (on a point) are, time should be given for (producing) witnesses in order that proper means of proof may be found out; but where it is clear (who the witnesses may be) he (the judge) should make the trial proceed at once.

342-343. The judge should in a conciliatory manner question in the following way all the witnesses inside the court and in the presence of the plaintiff and the defendant: 'whatever actions of these two (plaintiff and defendant) among themselves you know as regards this transaction, narrate them all in accordance with truth, since you are the witnesses in this matter.'

337-338. 'Effacing etc.' - means tampering with one's signature or other sign that would establish one's liability' according to Vir. p. 225. Read 'prajñāpanābhedaḥ' as one word.

339. This applies where it is quite clear who the witnesses may be. But where that is not clear, time has to be given.

340. 'The king' - this is illustrative and includes a judge.

342-343. Compare Yāj. II. 13 and Gautama XIII. 5. These two verses are the same as Manu VIII. 79-80.

344. (The judge) should, himself being pure, question in the first part of the day, and in the presence of gods (idols of gods) and brāhmanas men of the three first castes as witnesses for truth, they being pure and standing facing the north or the east.

345. (The judge), after having summoned all the witnesses, and having bound them strongly with oaths, should question them separately, the witnesses being men of known character and conversant with the matter (in dispute).

346. The statement of a witness as to whatever has been perceived (or experienced) by him because of his being in the presence of the plaintiff and the defendant (at the time of the transaction) should be accepted (as relevant evidence) and not otherwise. So says Brhaspati.

347. The testimony of those, whose family and characters are well-known, who are free from avarice and folly, who are truthful, pure, and men of eminence, leaves no room for doubt.

348. (The opponent) should be proved by the plaintiff (to be what he is alleged to be) by (the evidence of) witnesses who are similar to the opponent (in caste). A litigant of a lower caste should not establish (his case) by (the evidence of) witnesses of higher castes.

344. This is the same as Manu VIII. 87. ' In the first part of the day ' - vide verses 60-62 above. Compare कौटिल्य p. 176 ' ब्राह्मणो-दकुम्भान्नसकाशे साक्षिणः परिगृह्णीयात्. '

345. This is Nār. p. 91 v. 198. Compare Vi. VII. 19.

346. Vide Manu VIII. 74, Vi. VII. 13 for the proposition that a witness is one who has himself seen or experienced what he deposes to. Compare section 60 of the Indian Evidence Act (of 1872). This rule means that the oral evidence must be direct and not hearsay.

347. Compare Gautama XIII. 2, Manu VIII. 63, Yāj. II. 68 and Nār. p. 81 v. 153. Here ' aptāḥ ' means ' those who speak the truth, ' while it means a different thing in v. 361.

348. The latter half of this is not quite clear. We must probably read नोत्कृष्टैश्चावकृष्टस्तु. Vide verse 351. Yāj. II. 69 says ' यथाजाति यथावर्ण सर्वे सर्वेषु वा स्मृताः ' (i. e. the witnesses may be of the same class or caste as the litigant or men of any caste may be witnesses for a litigant of any caste). Vide Nār. p. 81 v. 154 (for the same option as in Yāj.), Gautama XIII. 3.

349-350. Those who wear symbols peculiar to their sects, śreṇis (guilds), pūgas (associations), companies of traders and all others who form groups (or combinations) - these are called vargas by Bhṛgu. The leaders of the communities of slaves, bards, wrestlers and of those who subsist by elephant driving, horse-riding and the profession of arms-these are in each case called vargin. When these have a dispute with members of their own group (varga), vargins (leaders of the respective groups) are their (proper) witnesses.

351. Women should bear witness for women (when women are litigants), for (litigants of) the first three castes (witnesses should be of) the same caste as themselves, well-behaved śūdras for śūdra (litigants), and men of the lowest castes such as Cāṇḍālas should be witnesses for lowest castes.

352. Where it is impossible to bring (as witnesses) those who stay in a different country, there the cause should be decided on evidence consigned to writing and sent by men learned in the three Vedas.

353. Even a single person is made to depose as a witness if he was taken in confidence at the time of making a de-

349-350. For śreṇi, pūga and vrāta vide vv. 82, 225 and 679-80. Compare Nār. p. 81 v. 155 for a similar rule. Gautama XI. 21-22 lays down that in disputes between agriculturists, traders, cowherds, usurers, and artisans the king should decide on the evidence of their headmen.

351. This is Manu VIII. 68 and also Vasīṣṭha XVI. 30 (but in prose).

352. This refers to evidence taken on commission. The idea is that the court should depute a learned man to take the evidence of a witness staying in a distant land and the evidence thus taken down in writing by the person deputed should be read at the trial. Compare Order 26 (rules 4 and 5) of the Civil Pro. Code.

353. The general rule is that there should be at least three witnesses. Vide Yāj. II. 69 and Nār. p. 81 v. 153. Br. (p. 301 v. 16) says that there should be nine, seven, five, four or three witnesses, or only two if they are brāhmaṇas learned in the Vedas, but a single person was never to be examined as a witness. This verse states an posit; the messenger, sent by a litigant, is a proper witness, though he is alone (i. e. the only witness in that case).

354. (In disputes about manufactured articles such as ear-rings) one should establish (identity of) that thing by (the evidence of) that man who produced the finished article ; in such disputes he, though alone, is declared to be the means of proof.

355. The scribe, the judge, the members of the court – these in order are declared to be witnesses (singly) when a cause has been investigated by the king.

356-357. There are others declared as witnesses though not so appointed (made or intended) by the parties, viz. the village (i. e. co-villagers), the judge, the king in the case of those who had judicial proceedings (before him), one who knows intimately the affairs (transacted by the two parties); one deputed by the claimant (to ask for a loan or to transact a business), and in disputes between members of a family even the members of the family may be witnesses.

exception to this rule. A dātaka is defined by Br. (p. 300 v. 8) as one who is a respectable man, esteemed and selected by both parties, who comes near to listen to the speeches of the plaintiff and defendant. The reading 'yācite' for dātakaḥ would mean ' in the case of a loan of an ornament etc.'

354. This reading is much better. It means that the person who was sent to fetch an article on loan and who brought it is singly sufficient to prove what or how much was lent in case of dispute. All that this verse means is that one witness will do, even though many or even two are not available. This verse does not restrict the evidence to the manufacturer alone. Vide Vir. p. 151.

355. Where the plea of res judicata was raised, the evidence of even one of these was relevant. Compare Br. p. 300 v. 14.

356-357. These verses are the same as Nār. p. 81 vv. 151-152 except that Nārada reads first-half of 356 as 'बडेते पुनरुद्दिष्टाः साक्षिणस्त्वकृताः स्वयम्.' Witnesses are of two kinds 'kṛta' (made or appointed by the party) and 'akṛta' (not so appointed). These two verses enumerate six kinds of 'akṛta' witnesses. Nār. (p. 80 vv. 149-150) says there are six kinds of 'akṛta' witnesses and five kinds of kṛta witnesses viz. likhita, smārita, yādṛcchika, gūḍha and uttara. Brhaspati (Br. p. 296 vv. 1-2) enumerates twelve kinds of witnesses लिखितो लेखितो गूढः स्मारिताः कुल्यदूतकौ । यादृच्छिकश्चोत्तरश्च कार्यमध्यगतोपरः । नृपोध्यक्षस्तथा ग्रामः साक्षी द्वादश-धा स्मृतः । (quoted in व्य. म. p. 34 and व्य. मा p. 321). Kāt. appears to combine both Nārada and Brhaspati.

358. In disputes about the shares of ancestral property, when a doubt arises, the statements of members of the family are means of proof, but not in other cases.

359. If one out of the witnesses that subscribe themselves (on a document) and that have been appointed (or cited) by the litigant deposes in a way different from (the others), all those become incompetent witnesses on account of contradiction.

360. Where a person is appointed by a man as a witness, the other party should not make him depose as his witness. In the absence (or death) of that person (who appointed the witness) a person deputed by him or a relative should make him depose (as a witness).

361. Those who depend for livelihood upon the subsistence given by a party, those who wait upon him or are his benefactors, those who are his relatives or friends or servants—these are his āptas and are not competent witnesses.

362. The sons of one's mother's sister, the son's of one's full sister and one's maternal uncles—these are said to be sanābhis (connected with same womb), these should not be employed as witnesses.

358. Compare Br. p. 299 v. 7.

359. Generally three witnesses were cited by a party to prove a transaction; supposing one of them deposed in one way and the other in another way, the two nullify each other. If the matter were to be decided on the testimony of the third, the result would be that the decision would have to be based on the words of one witness only. Therefore in such a case all the three witnesses become incompetent. But this verse cannot apply to a case where there are ten witnesses on a document, three of whom depose in one way and the rest in another way. In such a case the rule that the testimony of the majority or of men of higher character should be relied upon will have to be followed. Vide Nār. p. 95 v. 229, Br. p. 303 v. 35, Yāj. II. 78, Manu VIII. 73 and VI. VIII. 39 for the latter rule. Compare Nār. p. 83 v. 160 for a rule similar to the one in 359. For the definition of subscribing witness (likhita), vide v. 371.

360. The Sm. C explains that if anybody were allowed to cite anybody as a witness, whether appointed by him or not, he would be 'svayamukti' (and so an incompetent witness according to Nār. p. 83 v. 161).

361. This verse explains the word 'āpta' occurring in the list of incompetent witnesses in Manu VIII. 64 and Yāj. II. 71.

362. This verse is probably meant to explain 'sanābhi' in Nār. p. 87 v. 180.

363. Members of the same family, persons having an interest (in the subject-matter of the suit), one connected by marriage (with one's son or daughter), sister's husband, the father, a bandhu (a relative), paternal uncle, father-in-law and teacher - (these are incompetent as witnesses).

364. Those who are appointed (by the king) over towns, villages and districts and to positions (of responsibility) and those who are the favourites (of the king) - these should not be asked (to depose as witnesses); they are the men of the king and devoted (to him).

365. In (disputes) about debts and the like, in which the transactions are of a fixed (or permanent) nature, witnesses should be tested (as to their competency), but testing (of witnesses) is very rare in sāhasa (wrongs attended with force) or heinous crimes and in matters of an urgent nature.

366. In transgressions of royal commands, in adultery, in sāhasas (heinous crimes), in theft, and in pārusya (abuse and assault and battery), the judge should not test (the competency or character of witnesses).

367. If the attack (or complaint) be with reference to what took place inside a house or at night or outside the village, one should not inquire into (the character or competency of) witnesses.

363. ' Person having &c. ' - This seems to be the same as ' arthasaṁ-bandhinah ' in Manu VIII. 64 and Nārada (ṛṇādāna 177). Compare Br. p. 302 v. 29 for the whole verse.

364. Vide Nār. pp. 86-89 vv. 177-187, Manu VIII. 64-67, Vi. VIII. 1-5 and Yāj. II. 70-71 for long lists of incompetent witnesses. This verse explains the word ' rājapurusa ' in Nār. p. 89 v. 185. Being the king's officers or favourites, it is likely that the king or judge may be unduly prepossessed in their favour.

365. Compare Gautama XIII. 9 (न पीडाकृते निबन्धः), Manu VIII. 72, Vi. VIII. 6, Yāj. II. 72, Nār. p. 89 v. 189. In such cases any person may be a witness, but the circumstances of age and other disqualifications mentioned above may detract from the weight of the testimony.

367. Compare Manu VIII. 69-70.

368. When not asked by the litigant (to be witnesses), persons should not depose as witnesses ; he who of his own accord takes upon himself to be a witness can not have the position of a witness (at law).

369. A witness is of two-fold mode (lit. path), viz. subscribing a document (as a witness) and one who is apart from it.

370. If a person has subscribed a document in his own hand and is the only surviving witness (out of all the attestors) and cannot recognise (the attestation) as his own, it (his attestation on the document) should be established by (comparison with other admitted) signatures of his.

371. That witness is called ' likhita ' (subscribing witness) who is brought by the litigant himself and who (whose name) is placed on a document (as a witness); a ' smārita ' (reminded witness) is one who (becomes a witness) without being subscribed on a document.

372. He is styled ' smārita ' (reminded) who, being shown a transaction, is again and again reminded of it by the litigant (a party to the transaction in order that the transaction) may be (effectively) proved (thereafter).

373. He who is brought for some purpose and he who comes (at the time of the transaction) casually – these two are witnesses, who are not subscribing witnesses, but establish the assertions in a plaint (about the transaction seen by them).

369. Vide प्रजापति ' साक्षी द्विभेदो विज्ञेयः कृत एकोपरोऽकृतः । लेख्यारूढः कृतो ज्ञेय उत्तरोऽकृत उच्यते ॥ ' (quoted in स्मृतिच III. p. 184). The first stands for the five kinds of appointed witnesses and the latter (uttara) refers to the ' akṛta ' witnesses.

370. Compare section 71 of the Indian Evidence Act.

371. Compare Br. p. 299 v. 3 which is clearer. Br. p. 299 v. 4 explains who is called ' lekṣita ' (who does not subscribe himself, but whose name is put in his presence by another on a document).

372. This explains the words ' स्मरितः पत्रकादृते ' in 371. Compare Br. p. 299 v. 6 for a similar definition.

373. Both these are ' yaducchamish ' in नारद (ऋणादान 150). The person casually coming or brought for a purpose is asked to bear witness to the transaction and although he and the ' smārita ' are both not ' likhita ' (subscribing witnesses), there is a difference between them inasmuch as they are not again and again reminded.

374. He is called a secret witness, who is made by the plaintiff to listen while remaining concealed to the clearly expressed words of the defendant in order to establish his own object.

375. That witness is called 'uttara' (indirect) who deposes as a witness over and above the (direct witnesses) because he listens (to what they have seen) or is made to hear what they have heard.

376. He should be known as a secretly moving witness (gūḍhacārī) and also as one intimately bound up in the transaction (kāryamadhyagata) to whom something has been divulged through confidence or a transaction has been communicated in confidence (by both parties).

377. Where the plaintiff (i. e. the creditor or one party to a transaction) is dead there the witness is called 'mṛtāntara' (separated by death) and where the defendant (i. e. debtor &c.) is dead, there also the same (term) is ordained (for the witness).

(Proclaiming the weak points of witnesses)

378. Whatever faults there may be in documents or

374. Compare Br. p. 299 v. 5.

375. This is the same as Br. p. 300 v. 11. Brhaspati gives two verses on 'uttara,' the other being on p. 300 v. 10. They are not really two definitions, but one. Vi. VIII. 12 says 'उद्दिष्टसाक्षिणि मृते देवान्तरगतौ वा तदभिहितश्रोतारः प्रमाणम्' which is the same as Br. p. 300 v. 10. When a direct witness is about to die or to go to a foreign land, a person who hears what he says about a transaction witnessed by him becomes an uttara witness. Vide notes to V. M. p. 66 for further explanation.

376. We must distinguish between 'gūḍhasākṣi' defined in 374 and this. Dr. Jolly translates both as 'secret witness.' This is the same as Brhaspati 'उभाभ्यां यस्य विश्वस्तं &c.' (quoted in वीरमित्रोदय p. 145 and अपराक्षे p. 667). It is better to read उभाभ्यां for उद्घाप्य as Vir. and Apar. de. गूढचारी and कार्यमध्यगत are two names for the same kind of witness. If we read गूढचारी (who holds the secret of both parties), that would be a better reading, but it is not well supported. Dr. Jolly's translation of Br. (p. 300 v. 12) is not accurate.

377. When the party for whom a witness is to depose is himself dead that witness is called 'mṛtāntara' and he ceases to be a witness. Vide witnesses, they should be proclaimed at the time of the trial. (The judge) should not hold the witnesses ineligible (on account of faults) after they have deposed.

379. After a matter has been narrated (by witnesses) he who would point out faults in witnesses in whom he did not find fault at first and who cannot set out (a proper) reason (for not proclaiming them at first) should be fined in the first amercement.

380. (A litigant) should not challenge the means of proof (witnesses here) by (pointing out) faults that do not exist; if he were to make a false charge (about the faults of witnesses) he would be liable to fine and would also lose his claim that he wants to establish.

381. When the defendant or the plaintiff attempts to establish faults in the witnesses (cited by his opponent), it is not (to be deemed) a separate proceeding (and therefore as irrelevant) because it (establishing faults in witnesses) is useful in (deciding) the matter in hand.

382. The faults of witnesses (cited by a party) should be declared by (his) opponent in the open court, after writing

Nār. p. 83 v. 162 and p. 66 v. 94. Vy. Māt. p. 326 explains that a witness becomes 'mrtāntara' either when the creditor or debtor for whom he is to depose is dead, or when the subject of the transaction viz. the slave, bull or chattel is dead or lost. Nār p. 82 v. 157 mentions 'mrtāntara' as the last of the five classes of witnesses who cease to be so.

378. Here 'uktān' qualifies 'witnesses' and means 'uktavataḥ' (when they have deposed). Vide notes to V. M. p. 74 for further explanation. This is the same as Br. p. 302 v. 25, where Dr. Jolly translates differently.

379. 'First amercement.' - This is a fine of 250 paṇas or 270 paṇas (vide Manu VIII. 138 and Yāj. I. 366).

380. Vir. (p. 164) reads 'vāpi' and so holds that there is an option (viz. he may either be fined or lose his cause).

381. When faults are pointed out in a witness tending to affect his veracity or character, that is part of the trial of the suit and not a separate proceeding, but if further witnesses are allowed to be cited to prove the character attributed to him, then it would lead to them all down on paper (or leaf) and then (the witness) should be made to reply to them (to meet the faults).

383. In case of the admission (of the faults in the witnesses cited), they do not deserve to be witnesses (in the cause tried); if it be otherwise (i. e. if the faults be not admitted), they (the faults) should be established by the opponent by offering proof of them.

384. The opponent, not clearly establishing the faults (pointed out in) the witnesses, should be made to pay a fine ; all the witnesses that are established (as faulty) become bereft of the character of (proper) witnesses.

385. (The judge) should discern the (real) intention (or mental state) from the outward manifestations (such as sweat, horripilation), the gestures (looking down at the ground &c.) and physical movements ; the litigant becomes a losing party and he is found out (to be so) by inference (from the signs mentioned above).

386. Shaking (of the body), perspiration, languishing (of the body), dryness of lips, licking (of the corners of the lips with the tongue), scratching the ground (with the toes), restlessness (lit. leaving the place where one stands), looking sideways or upwards (towards the sky), change of voice—these the wise declare to be the signs of a false (party or witness).

examination of witnesses ad infinitum, as these latter witnesses again may be attacked by examining others and so on. Vyāsa quoted in अपराक, व्यवहारमालुका and स्मृतिच० makes this clear ' अन्यैस्तु साक्षिभिः साध्ये दूषणे पूर्वसाक्षिणाम् । अनवस्था भवेद् दोषस्तेषामप्यन्यतंभवाद् ॥ ' Compare sections 146 and 153 of the Indian Evidence Act.

384. We should understand 'doṣam' after 'sākṣiṇaḥ' and connect 'sphuṭam' with 'abhāvayan'.

385. This verse primarily applies to the parties, but the same rule holds good in the case of witnesses. 'Prativādi' here stands for both the sides (each of which opposes the other). Compare Manu VIII. 25-26 for almost the same ideas and words. These signs do not decide the matter, but they raise great suspicion and they make the judge and sabhyas scan the whole evidence very carefully.

386. Compare Yāj. II. 13-15 and Nār. p. 90 v. 193-196, Vi. VIII. 18 for similar signs. The reading 'vaivarṇaym' (losing colour, paleness or darkness of face) is better and is supported by the text of Yāj.

387. Witnesses should give their deposition inside the hall of justice and not anywhere else; this is the rule as regards all oral evidence; but it is otherwise as regards immovable property.

388. Witnesses should depose in the presence of the plaintiff and the defendant and near the matter to be established (in the suit) and never behind the back (of the parties).

389. Depositions should be taken down near (lit. over) the matter (in dispute) and in some cases even in places other than these two; this is the rule in (disputes about) quadrupeds and about bipeds and immovable property.

390. In all judicial proceedings (lit. where proof has to be given) witnesses should be made to depose even in the absence of things that are to be weighed (like gold), that are to be counted (like coins) or that are to be measured (like corn), but not in other cases.

391. In the case of the killing of living beings, witnesses should be made to depose in the presence of (an image of)

387. In the case of immovable property, the evidence may be taken on the property itself.

389. The words ' taylorapi vinā kvacit ' are explained in one way by Sm. C. and Par. M. and in another way by V. M. and Vir. The former say, witnesses are to be examined in court and may be examined also on the immovable property in suit. These are two places (tayoh) for the examination of witnesses; but in rare cases (kvacit) depositions may be taken elsewhere as said in verse 391. According to V. M. and Vir. the word ' kvacit ' is illustrated by the latter half i. e. in disputes about cattle &c. or about slaves &c. depositions may be taken near the subjects of disputes and ' tayoh ' is taken by V. M. to refer to the parties.

390. When the matter to be secured by litigation is gold or coins or grain, witnesses were to depose in court even without these being in court.

391. As Śiva is the god of destruction, it was probably thought that in the case of slaughter of human or other beings, depositions should be taken in a temple of Śiva. If we read ' Śava—', as the Par. M. does, the verse can be more easily construed. It would mean: witnesses should depose near the corpse, or in its absence

S'iva; but (this should be done) in the absence of any marks (of the animal killed or of killing); but when it is otherwise (i. e. when some mark exists) the witness should not be made to depose at all (in the temple of S'iva ?).

392. The words of the witnesses when free from faults should be taken down as naturally narrated by them; when the witnesses have stated (what they know), they should not be questioned by the king again and again.

393. Whatever the witnesses narrate naturally should be accepted as useful for deciding the legal proceeding; whatever they say otherwise than in this way is useless for the purpose of (finding out) the truth.

394-395. Whatever was observed by witnesses in a group should be deposed to in the same way (i. e. simultaneously) but what was seen by each separately should be deposed to separately. When a certain matter was known (perceived or experienced) by witnesses at different times, they should depose separately and at different times. This is the view of Bhṛgu.

396. In disputes about recovery of debts and the like which are of a permanent character, if witnesses depose to more near some mark (such as horn &c.) of the animal killed. Here ' tadabhāve ' means ' Śavābhāve ', but if we read Śiva, then ' tada-bhāve ' cannot mean Śivābhāve ' (as temples of Śiva must have been found everywhere in Kātyāyana's day) and ' tat ' there means ' sāksyam ' and ' abhāve ' is to be connected with ' cinhasya '. The Vir. (p. 168) goes so far as to explain that when there is a mark then there is no need of deposition of witnesses. Vide my notes to V. M. p. 75.

393. ' Naturally ' means ' without fear and the like. '

394-395. It is noteworthy that earlier writers like Aparārka ascribe these verses to Kāt. while later ones ascribe them to Vasiṣṭha. Compare Gautama XIII. 5 and vide Vir. p. 169 which notices Haradatta's explanation.

396-397. ' Of a permanent character ' —This refers to civil disputes like recovery of debt, in which there is no urgency, while in crimes there is urgency. Verse 396 lays down that if witnesses are cited for proving the whole of a claim and they depose to more or less (than what is alleged in the plaint), then the entire claim does not certainly succeed.

397. When witnesses depose only to a part of the matter alleged (in the plaint or reply) in charges of adultery, heinous crimes (sāhasa) and theft, the whole of the matter that is alleged may be held proved.

398-399 Where (the statements of witnesses) are less or more (than what is affirmed by the parties), the depositions of witnesses should be omitted (from consideration); the witnesses in such a case are not liable to fine; he (witness) deserves to be fined if he does not depose (to what he knows). When the depositions of witnesses are in conflict as to the place, time, the amount of money, the number, colour, the species, the form or shape and the age (as stated in the plaint or reply), the wise say that the depositions are (as good as) not given.

400-401. When several matters have been definitely asserted (in the plaint or reply), if the witnesses, when the time for deposing arrives, do not make a statement coinciding with the or less than the claim, the whole claim is not established i. e. by the mere proof of a part, the whole claim will not be awarded, as there will be doubt in the court's mind as to the truth of the claim. He will then have to adduce other evidence to prove the claim. Compare Yāj. II. 79, Nār. p. 96 v. 234 and Br. p. 303 v. 32 for the same proposition. Vide verse 219 above, which applies where the opponent totally denies every item of the claim and the plaintiff establishes some of the items claimed. Verse 473 applies where a son is called upon to pay his father's debts and he says he does not know. There he cannot be said to deny the whole claim and so the principle of verse 219 cannot apply. Vide verse 365 for 'sthirakarmasu' applied to 'debt and the like'. In 397 it is laid down that even when witnesses are cited to prove all facts stated in the complaint about certain heinous crimes and they depose to only some of them, the whole may be held proved.

398-399. This applies to civil disputes like recovery of debts, as in 396. For the fine for not giving evidence vide Yāj. II. 76. For 399, compare similar provisions in Nār. p. 96 v. 233 and Br. p. 393 v. 33.

400-401. Verse 400 is the same as Nārada, ṛṇādāna 232, and 401 is almost the same as Nārada, ṛṇādāna 234. It would be better to read 'anuktaṃ' in 401. As both these verses do not add to what statement (in the plaint or reply), that testimony becomes no testimony. Where witnesses depose to matters either more or less (than those in the plaint or reply), that should be regarded as improper (testimony); this is the certain conclusion about (the testimony of) witnesses.

(Faults of witnesses and fines imposed on them).

402-403. If deposing to everything even when not asked or not replying to what is asked, witnesses should be arrested, censured and fined according to the (rules of) law. In the case of abuse (defamation or libel), and in case of deceit they (witnesses) should be made to pay a fine of three hundred (paṇas) and in disputes about (recovery of) debts and the like, they should be made to pay the amount of fine and also the debt (in dispute).

404. A witness who has not been appointed (as a witness at the time of the transaction in dispute), or who is not summoned (as a witness) or who is not pointed out (as a witness) should be fined, since he is a vile person, when he deposes saying 'this is true, that is false.'

405-406. If one who has witnessed a transaction would not depose as a witness, he would have to bear (i. e. pay) the debt (in dispute) and an equal amount of fine, but in disputes other than this (i. e. other than debts) he deserves to be fined three hundred. Witnesses who, having first said one thing, depose contrary to that should be fined, since they are full of deceitful words.

is stated in 396, 398 it is probable that Sar. ascribed them to Kāt. through oversight. Kaut. says 'साक्षिणश्चेदाभियोगादूनं ब्रूयुरतिरिक्तस्याभियोक्ता. वन्धं दद्यात् अतिरिक्तं वा ब्रूयुस्तदतिरिक्तं राजा हरेत् (text p. 176). Vy. Māt. (p. 312) has a long note on verse 400 in which he refutes at length the views of Yogloka on this verse.

402-403. Compare Gautama XIII. 6 'अवचनेऽन्यथावचने च दोषिणः स्युः' Yāj. II. 77, Br p. 303 v. 31 and Vi VIII. 37. The Sm. C. notices that in v. 403 'they' refers only to witnesses who do not reply to what is asked.

405-406. For 405 Compare Manu VIII. 107 (which prescribes a fine of one-tenth of the debt in dispute), Yāj. II. 76 (who also prescribes only one-tenth). Kaut. (p. 177) cites the view of the Mānavas 'कूटसाक्षिणो यमर्थमभूतं वा नाशयेयुस्तदशुणं दण्डं दधुरिति मानवाः.' Here, 'das'agunam' is probably a wrong paraphrase of 'das'abandham in Manu VIII. 107.

407. (The king) should seize all the wealth of the man who through the greed of (winning) the cause cited false witnesses and should then banish him from the country.

408. When a matter (in dispute) has been established by the plaintiff by means of witnesses, if the defendant were to prove that matter to be otherwise by more witnesses (than those for the plaintiff) or by witnesses of better family, then the witnesses first deposing become false.

409. When the means of proof are shown to be faultless according to the rules of law, then comes the (business of) testing of their statements (lit. sentences). The fixed rule is that that matter must be regarded as faultless which follows from faultless testimony.

410. Where a witness tells a falsehood, it would be found out in a week or two weeks or three weeks or 46 days (in the guise of) disease, fire or death of (near) relative (befalling a false witness) according to the difference in the material (in dispute) or the caste (of the witness).

407. Vide Manu VIII. 123 which according to some interpretations prescribes the drastic punishment of death or cutting off of the tongue for persistently engaging in false claims and banishment to brāhmanas; and Mit. on Yāj. II. 81 (which gives various interpretations of Manu VIII. 123).

408. ' Witnesses of better family '— this is only illustrative and means witnesses who are of better character or standing or more meritorious. Vide Yāj. II. 80. The Mit. on Yāj. II. 80 does not accept this interpretation and says that the texts of Yāj. and Kāt. apply to a case where the plaintiff cites a number of witnesses some of whom are near and some far off and examines only those who are near and is about to fail on their evidence, when he should be allowed to examine better witnesses from far off, if already named.

409. ' Kriyā ' means the ' pramāṇas viz. documents, witnesses, possession. ' ' Suddhi ' means ' removing or absence of the several faults as to writings and witnesses laid down in the Śāstra '. This verse must be connected with verse 340 above, which enjoins upon the judge the duty of scrutinizing the statements of witnesses.

410. This verse means that the king should wait for a week or two weeks &c. after finding a witness to be false to see if any of the calamities mentioned befall him and then fine him. Compare Manu VIII. 108 (for waiting for a week) and VIII. 120-121 (for fines for perjury). ' Jāti ' may also mean ' the species of the thing in dispute '. Sar. (p. 150) quotes Viṣṇu शतनाशे षट्चत्वारिंशद्विषसप्रतीक्षणम् दिशतनाशे त्रिसप्ताहप्रतीक्षणम् । पञ्चशतनाशे द्विसप्ताहप्रतीक्षणम् । सहस्रनाशे सप्ताहप्रतीक्षणम् ॥ १ ॥

(Ordeals and their assignment according to the several titles of law).

411. No one should appoint the plaintiff (or complainant) to the (undergoing of) ordeals. Those who are experts in ordeals should offer ordeals to the defendant (or accused).

412-413. The ordeals of balance and others should be appointed in the case of those who are suspected by kings (for treason, sedition &c.) for proving the purity of their intentions. In such cases no undertaking to pay fine should be laid down (as a condition before ordeal is offered). The ordeals of balance and others should be appointed in the case of those who are labouring under scandals among the people and who are suspected of association with dasyus (robbers). In such cases there is no undertaking to pay a fine (as a condition before ordeal is offered). (This is the view of) Bhṛgu.

411. This states the general rule about offering ordeals. Vide Nār.p. 101 v. 257 and Yāj. II. 95-96, which say that when the plaintiff files his action with the undertaking to pay a fine or undergo bodily punishment if he were defeated, ordeals were to be offered to defendant or there is an option i. e. by mutual agreement any one of the parties may undergo ordeal. The Chāndogya Upaniṣad (VI. 16) contains one of the oldest and clearest references to ordeals. Among the older Dharmasūtras Apastamba (II. 11.29.6) refers in general terms to divine method of proof but gives no details. Manu only (VIII. 109-116) refers to administration of oaths and alludes to ordeals of fire and water (VIII. 174). Vi. IX- XIV speaks of five ordeals (of balance, fire, water, poison and Kośa). Yāj. II. 95 speaks of the same five but seems to have known of phāla also (II. 99). Nārada (ṛgādāna verses 251-348) adds the ordeals of ' taṇḍulabhakṣaṇa ' and ' taptamāṣa ' to the five of Yāj. and Vi., Bhṛhaspati (Br. p. 315 vv. 4-5) and Pitāmaha speak of nine (adding ' phāla ' and ' dharmaja ' to the seven of Nārada). Pitāmaha gave the most elaborate treatment and about 200 verses of his on ordeals are quoted in the digests. Kāt. distinctly names seven but seems to have known more (vv. 460-461).

412-413. ' Śīras ' is explained as ' the undertaking to pay a fine if one were defeated ', since ' fine ' is the fourth (and so last and most important part) pāda of vyavahāra depending on victory or defeat and therefore is called ' śīras ' or ' śīrśaka '. In these cases mentioned in 412-413 there is no necessity to insist on somebody undertaking to pay a fine or undergoing corporal punishment. The important matter is to clear one's character and so the man may at once offer to undergo an ordeal when charged with any one of them.

414. In charges based on suspicion no undertaking to pay fine or undergo corporal punishment should ever be laid down (as a condition) in offering the ordeal of 'kośa.' Ordeals should be offered to the servants of the king without (the requirement of) an undertaking (to pay fine &c.).

415. The ordeal of 'kośa' alone should be offered in cases of securing confidence when there is suspicion, always at the time of partition among members of the same family and when several persons do one act in a body.

416. Where there is a denial of a gift (lit. of a thing given), (the judge) should (first) find out the standard value of the thing in gold and should then settle which, if any, ordeal was to be offered. In the case of theft and heinous crimes (sāhasa) ordeal should be offered (to the accused) even when the subject (of the crime) is of slight value.

417. Understanding the price of all things (that are the subject of dispute), (the judge) should find out (their equivalent in) gold and then he should appoint the (proper) ordeal in accordance with the amount of gold (in dispute).

418-419. After ascertaining (for the value of the subject matter in dispute) the number of suvarṇas it is declared that in the case of denial (by the accused or defendant) of a hundred (suvarṇas) poison (is the proper ordeal), for

414. 'Kos'a' ordeal is always meant only for proving 'citta-suddhi,' so it is to be undergone without an undertaking when one is simply suspected. In plaints of a serious character, even the ordeal of kośa cannot be offered without an undertaking. Vide Yāj. II. 95. For latter half, compare Nār. p. 105 v. 270.

415. 'Kriyāsamūhakarṭṭve' may also mean 'where there are several persons on whom the burden of proof lies in various ways.' Vir. p. 229 explains as above. 'Kośa' ordeal consists in drinking three handfuls of water used in bathing the fierce gods like Durgā, the Sun at the time of worship. Vide Yāj. II. 112, Nār. p. 116 v. 329.

417. Compare vi. IX. 4. 'सर्वेष्वेवार्थजातेषु मूल्यं कनकं कल्पयेत्'.

418-419. The Mit. says that Yāj. II. 99 (that neither the ordeal of ploughshar nor poison nor balance was to be offered up to a denial of eighty suvarṇas, (the judge) should offer fire. For denial of sixty (ordeal of) water should be offered, and for forty (ordeal of) balance, for the denial of twenty or ten (suvarṇas) drinking of sacred water (kośa) is prescribed.

420--421. In denial of more (suvarṇas) than five and up to one fourth of that the ordeal of taṇḍula, but in the denial of one fourth of the last (the person should touch) the head of his son and the like ; in denial of one fourth of that, it is declared that ordinary modes of proof (viz. oaths) should be employed. A king thus deciding (disputes) does not fall away from dharma (righteousness) and artha.

(The offering of ordeals according to the castes and avocations of the plaintiff and defendant.)

422. (The king) should appoint the ordeal of fire for a Kṣatriya, balance for a Brāhmaṇa and water for a Vāiśya or he may appoint any ordeal for all castes but the ordeal of poison is to be eschewed in the case of a brāhmaṇa.

423. (The king) should offer (ordeal) to the members of the three higher castes who are cowherds, traders, artisans, bards, servants and usurers as if they were śūdras.

424. He should not offer ordeal of fire to blacksmiths and water to those who ply watercraft, and never poison to those who are experts in mantras (incantations) and yoga practices ; he should not appoint taṇḍulas to him who is observing a vow (such as subsisting on milk alone) and to one suffering from mouth-disease.

thousand) refers to a thousand copper paṇas. Compare Br. p. 316 vv. 9-12. For suvarṇa vide notes on verses 493-494 below.

420-421. 'More than five'-means six and upwards ; $\frac{1}{2}$ of six and over would be $1\frac{1}{2}$ and more. 'Should touch the head of his son.' This was a kind of special oath. Compare Manu VIII. 114 and Nār. p. 100 vv. 247-250. The V.M. (text p. 46) quotes a verse of Nārada not found in Dr. Jolly's edition 'स्वश्रेष्ठिरासि पुत्राणां दाराणां सुहृदां तथा । अभियोगेषु सर्वेषु कोशपानमथापि वा ॥' which is similar to Manu VIII. 114. The three goals of life are dharma, artha and kāma. Vide Kauṭ. I. 7. Philosophers add a fourth 'mokṣa.'

422. Compare Nār. p. 117 vv. 334-335.

424. Compare Vi. IX. 25 and Nār. p. 101 v. 255.

425. He should omit fire (ordeal) in the case of those who are lepers and water in the case of those who suffer from difficulty in breathing and cough; he should always omit poison in the case of those who suffer from (excess of) bile and phlegm.

426. The ordeal of kośa (sacred water) should not be offered by the wise to drunkards and persons addicted to women, to gamblers and those who are irreligious in their life.

427-430. A king bent upon dharma should not prescribe ordeals for those who are charged with killing their mother, father, a person of the three higher castes, a teacher, a child, woman and king, those who are guilty of the grave sins and particularly those who are irreligious, those who wear (or subsist by means of) peculiar sect-marks, those who are great rogues, those who are experts in mantras and yoga practices, those who are the progeny of mixed unions, those who repeatedly engage in sin and in charges of the above description and in all other censurable matters. The king should offer ordeal (in the case of these men) to good men appointed by these (to undergo an ordeal); where good men do not desire (to undergo ordeal for them), the king should test their innocence by (offering ordeal) to their own men (i. e. their relatives and friends).

431. Ordeal should not be offered (to be performed in person) to those who are guilty of grave sins and specially to those who are irreligious and to those who are addicted to repeated commission of sins.

432. In these disputes (the king) should vigilantly make (the persons charged) undergo the ordeals through good

425. Compare Vi. IX. 29 and Nār. p. 101 v. 255.

426. Compare Nār. p. 117 v. 332.

427-430. For the five great sins vide Manu XI. 54. What is meant is that these persons should not be called upon personally to undergo an ordeal and it is not meant that ordeals should not be employed in their cases.

431. This practically repeats the latter half of 427 and the last quarter of 428.

men (though) forbidden (to them in their own person); he should not leave the person charged of sin (without testing his guilt or otherwise by ordeals); (this is the view of) Manu.

433. But in the case of the untouchables, the lowest castes, slaves, mlecchas and those who are the offsprings of mixed unions in the reverse order of castes when guilty of sins the determination (by the above named ordeals) should not be done by the king. He should indicate such ordeals as are well-known among them in case of doubt (about their guilt).

(The proper place of ordeals)

434-435. (The king) should employ (ordeals) in a well-known temple in the case of men who are accused of the grave sins and near the royal gate in the case of those who engage in treason. Ordeal should be offered in a public square where four roads meet to those who are the progeny of mixed unions in the reverse order of castes; the wise declare that in cases other than these ordeals should be offered inside the sabhā (hall of justice).

436. He (the king) should appoint whatever ordeal is proper, when the time or place is in conflict (is not appropriate); he should make another (a person appointed by the

433. When a male of a lower caste enters into union with a woman of a higher caste than his own, it is said to be a pratiloma union. The Divyatattva (p. 579) of Raghunandana explains that the ordeals well-known among these people are those of the snake in the jar and the like. This explanation is copied by the Vir. p. 238 and the V. M. p. 49. The Sm. C. explains that this rule is to be followed when relatives appointed by them for undergoing ordeals cannot be had.

434-435. The Par. M. explains 'Indrasthāna' (lit. place of Indra) as implying any temple of a well-known deity; while the Divyatattva explains it as 'place where the banner of Indra was raised' and the Vir. p. 241 follows this. The Indradhvaja was a festival in honour of Indra in the bright half of Bhādrapada from the 8th to the 12th (11th being the principal day). Vide the Brhat-samhitā of Varāhamihira chap. 43. Compare Nār. p. 104 v. 265 which says that the balance was to be planted near the royal gate or near a temple or where four roads meet.

436. Vir. p. 238 and V. M. p. 49 reads '—sāvirodhe' (when the accused) undergo the ordeal ; this is the rule when the opposite is the case (i.e. when the accused cannot undergo ordeal in person).

437. When (ordeals) are administered at an improper time or place and when they are performed outside human habitation (i. e. in a lonely place), they always fail as to the matters in hand ; there is no doubt about this.

438. If the means (i.e. the ordeal employed) fails, then the matter to be decided should again be investigated (by other ordeal); even when ordeals are offered by fools, greedy persons or by others who are vitiated (by some defect or other) and undergone they should be ignored by the king and he should offer them again in accordance with what is said above.

439. Therefore an ordeal should be administered according to the rules prescribed by persons expert (in those rules). If an ordeal is administered against the rules, it is not capable of establishing that (matter in hand).

440. When the scales or the balance or the rope breaks and when there is a doubt as to whether (a man's) innocence has been established, (the king) should again test the man (by ordeal).

(The procedure of fire ordeal)

441. If the accused (undergoing the fire ordeal) misses his footing or is burnt elsewhere than in the proper place, the gods declare that it is no burning, the king should again offer him (fire ordeal).

time and place do not conflict). This seems to be better.

437. The idea is that they cease to be decisive of the matters in dispute when so administered. Dr. Jolly (Nār. p. 250 v. 15) renders ' constitute a deviation from the proper course of a law suit, ' but this is not accurate.

439. Br. p. 317 v. 18 is almost the same verse.

440. Compare Vi. X. 13.

441. ' The proper place ' viz. the hands in the fire ordeal (and not other parts of the body).

(The procedure of the water ordeal)

442--445. For establishing innocence (by water ordeal) he should make ready arrows the points of which are not made of iron and which are made of pieces of bamboo and the archer (lit. the person throwing) should throw (the arrows) with great force. When (the arrow) is discharged (the accused) should dive (into water) and simultaneously with the diving (another person) runs (to the place where the arrow fell); when he reaches that place, (another man) starts back (from the place to the place whence the arrow was shot) and another man stands in water (whose thighs the man undergoing the ordeal and diving holds underneath the water). If only the head (of the accused) diving in water be seen (by the person who returns to the place whence the arrow was shot) and neither the ears, nor the nose, then he (the king) should declare him to be innocent. If a man after diving again rises up (over the water), being bitten by an (aquatic animal), he should again dive into the water when the marks of the bite have been shown.

(Procedure of the ordeal of poison)

446. That is known to be the S'ārgiṇa poison which resembles the horns of a goat, is dark and yellow and produced from the peaks (of mountains) and looks like ginger when crushed.

442-445. Vide my notes to V. M. p. 108 for the whole process of the water ordeal. In 444 read 'śiromātram,' vide Nār. pp. 111-113 verses 305-312 for a complete description of this ordeal. 'He should again dive into the water' - i. e. he should undergo the ordeal again. We should read in 445 with the Divyatattva (p. 601) 'daṣṭaḥ' and 'daṁśacihna.'

446. It is better to read 'supītam' and 'sārṅgiṇam'. Nār. (p. 115 v. 322) speaks of Sārṅga poison from the Himālayas as the poison to be given in ordeal and Kāt. appears to be explaining it. Dr. Jolly translates 'sārṅga' as 'from śringa plant,' which is doubtful. Viṣṇu XIII. 2-3 has 'विषाण्यदेयानि सर्वाणि । कृते हिमाचलोद्भवाच्छाङ्गात् ।' and Yāj. II. 111 'एवमुक्त्वा विषं शाङ्गं भक्षयेद्विमिश्रितम् ।' That is said to be 'S'ringaka poison,' which being tied to a cow's horn makes her milk blood-red.

447. That (poison) makes the blood dark and hard (clotted) in a moment. In this way those who are expert in ordeals should know (this) ordeal.

448-449. That should be known as Vatsanābhaka, which is yellow and like the navel of a calf and appears like mother-pearl and conch when crushed ; it is known for certain from its colour. It should be at once made pure by adding to it honey and milk. Those who carry out (the dictates of) dharma declare the outward signs (of poison) in this way.

450. One should give poison (as an ordeal) to a person in the forenoon and in a cool place. The poison should be mixed with 30 times of ghee and should be pounded into fine powder.

451. He should give to the person to be tested (by poison ordeal) poison less by one-eighth from the 20th part of the sixth part of a pala of poison and it should be mixed with ghee.

(The procedure of the ordeal of sacred libation).

452. In the case of slight wrongs (or crimes) the person charged should be made to drink the water of the weapons of the deities after bathing them (in worship); if he undergoes change he should be declared to be guilty and should be punished, but if otherwise he (should be declared to be) innocent.

451. Pala is equal to 960 yavas. vide Manu VIII. 134-135. 1/20 of 1/6 of a pala is equal to 8 yavas and when one-eighth is deducted, it is seven. So seven yavas of poison were to be given as a general rule. This verse is the same as Nār. p. 115 v. 323. Verse 324 of Nār. says that seven or eight yavas may be given in winter, only five in summer and six in the rainy season.

452. ' If he undergoes change ' - i. e. if some calamity befalls him (as indicated in vv. 410 and 457). Nār. p. 116 v. 330, Br. p. 311 v. 24, Vi. XIV. 4-5 say that if he meets with a calamity in a week or fortnight it shall be regarded as proof of his guilt. Compare for the kośa ordeal, Yāj. II. 112, Nār. p. 116 v. 329, Br. p. 318 v. 23 (whatever deity the accused happens to be devoted, let the judge bathe the weapon of that deity in water and give him to drink three hand-fuls of water).

(The procedure of the ordeal of tandulas)

453. In the case of the ordeal of the water of the bath of deities and in the ordeal of chewing rice, the accused (is declared to be) innocent if what he spits out is pure (not streaked with blood); if otherwise, he is guilty and should be punished.

454. (The king or judge) should make the plaintiff (or complainant) who attacks (the defendant) with pride pay a fine and also the subject-matter of dispute, when the defendant is found to be innocent by means of the kośa ordeal. A religious king should honour the person who is (found to be) innocent by means of an ordeal.

455. Where (in an ordeal of tandula) blood is seen (i.e. issues forth from the mouth) or the hair on the chin sink (ar) shattered or fall off) and the whole body trembles, (the judge should declare the man to be guilty.

456-457. (The judge) should sedulously make the accused pay, after three weeks, in case of the befalling of fateful calamities (on the defendant undergoing the kośa or tandula ordeal), a fine and the subject of dispute. If any one of the following befall him alone and not all people (in the neighbourhood,) viz. disease, fire, the death of a near relative (like son or wife), then he should be made to pay the fine and also the debt (i. e. subject of dispute).

453. It is better to read, as V. M. does, ' digdha ' for ' divye . ' The Tandula ordeal was administered in case of theft only and in it grains of rice were placed in an earthen vessel in the sight of the image of the Sun and after pouring over them water in which an image of the sun had been bathed and keeping them in that way for the night the judge gave the water to the accused in the morning. Vide Nār. p. 118 vv. 338-342 and Br. p. 318 v. 25.

455. This is Nār. p. 119 v. 342 where we read दन्तजालं च शीयते ' whose tooth-flesh is shattered ' for हनु etc.

456-457. ' Daivavismvāda ' - it means ' the non-correspondence shown by fate. ' Verse 458 enumerates some of the strokes of fate from which one was to judge. Compare Nār. p. 116 v. 330. If many people suffer from an epidemic (including the person undergoing an ordeal), that was no sign for the inference of guilt or defeat and the disease must be serious and not slight,

458. The diseases brought on men by (the wrath of) Fate are tuberculosis, diarrhoea, boils, pain in the palate and bones, eye disease, throat disease and so also seizure (by evil spirits), headache, fracture of the arms.

459-461. (The king) should cause fifty (paṇas) to be paid by the man who is found innocent (by ordeal) and one who is found guilty (by ordeal) is liable to pay a fine. In the ordeals of poison, water, fire, balance, sacred libation, rice grains, and in the ordeal of taptamāṣa, (the judge) should prescribe a (special) fine (for the defeated party) of a thousand paṇas, six hundred, five hundred, four hundred, three hundred, two hundred or one hundred respectively and a lesser fine in the case of lesser ordeals (than these).

(Procedure of Oaths).

462. Where some (religious) rite is enjoined, but there is no express mention of the limb of the person doing (with which it is to be done), there the right hand is to be understood as meant for carrying out to the end the rites (enjoined).

463. He on whom no terrible calamity due to king or fate befalls up to the fourteenth day should be regarded as pure by taking oaths.

459-461. The fifty paṇas that the innocent man has to pay is not a fine but is in the nature of return (modern court fee) to the state for the services of the judge etc. Compare Vi. VI. 21 for successful plaintiff paying 1/20 (to the king). Verses 460-461 specify the special fine to be paid on account of defeat by the several ordeals in addition to the fine laid down for the defeated party by Manu VIII. 59 and Yāj. II. 11. Vide Mit. on Yāj. II. 113. For ' taptamāṣa ' vide Nār, p. 119 vv. 343-348, Br. p. 318 v. 26 and V. M. pp. 83-84 (text), which last gives two varieties of it.

462. This occurs in the Kātyāyanasmṛti (I. 8 on ācāra published by Jivananda in his collection vol. I. This means that if a person was to touch the head of his son or wife as a special oath, he was to do so with the right hand.

463. This is practically the same as Yāj. II. 113. Compare Manu VIII. 115. For the various forms of oaths vide Manu VIII. 113-114, Nār. p. 100 v. 248.

(Consideration of the transactions entered into by those who are lunatics or dependent and the like.)

464. What is gifted or done by one intoxicated or one who is a lunatic or by one who had a different intention, that does not at all attain validity.

465. The master may cancel a transaction entered into by one who is dependent (on him). The other party cannot file a suit against the master (on such a transaction) except as regards transactions entered into by those who were under a fear or those who were mad.

466. The father is independent (is his own master), but (the son) whose father is living, the brother (whose elder brother is living), the brother's son, a younger member who has not partitioned his share of the family wealth, a slave and a menial (are dependent).

467-471. The gift, mortgage and sale of fields, houses and slaves entered into by those who are dependent do not attain validity, if they are not approved of (by those on whom

464. Vide verse 271 above. ' Who had a different intention ' - This means that both parties to a transaction must take it in the same sense. If the executant thought that he was executing one transaction (e. g. a mortgage) and what was actually written was a different one (e. g. a sale), then he could avoid. Compare Kauṭ. III. 1 (p. 148) तत्रापि कुदेना तेन मत्तेनोन्मत्तेनोपगृह्णीतेन वा कृता व्यवहारा न सिध्ययुः ।'

465. Transactions entered into by those who are coerced or those who are mad can be annulled only by the king; hence they are excepted but transactions, entered into by those who are declared to be asvatantṛa on behalf of their masters, can be repudiated by the master himself Vide Nār. pp. 50-51, vv. 33-34 for an enumeration of those who are asvatantṛa.

466. Read 'pitāsvatantrah' and understand 'asvatantṛah' after 'pitṛmān'. Compare Nār. p. 29 vv. 29-31 (for son, slave and younger brother) and Kauṭ. III. 1 (p. 148) ' मिथः समवाये चोपहरकृताः सिध्ययुः । अतोऽन्यथा न सिध्ययुः । अपाश्रयवद्भिश्च कृताः पितृमता पुत्रेण पिता पुत्रवता निष्कुलन भ्राता कनिष्ठनाविमक्तशिन ' &c.

467-471. ' When they are supported ' etc. i. e. when they enter into the transactions with the permission or approval of their masters. For the propositions in 467-469 compare Nār. pp. 49-50 vv. 26-27 and 29 and for 470 compare Bṛhaspati ' यः स्वामिना नियुक्तस्तु धनयव्ययपालने । they are dependent). All these (dependent persons) have authority for the sale and purchase of marketable goods, if they are supported (by their masters) when they enter into the transactions. In the same way the (younger) brother, the brother's son, or the son (have authority for the sale &c.) of fields and the rest, if they are appointed (authorised) to enter into these transactions by their elders when going (abroad). Whoever is appointed to do a certain act is master as regards that matter and his master has no power to undo the transaction entered into by him. The dependence (on the father or husband) of the son or of the wife (consists only) in his (father's or husband's) right to control them (or their actions), but the father has no power over the son so far as selling or gifting him is concerned.

(Decision of the suit)

472. Purification is declared by those who know the essence of śāstras to be the remedy (for wrong-doing); it is two-fold, viz. prāyaścitta (expiatory rites) and punishment.

कुसीदकृषिवाणिज्ये निसृष्टार्थस्तु स स्मृतः॥ प्रमाणं तत्कृतं सर्वं लाभालाभव्ययोदयम् । स्वदेशे वा विदेशे वा स्वामी तं न विसृज्येत् ॥ 'quoted in स्मृतिच० III, p. 308. Vide Br. p. 298 vv. 7-8. This shows that Kāt. uses the very word निसृष्टार्थ used by बृहस्पति. As to 471 several points have to be noted. Ancient writers appear to have held that a father could even sell his son. The Nirukta (III, 4) refers to the view of some who relying on the story of Śunahśepa in the Aitareyabrāhmaṇa held that the father could gift, sell or abandon his son. The Vāsiṣṭhadharmasūtra (XV, 2) says that the parents have power to give, sell or abandon their son. Manu VIII, 416 and the Mahābhārata (Udyoga 33.64) say that all wealth acquired by the son, the wife and the slave belongs to him to whom they belong. The Mit. commenting on Yāj. II, 175 and the Vir. (p. 567) hold that a man has ownership over his wife and children. But it is refreshing to find that Kāt. holds the opposite view and that the V. M. (text p. 92) distinctly states that there is no ownership over the wife or children. Kaut. (III, 13 p. 181) notes that it is no crime for mlecchas to sell or hypothecate their children, but the Āryas cannot do so.

472. We must read 'dandaśca'.

473. In claims containing various items, the creditor (or plaintiff) secures (a decree for) as much property as he establishes (to be his) by means of witnesses.

474. Where the defendant, after having totally denied (the whole claim in the reply), has to admit even a small part before (the court), he should be made to pay the whole. This is the view of Brhaspati.

475. In this way (the king), occupying the seat of justice, should decide the causes with the advice or help of brāhmaṇas in the presence of the litigants and not otherwise.

476. The king, after having himself looked into the judicial proceedings or after learning about them from the judge, should give a document of victory (to the successful party) for the purpose of information (to all).

(Rules about punishment)

477-478. The king should make a brāhmaṇa return (a debt due) to the creditor by conciliatory words, make others return a debt according to the usage of the country and should make bad people repay (their debt) by means of physical pain (i. e. imprisonment &c.). (The king) should make

473. According to the Sm. C. this applies where the opponent is not shown to be very wicked, while according to the Mit. (on Yāj. II. 20) this applies to a case where a son when called upon to pay his father's debt replies that he does not know or that he was not then present or born. Vide notes on 396 above.

474. If we read 'mithyālpamapi' etc., the meaning would be 'having denied everything in the reply of denial, if he admits even a little.' Compare Vi. VI. 22.

475. Compare Manu VIII. 1-2, Yāj. II. 1.

476. Vide vv. 259-265 above for paścātkāra and jayapatra. Compare Br. p. 298 vv. 3-4. Vide Journal of Bihar and Orissa Research Society vol. VII p. 117 for a jayapatra dated 928 A. D.

477-478. Manu VIII. 49 says that a creditor was to recover his just debts in five ways, viz. dharma (conciliatory but truthful words), by vyavahāra (by suit), chala (trick viz. bringing ornaments etc. from debtor under the pretext of a festival), ācarita (fasting at his door) and by force (i. e. putting fetters on him). When a creditor employed these means to recover a debt that was admitted he was not to be found fault a coparcener or friend (of the successful party) pay by means of a ruse and also traders, husbandmen, and artisans. This is what Bhṛgu declared.

479-480. On knowing (the debtor) to be unable to return the debt, (the king) should make him over (to the creditor) and make him work. If he be unable to work, he should be sent to jail except in the case of brāhmaṇas. He should make husbandmen, kṣatriyas, vaiśyas and śūdras repay (a debt) by making them work.

481. Punishment is not at all prescribed (by sacred with by the king (vide Yāj. II. 40, and Manu VIII. 50); but if the debtor denied the debt, the only remedy was a suit. Vide Br. p. 330 vv. 53-58 for explanation of the words dharma, chala, ācarita and bala. Sāntva stands for the remedy dharma, sampīḍya for ācarita and bala.

479-480. Compare Manu VIII. 177 and IX. 229 and Yāj. II. 43 for making the debtor (who is not a brāhmaṇa) work. Punishment was either physical (from imprisonment to death) or monetary (vide Nār. p. 231 vv. 53-54). A brāhmaṇa was not to be subjected to corporal punishment, according to Manu VIII. 124 and Gautama XII. 43. The punishments for a brāhmaṇa were according to Gautama (XII. 44) preventing him from doing the same thing, depriving him of all wealth, taking sureties from him, proclaiming him as a thief in the town or city, banishing him, putting on him the marks indicating his guilt (vide Manu IX. 237). The Sm. C. (III. p. 292) relying on Manu IX. 236 and other dicta says that a brāhmaṇa could be imprisoned but he could not be subjected to any corporal punishment such as beating, cutting off the hand for theft etc. Manu VIII. 379 says that tonsuring the head of a brāhmaṇa for a crime is equal to the sentence of death. Āpastamba Dh. S. II. 10. 27. 16-17 lays down that a brāhmaṇa guilty of murder, theft, forcible seizure of another's land was to have his eyes covered over with cloth for his life (so that he could not see anything). Though the brāhmaṇa was free from corporal punishment, owing to the policy of the state in ancient India, he could be imprisoned, banished from the realm or could be deprived of the use of sight. Even in modern times state policy prevents the arrest or imprisonment of an agriculturist in the Bombay Presidency in execution of a decree for money; vide sec. 21 of the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act, XVII of 1879.

481. Manu VIII. 129 and Yāj. I. 367 say that punishment is fourfold, viz. saying 'fie on you', severe reproof or condemnation in words, fine, corporal punishment. Br. p. 387 v. 7 lays down which of these four is appropriate to whom and p. 387 vv. 5-6 say that admonition (with the word 'fie') is appropriate to light offences, texts) for the preceptor, the father, the mother, and also the relatives, when these are guilty of offences.

482. Where an offence was committed when life was in danger, there should be no punishment at all; this is the dharma (the rule of law) declared by Bṛgu.

483. (The king) should not at all award death sentence to a brāhmaṇa even though he may be guilty of any offence whatever; (the king) should banish him from the kingdom with all his wealth and without any bodily injury to him.

484. When (any person) from among the four varṇas does not undergo prāyaścitta (expiation for offences committed) the king should prescribe (for him) proper punishment consisting of fine or corporal injury.

485. If ksatriyas or brāhmaṇas are guilty of an offence for which a sūdra is liable to be punished according to law, then they would be liable to double and double (of the punishment for the sūdra.)

reproof to pūrvasāhasa, fine to middling sāhasas and imprisonment to treason &c. The verse of Kāt. is meant to forbid punishment by way of fine and corporal punishment only in the case of preceptors &c. Compare Saṅkha 'अदण्ड्यौ मातापितरौ स्नातकपुरोहितौ परित्राजकवानप्रस्थौ जन्मकर्मश्रुतिशीलशौचाचारवन्तश्च' (quoted in Sm. C. III. p. 296); and-गौ. ध. सूत्र VIII. 12-13 पृष्ठभिः परिहार्यौ राज्ञा ॥ अवध्यश्चावन्ध्यश्चादण्ड्यश्च-बहिष्कार्यश्चापरिवाद्यश्चापरिहार्यश्चेति ॥'. Compare the principle underlying sec. 562 of the Cri. Pro. Code. Yāj. I. 358 says that a king has to punish his own son, or father-in law &c.

482. This enunciates the right of private defence of body. Compare sec. 97 and 99 of the Indian Penal Code.

483. Compare Gautama XII. 43 'न शरीरो ब्राह्मणदण्डः' and Manu IX. 241. Vide Br. p. 388 v. 11.

484. The Par. M. explains that if the offending brāhmaṇa does not submit to being banished, then he has to be punished just as a ksatriya would be, viz. with fine or imprisonment. Compare आप. ध. सू. II. 5. 10. 17-18 'स ब्राह्मणान्नियुज्यात् । बलविशेषेण वधदास्यवर्जं नियमेरुपशोषयेत् ॥'; also गीतम् XII. 44.

485. The idea seems to be that a ksatriya should be awarded double the punishment which a sūdra would be awarded for the same offence and a brāhmaṇa four times as much.

486. The king should punish a śūdra, who forsakes the order of sannyāsins (after having entered it) and who intently practises japa (silent muttering of prayers) and homa, with death (or corporal punishment) or he should be punished with double the fine.

487. In the case of all offences, women should pay half of the fine in money which is prescribed for a male ; when (the punishment for an offence) is death in the case of males, (the punishment for women would be) cutting off a limb.

488. Women who are not independent should not be arrested ; it is the male (on whom they are dependent) who should be regarded as the offender (when they go wrong) ; they (the women) should be punished by their lord (i. e. the person on whom they depend), but the king should take away (for punishment) the male.

489. Even if a woman whose lord has gone on a journey be consigned to jail, she should be kept in confinement only till her lord returns.

490. Whatever fine is carefully prescribed for an offence (in the smṛti texts) it should be understood that it is to be in kārsāpanas or their equivalent (to be paid) to the king.

491. Where fine of one fourth of māṣa or one half of a māṣa is prescribed (and then subsequently in the same context) there is no express mention of māṣa, in such cases one māṣa should be prescribed as the fine.

486. It appears that we should read ' pravrajyāvasthitam for 'sitam'. A śūdra was to be punished if he entered the fourth order (āśrama). This is the way in which the Vir. p. 724 understands this verse. Note the well-known story of Śambūka (Rāmāyaṇa, Uttarakāṇḍa 74-76).

491. This verse, as it stands, is not clear. The reading of Kullūka is clear and means that a māṣa must be held to be golden where the metal is not specified. Saras. p. 150 notices that according to Vijñāneśvara the fine of a thousand means a fine of copper panas while according to Bhāruci it means a fine of a thousand golden māṣas and that in this matter the usages of countries should be followed.

492. When the punishment (or fine) is declared to be in māśas, there it should be understood that they are to be of silver and where it is declared in kṛṣṇalas, there also the same conclusion about the fines declared is to be understood.

493-494. A māśa is to be understood as the twentieth part of a kārśāpaṇa; and a kākaṇī is equal to the fourth part of a māśa and of a paṇa. In the land of the five rivers this (the following?) nomenclature is in current use. A kārśāpaṇa is to be understood as Andikā, four kārśāpaṇas as equal to one dhānaka, 12 dhānakas as equal to one suvarṇa which is also called dināra and citraka.

495. Where a certain matter (or side) is determined

492-493. According to Manu VIII. 132-134 and Yāj. I. 362-363 eight trasareṇus (motes in sun-beam) are equal to likṣā, 3 likṣās = one rājasarṣapa, 3 rājasarṣapas = one gaurasarṣapa, 6 guarasarṣapas = one middling yava, three yavas = one kṛṣṇala, five kṛṣṇalas = one māśa, and 16 māśas = one suvarṇa, four suvarṇas = one pala. According to Yāj, four or five suvarṇas make one pala, 4 karṣas are equal to one pala and copper equal to karṣa in weight is called paṇa or kārśāpaṇa. A pala therefore was equal to 64 or 80 māśas and if we take a pala as equal to 80 māśas, then a karṣa, which was $\frac{1}{4}$ of a pala would be equal to 20 māśas and this is what Kāt. says in the first half of 493. In the latter half of 493 Kāt. seems to follow another nomenclature. Haradatta on Gautama XII. 19 (पञ्च माषा गवि) quotes a verse of Uśanas ' माषो विंशतिमागस्तु ज्ञेयः कार्षापणस्य हि ॥ काकिणी तु चतुर्धाशो माषस्येव प्रकीर्तितः ॥'. According to Bhāskaraśāstra's Līlāvati (verse two) twenty varātakas are equal to one kākiṇī and 4 kākiṇīs equal to one paṇa.

494. The latter two halves are almost the same as Br. p. 317 v. 15 and both 493 and 494 almost the same as Nārada (text appendix p. 229 verses 58-60). Dr. Pran Nath devotes one chapter (III) to these terms in his ' Economic Condition in ancient India ' and traces dhānaka to the Persian ' Dānaq '.

495. The words ' tīrita ' and ' anuśīṣṭa ' occur in Manu IX 233, where it is laid down that what is tīrita and anuśīṣṭa should not be overturned by the king and reviewed, but should be upheld. Kāt. explains these words in his own way. Kullūka explains them by the sabhyas themselves as true though it be really untrue, it is said to be tīrita; that matter is said to be anus'īṣṭa which is declared (as true) on the testimony of witnesses.

496. If a party be not satisfied with the decision (of his claim) even though given by the family and other tribunals, the king should reconsider that decision and should upset what was wrongly decided.

(Discourse on interest in recovery of debts)

497. (A money-lender) should never hand over a loan to (dependent) women, to slaves, and to minors. The lender cannot recover back that wealth which he gives to these.

498. That rate of interest which the debtor promised in addition (to the rate allowed by śāstra) and which was promised in times of difficulty must always be given, though it is of the kāritā kind; but interest of the kāritā kind incurred in other circumstances should never be paid.

as ' decided according to the rules of śāstra ' and ' taken so far as to recover the fine from the defeated party ' respectively. The verse of Manu, even as interpreted by Kullūka, forbids review of judgment on the ground that a litigation was fought out by women &c. or forbids a review solely at the king's pleasure. But where the sabhyas are clearly wrong or where witnesses have borne false testimony a review was allowed. Nārada also uses the same words (Nār. p. 22 v. 65) and allowed a party to make an application for review if he agreed to pay double the fine. Vide Yāj. II. 306 and verses 294-295 above.

496. Vide Yāj. II. 305 for a similar provision. Verse 82 above sets out various grades of tribunals.

498. Interest is either kṛta (agreed upon between the debtor and creditor) and akṛta (not agreed). The first is of six kinds कर्तव्यका, कालिका, चक्रवृद्धि, कारिता, शिखावृद्धि and भोगलाभ. Vide Br. p. 321 vv. 5-11. Yāj. II. 37 laid down that interest was to be 1/80th of the principal per month or 2, 3, 4 or 5 percent per month according to the order of castes. If more was promised by the debtor himself than this, he had to pay it. Vide Yāj. II. 38. Manu VIII. 153 mentions the first four out of the above six, and so does Nār. (p. 66 vv. 102-104). Gautama XII. 31-32 mentions six kinds (five being the same as above and the 6th being called आधिभोग). Kāt. refers to both bhogalābha and ādhibhoga.

499. Where the debtor has to pay interest to the very end and where he pays it every time (i. e. every day), that is declared to be śikhāvṛddhi (hair-interest).

500. That is declared to be bhogalābha (interest by enjoyment) when (the lender) derives pleasure from (a mortgaged) house (by residing in it) or the crop from (a mortgaged field).

501. Where the complete enjoyment of the thing pledged (or mortgaged) is agreed to be the interest, that transaction of money-lending so entered into is said to be ādhibhoga.

(Interest in transactions where there is no agreement as to interest)

502-504. When a person takes a loan (of money or an article) and goes to another country without returning it, that loan begins to acquire interest after a year (from the date of the loan). If a person after taking a loan (from a person) goes to another country without returning it even when pressed (by the lender to return it), that loan begins to acquire interest after three months (from demand). Where a borrower does not return (a loan) even though he be in the country and even when he is pressed (to return the loan), (the king) should make him pay interest from that day (i. e. the day of demand) though it was not agreed upon and though he be unwilling to pay interest.

499. We must read 'चर्जिकः'. The verse as it stands makes no sense. Haradatta on Gautama XII. 32 and Saras. p. 223 add one verse from Kāt. which was omitted through oversight 'शिखेव वर्धते नित्यं शिरश्छेदाच्चिवर्तते ॥ मूले दत्ते तथैवैषा शिखावृद्धिस्ततः स्मृता ॥' (it constantly grows like the top knot on the head, it ceases by the head being cut off i. e. by the principal being paid, therefore this is called hair interest '. Vide Br. p. 321 vv. 7-8.

500. This explains ādhibhoga in Gautama XII. 32.

502-504. Verse 502 applies where the lender makes no request for return, 503 where he makes a request for the return of the loan, 504 where a man is in the country and does not return the loan though pressed. Compare with 502, Vi. VI. 4. Verse 504 is referred to in Saundaranāṭya v. Śhivabāsa 31 Bom. 354 at pp. 361-362. Pāṇini (IV. 4. 21) derives 'yācitaka'.

505. What is lent through friendship (or affection) does not bear interest as long as it is not demanded back. If it be not returned even though it is demanded back, it bears interest at (the rate of) five per cent (per month).

506. A deposit, balance of interest, purchase and sale, these, if not paid when demand is made therefor, bear interest at five percent (per month).

507. When a man after purchasing some goods, goes to a different country without paying the price, the price begins to earn interest after three seasons (i. e. 6 months).

508. There is no interest at any time on hides (or armour), crops, wine, gambling debts, the price of commodities sold, the bride price of women and debts incurred as surety.

(The rate of interest)

509. Money lent at interest may always be recovered by the creditor up to double (of what was lent). If he cannot recover double (of what was lent), he should again add further interest.

505. Compare Nār. p. 68 v. 108. 31 Bom. 354 at p. 361 refers to this verse and it is said (at p. 364) that it was an incident annexed to every contract of debt by the Hindu Law that interest though not stipulated for should run on it in the event of non-payment after demand from the date of such demand. Neither the interest Act XXXII of 1839 nor the Contract Act affects that rule of Hindu Law.

506. 'Purchase and sale'—if a chattel is purchased and the purchase money is not paid even though demanded, this verse applies and the interest runs from the date of demand.

507. The Vir. explains that this applies where there is no demand made for the money.

508. There can be no interest in these cases unless it is expressly stipulated for. As to prices of commodities there is no interest only when the purchaser does not leave the country and there is no demand. In the case of a deposit also, there is no interest as long as it is kept intact and is not demanded back. Compare Nār. p. 33 v. 36.

510-512. The interest stands at double in the case of jewels, pearls, corals, gold and silver, fruits, silken cloth, woollens. In the case of all oils, liquors and ghee, the (maximum recoverable with) interest should be known as eight-fold and also in the case of raw sugar and salt. (The maximum recoverable with interest) is fivefold in the case of all metals other than gold and silver and eight-fold in the case of land. As the text says 'at once' it (the maximum) should be paid at once.

(Recovery of debts—the rule when there are several debts).

513. Where several debts are executed in writing on the same day (the king) should treat them all as equal, so far as the security, its protection and enjoyment are concerned; in other cases (i. e. where the debts are not of the same day) they should be paid in order (of dates).

510-512. Verse 510 says that the rule of damdupat applies in these cases. Read 'phala' for 'phāla' in 510. The sages are not agreed as to the rate of interest on various articles and so Nārada observes that there are several local usages (Nār. p. 67 v. 105). Compare Gautama XII. 28 and 33, Manu VIII. 151, Vas. II. 44-47, Yāj. II. 39, Vi. VI. 11-17 for varying rates. All are agreed as to gold or money that the interest recoverable at one time in a lump cannot exceed the principal, which is called the rule of damdupat. There are numerous cases explaining the limit of the rule of damdupat. Vide I. L. R. 1 Bom. 73 (damdupat not applicable to interest recoverable in execution of a decree), I.L.R. 3 Bom. 131 (rule applies only to Hindu debtors), I.L.R. 20 Bom. 721 F.B. (rule of damdupat does not apply to mortgages with possession where the terms agreed upon necessitate the existence of an account current), 1 Bom. L.R. 551 (p. 555 summarises three propositions), 35 Bom. 199 (the Transfer of Property Act does not take away the protection of the rule of damdupat), 21 Bom. L.R. 419 (this rule does not prevent an agreement between creditor and debtor to capitalise interest at a stage when the interest does not exceed the principal). Under the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act (XVII of 1879) the benefit of the rule of damdupat is given even to non-Hindu debtors who are agriculturists.

513. If all debts borrowed on same date can be recovered from the debtor, they should be treated equally, but if all cannot be fully recovered, then each should be recovered from the property of the debtor pro rata.

514. But when there are several debts, whatever is incurred first should be paid first, but a debt owed to a king (or ksatriya) should be paid after one owed to a brāhmaṇa.

515. Where a creditor establishes that a particular article was manufactured (by the debtor) with the money (or materials) of the particular creditor, the debtor should give that money (recovered by sale of the article) to that creditor alone and not otherwise.

(Pledge)

516. That is said to be bhogyādhi (a pledge to be enjoyed) if (a debtor) having taken a loan, gives (to the creditor) something, whether moveable or immoveable, which is capable of being enjoyed, for the purpose of meeting the interest. (The debtor) after repaying the principal in addition (to the income enjoyed by the creditor) would get back his field and the like (that was hypothecated).

514. Compare Yāj. II. 41. The general rule is that as regards debts the first in time prevails over the rest. But exceptions were recognised on the ground of the caste of the creditor. Vide Sec. 48 of the Transfer of Property Act and sec. 56 of Bombay Land Revenue Code (which makes state revenue a paramount charge.

515. This states an exception to the rule that among several debts the earlier in time prevails over later ones.

516. Nār. (p. 73 vv. 124-125) divides a pledge into two, viz, one that must be redeemed within a certain time (kṛtakālopaneya) and the other which is to be retained till discharge of debt and again divides a pledge into two varieties, gopya (to be retained only) and bhogyā (to be enjoyed). Br. (p. 322 v. 17) also divides a pledge into moveable or immoveable, gopya or bhogyā. The Saras. (p. 233) notes texts of Vyāsa and Bharadvāja and says that a bhogyādhi is of two kinds, sapratyayabhogyādhi (where the stipulation is that the profit from the thing pledged is to be applied towards payment of interest and reduction of the principal) and apratyabhogyādhi (i. e. where the stipulation is that the income is to be taken in lieu of interest only). Verse 516 speaks of apratyayabhogyādhi. Vide Mit. on Yāj. II. 64 for the same distinction between two varieties of bhogyādhi, though the technical terms are not used.

517. If (a debtor) were to pledge the same thing to two persons what would be the proper beginning or course of conduct (as to recovery of the debts) ? (The answer is) the prior one of the two (transactions of pledge) should be accepted (as enforceable) and the person who made the two pledges would be liable to the fine imposed on a thief.

518. When a mortgage, sale and gift are made by means of a document and by means of witnesses, the transaction effected by a document would be superior, being opposed to only one mode of proof (viz. oral evidence).

519. When there are two writings about the same transaction, one not specifying the thing and the other specifying the thing, Kātyāyana declared that the transaction in writing which gives particulars (of the thing pledged &c.) is superior (to the other).

520. That would be anirdiṣṭa (not specified or ascertained) where a man pledges a thing which did not at first (i. e.

517. Vide Yāj. II. 23 for the proposition that in pledges, gifts and sales the prior transaction is preferred to a later one. Compare Vi. V, 181-182 (which prescribe drastic punishments for such mortgages of land) and Br. p. 326 v. 34.

518. This verse applies to a simple pledge or mortgage (gopyādhi) where there is no enjoyment. In such cases the transaction which is effected by writing is superior to one effected in the presence of witnesses only. But if a transaction be effected before witnesses and is accompanied with possession, then there being two modes of proof in its favour (oral evidence and possession) that transaction would be superior to one effected by writing but without possession. Vide Vi. V. 184. Compare sec. 48 of the Indian Registration Act which confers priority on registered documents against oral agreements unless the latter are accompanied or followed by delivery of possession. Verses 517-518 show that hypothecation without delivery of possession was known to Kāt.

519. This applies where there are two documents of pledge or other transaction concerning the same thing. The next verse explains what is meant by nirdiṣṭa and anidirdiṣṭa.

520. We have to take 'yo.vidyamānam' as equal to 'yah, avidyamānam; 'resembled the sky'-this means that it was vague or intangiat the time of the pledge) exist and the exact description of which could not (therefore) be specified and which (hence) resembled the sky. That should be indicated as nirdista (specified in detail) which exists at the time (of the pledge &c.) as (exclusively) his (of the pledgor's &c.).

521. Where a person having first declared (pledge) of all his property afterwards effects a pledge by specifically naming (the thing pledged), how cannot the transaction marked (by specifying the name) be more powerful (than the one which is effected in general terms.) ?

522. When the field or house is marked out by boundaries and the village and other (details) are written (in the document of pledge), then it becomes perfect (or valid).

523. If any thing that is pledged is destroyed through the power of fate or the king, in such a case the debtor should be made to pay to the creditor the debt together with the interest.

524. (If the thing pledged) were to fall (i.e. deteriorate) or were to be destroyed without any fault of the creditor (the pledgee), the debtor should be made to give another thing (of equal value) as a pledge and he could not be free from the debt.

able like the sky, not being in existence at the time of the pledge or sale and not being described as to its details. What is in existence at the time of pledge and its nature can be specified is nirdista. Compare sections 79, 82 of the Indian Contract Act as to contract for the sale of goods that are not ascertained at the time of the contract.

521. This applies to a case where though the thing exists at the time of both transactions, the first is a general pledge of all that belongs to a man and the second is that of a specific thing.

522. It is better to read गृहं for ग्रामं with the सरस्वतीविलास. Compare sections 21 and 22 of the Indian Registration Act.

523. ' Power of fate ' such as fire, flood &c; ' power of king ' where the king or his officers forcibly seize the thing pledged without any fault of the pledgee. Vide Yāj. II. 59, Br. p. 23 v. 21 and Gautama XII. 39 for similar propositions. Compare sec. 152 of the Indian Contract Act.

524. ' Nipatata ' would also mean ' were to be lost ' and ' mriyeta ' would mean ' were to die ' (with reference to cattle or other animals that were pledged). Compare Yāj. II. 60.

525. (The creditor or pledgee) who would make the pledge work unwillingly and without the consent (of the pledgor) should be made to pay the (price of the) fruits of labour (to the pledgor) or he would not get his interest.

526. He (the pledgee) who harasses and rebukes the pledge while working (for him) with words, punishment or movements, would have to undergo the first amercement.

527. Where (the pledgee) forcibly and against the will of the pledgor adds to the pledge what is not pledged, he (the pledgee) would be liable to the first amercement and the pledgor would get back his pledge.

528. When a creditor enjoys a pledge from his debtor under a vitiated document, there the king should make (the creditor) pay a fine and should destroy the deed of pledge.

529. Where the pledgor does not exist (i. e. is dead or unheard of), the creditor should proclaim the pledge (to the king). Then the pledge being proclaimed to the king should be sold by him ; this is the fixed rule. The creditor after receiving his money together with interest should hand over the rest (of the proceeds of sale) to the king.

525. This refers to female slaves pledged. Compare Manu VIII 144 and 150, Kaut. (tr. p. 227, text p. 179 'अनिसृष्टोपभोक्ता मूल्यशुद्धं माजीवं बन्धं च दद्यात्'), Yāj. II. 59.

526. This suggests that when the slave refused to work the pledgee would not be liable to fine, if he rebuked the slave pledged.

527. The Saras. explains that this verse applies to gopyādhi.

529. The Par. M., Saras. and Vir. explain that this verse applies where the debtor leaves no relatives. If there are relatives it is proper that they should get the balance of the sale proceeds. Compare Br. p. 325 vv. 29-30. Vide sec. 176 of the Indian Contract Act.

(Rules about sureties)

530. One should cause a surety to be given for repayment (of debt), for appearance, in litigation, for honesty, for (taking) oaths. In this way in other cases (surety should be given) according to circumstances.

531. If the surety for the appearance (of a person) cannot produce him at the time and place (agreed upon), he should in that case pay the debt due to the creditor (lit. what he has bound himself) except where (the debtor is prevented from appearing) by act of God or the king.

532. Three fortnights at the most should be allowed for finding out the absconding (person--debtor); if he (the surety) can produce him (in that time) the surety would be free (from liability).

533. When the time (given for producing the absconding person) has expired if the surety cannot produce the

530. Suretyship was known from ancient times. Pāṇini (II. 3, 39) knew it and Gautama (XII. 38) speaks of prātibhāvya (suretyship debt). Manu (8-160) speaks of surety for appearance and for repayment of debt. Nār. p. 70 v. 118 speaks of three kinds of sureties. Yāj. (II. 53) speaks of three kinds of sureties, viz. for appearance, honesty and repayment (the same verse is Viṣṇu VI. 41) and in II. 10 refers to a fourth kind viz surety in litigation (i. e. one who will carry out the decretal order passed against a party). When oaths or ordeals were to be undergone at a distant date, surety was taken from the party. Br. (p. 327 vv. 39-40) speaks of four (dars'ana, pratyaya, dāna and ṛṇidravyārpaṇa). The distinction between the last two is that the dānapratibhū undertakes to repay the debt with interest from his own pocket, while the last undertakes to make available to the creditor the property (house, furniture &c.) of the debtor. Hārīta speaks of five, the fifth being surety for keeping the peace (abhaya). The Sm. C. explains that the surety in case of a gopyādhi was called 'ādhipāla' and in case of 'bhogyādhi' was called 'bhuñjāpaka' and that both were included herein.

532. Vide Br. p. 327 v. 42 who says that in accordance with the distance of the country (where the debtor is supposed to be in hiding) a fortnight, a month or a month and half should be given. Kāt. mentions only the maximum period that should be allowed.

person, he (the surety) should be made to pay what is due (from the debtor) and the same rule is laid down in case of the death (of the debtor).

534. Where a person becomes a surety for the appearance of a man after receiving a pledge from him, the son of the surety should be made to pay the money from that pledge in the absence of the father (i. e. in case of his death or his having gone abroad).

535. When a man stands surety for the appearance of another, he should pay from his own wealth the debt to the creditor, if he does not produce the debtor (at the proper time and place).

536. The first two (viz. surety for appearance and honesty) should be made to pay the money that may be declared to be due at the time (when the debtor should have paid) in case of failure (in appearance or honesty on the part of the debtor), but the latter two and in their absence their sons also (are

534. The Mit. on Yāj. II. 34. explains that this applies to the surety for honesty also. In Narayan v. Venkatacharya 6 Bom. L. R. 434 it is said that under the Mit. a grandson is not bound to pay the suretyship debt of his grandfather unless the latter received some consideration for it. In I. L. R. 10 Patna p. 94 it was held that if the father stood surety for honesty, the son was not bound to pay that debt. Vide also 4 Pat. L. J. 309.

535. This is Manu VIII, 158.

536. This is the same as Br. p. 327 v. 41. This verse obviously refers to the four kinds of sureties mentioned by Brhaspati. Vide note on 530.

The latter two — mean the surety for dāna (repayment of debt) and for rñdravyārpaṇa (delivery of the goods of the debtor to the creditor). The son of the surety for appearance and honesty is not liable to pay his father's suretyship debt, but the sons of the other two kinds of sureties are liable to pay (but not the grandson). In Tukarambhat v. Gangaram I. L. R. 23 Bom. 454 at p. 459 the texts of Yāj., Br. and Kāt. are examined and it is held that ancestral property in the hands of sons is liable for the suretyship debts of the father when the father was a surety for payment of money or for delivery of goods ; vide I. L. R. 23 Mad. 377 (suretyship debt of father for payment held binding on ancestral property in the hands of sons, but not where he was surety for keeping the peace) ; 39 Cal. 843 liable to pay) if the debtor fails in his promise.

537. When (several sureties) have incurred joint and several liability, the son should pay the whole debt if the father has gone abroad, but if the father be dead, then the son need pay only the share for which his father would have been liable and not the debt claimable from others (the co-sureties). This is what Brhaspati says.

538. Whoever out of several (sureties) that have incurred joint and several liability is found present at the place (of the agreement) should be made to pay (the whole debt) ; if (a surety) be gone abroad, then his son should be made to pay the whole, but if (a surety) be dead, then the son should be made to pay only the share of his father.

539. If one who having stood surety gives back the debt as a surety being harassed (by the creditor), he is en-

(where it was held that suretyship debt of the dāna type must be paid by son though no actual loan had been advanced to the principal); 26 All 611. Vide notes on vv. 555-556 and 561.

537. Yāj. II. 55. says that if there are several sureties they should pay the creditor according to their shares. But if their liability is joint and several, then the creditor may proceed at his will against any one for the whole. Vide Nār. p. 71 v. 120. This verse says that when there is joint and several liability, the son of a surety who has gone abroad may have to pay the whole debt if the creditor demands it from him, but if the father be dead, then the son has to pay what would fall to his father's share (if the debt were distributed among all the sureties). ' Ekacchāyāśrita ' is a technical expression and is explained by the Mit. as ' ekasya adhamarṇasya chāyā sādṛśyam tām-āśritaḥ ' i. e. those who agree to hold the same position as the principal debtor (who has to pay the whole debt if demanded). The Mit. and Sm. C. say that when the son pays the whole debt due from his deceased father as surety, he need not pay interest while the Vir. holds the opposite view.

538. The Vir. notices that Kāt, as read by Sm. C. was what is verse 537. This verse is practically the same as 537 and the two are probably two versions of the same verse of Kāt,

539. Vide Br. p. 328 v. 44 for the same verse. This applies only if the surety pays under pressure from the creditor. If he pays out of greed for demanding double of what he has to pay, he would not be entitled to double, nor would he be entitled to double if the original debtor compensates titled to receive (from the original debtor) twice the amount (paid to the creditor) after the lapse of three fortnights.

540. Whatever is rightly paid for another person by one (the surety) to whom a demand is addressed (by the creditor) and (whose liability) is proved by witnesses, the surety is entitled to get that (from the original debtor).

541. When there is a failure (to perform a contract) even though an earnest had been given by one party, then (the king) should make the other party (who is in default) pay double (of earnest). The purpose of taking an earnest is to make the party suffer the loss of it when he does not abide (by his agreement).

542-543. A debt incurred by (the head of the family) when unable to maintain the family or when suffering from a disease and for the purpose of (meeting) a calamity, which (debt) is known as ' āpatkṛta ' (incurred in distress), debt incurred for (expenses) of a daughter's marriage and what is incurred the surety within three fortnights. Vide Yāj. II. 56 and Nār. p. 71 v. 121, both of whom do not expressly impose the condition of the lapse of three fortnights. Compare sec. 145 of the Indian Contract Act.

541. This verse is rather obscure. Pāṇini (VI. 3.70 ' Kāre satyāga-dasya ') notices the word 'satyamkāra' which is explained by the commentators as 'śapathakaraṇam.' Yāj. (II.61) has the half verse 'Satyamkāra-kṛtaṁ dravyaṁ dviguṇaṁ pratipādayet, which is explained in two ways by the Mit. One meaning is that if one mortgages or pledges with the express stipulation that when the principal rises to double, he would pay double the money, but would not lose the property mortgaged or pledged, then the creditor is only entitled to double the principal, but not to the property. Another meaning is that when A gives some article such as a ring to B by way of earnest in a contract of sale &c. (here 'satyamkāra' means 'a thing or money given by way of earnest'), if the contract goes off through the default of A who gives the earnest, he loses the earnest, but if the contract goes off through the default of B to whom the earnest is given, the defaulter has to pay double the earnest or double the price thereof.

542-543. Manu VIII. 166 and Yāj. II. 45 restrict the liability of the family to debts incurred for the purposes of the family. Compare Viṣṇu VI, 34. Nār. p. 45, v. 13.

for (meeting) funeral expenses—all these debts incurred by the head of the family must be paid by the family.

544. That the father need not pay the debt incurred by the son is the rule of law, but (the father) must pay that debt (of his son) which he promised (to pay) or which was (incurred by the son) with his consent.

545. A debt incurred for the (purposes of the) family by the slaves, the wife, the mother, the pupil or the son (of the head of the family) even without his consent when he is gone abroad should be paid (by the head of the family). This is (the view of) Bhṛgu.

546. A woman should pay a debt incurred by her along with her husband, or son or incurred by herself alone, but need not pay debts incurred by them otherwise.

547. A wife who was addressed by her husband when about to die ' you should pay my debts ' should be made to pay even though she does not accept (or consent to the direction) if she has wealth in her possession.

544. Here as the Sm. C. says the words 'putra' and 'pitā' stand for 'any member of the family' and for 'head or manager' of the family' (father, grand-father, eldest brother, uncle &c). The debt referred to in this verse is one not incurred for the purposes of the family, but is an individual debt and 'dharmataḥ' implies that the father may through affection pay his son's individual debt but is not bound to do so.

545. Compare Manu 8.166, Yāj. II. 45, Nār. p. 45 v. 12 and Br. p. 329 v. 50. This verse is quoted in Virasvami v. Appasvami 1 Mad. H. C. R. p. 375, 379 n (when a husband married a second wife and the first wife left him, it was held that the first wife had no implied authority to borrow money for her support).

546. Compare Nār. p. 46 v. 13. Sm. C. explains that if she has not joined them in debt, she need not pay even on their death. Compare Yāj. II. 46 and 49. In Narotam v. Nanka 1 L. R. 6 Bom. 473 it was held that a married woman who contracted a debt jointly with her husband was liable to the extent of her strīdhana only and not personally. Vide 1 L. R. 1 Bom. 121, 124 where this verse is cited. The Mit. on Yāj. II. 49 says that the purpose of the last clause is to indicate that a woman need not pay a debt incurred by her husband for liquor or in gambling even if she joins with him in incurring it or accepts liability for it.

548. A debt incurred by the father, if he is afflicted with disease or has gone abroad, shall be paid by the sons after the twentieth year, even when the father is living.

549. (The king) should make the sons pay such debts (of their fathers) even though they be living, if they are afflicted with disease, are mad or old or have gone on a long journey.

550. Sons must pay the debt of their father when it is proved (by evidence) even when the father is near (or living), if the father is blind from birth, a patita (guilty of grave sins), mad or suffering from tuberculosis, leprosy (and other incurable diseases).

551. Since fathers are released from wretched indebtedness by sons when born on account of the latter's paying off (the debt), therefore fathers desire (to have) sons.

552. (A son need) never pay (the debt of his father) when the father is dead, if he (the son) has not attained

548. The Sm.C. explains that the son had to pay his father's debt when twenty years elapsed after his going abroad. Compare Viṣṇu VI. 27 and Nār. p. 46 v. 14. Vide I. L. R. 41 Mad. 136 at p. 149 and I. L. R. 42 Mad. 711 (F.B.) at p. 730 where this verse of Kāt. is referred to. Viṣṇu makes it clear that the son had to pay his father's debt when the latter became a sannyāsin.

549. According to the V. R. p. 51, v. 549 is an exception to v. 548. It says that if the father's disease be incurable or if it is certain that the father would not return from his journey then the son was not to be allowed to wait twenty years, but was bound to pay at once.

551. Compare Nār. p. 42 v. 5. Vide verse 591 below for the result of non-payment of debt. It is therefore that debt is said in this verse to be 'adhama' (that is, what reduces a man to a low state). 'When born'—it is not meant that a son the moment he is born is called upon to pay off his father's debt; that liability is incurred by him only when he has reached the age of discretion. Even the Taittirīya Samhitā (III. 3. 8 1-2) refers to 'kusīdam-apratittam' (debt unpaid) and expresses an ardent desire to be free from it.

552. A person was a minor till the age of 16; vide Nār. p. 51 v. 35 and Kauṭilya (text p. 154 and tr. p. 196) 'women when twelve years of discretion. But when the proper time (to pay the debt) comes, he must pay according to the law, otherwise his forefathers may remain in hell.

553. If (a son) has not reached (years of) discretion, he, though independent, is not liable for the debt (of the father). (Real) independence is understood to belong to one who is senior and seniority is due to the (attainment of) certain qualities and age.

554. That debt of the grand-father which is seen (or ascertained) to be due or a part of which remains to be paid must be paid (by the grandson), but a debt which is tainted or which was repudiated by the father need never be paid (by the son &c.).

555. That debt which descended hereditarily from the grandfather, which was ascertained by the father (i. e. the son of the grandfather) as due, which is free from taint and which was not repaid by the sons (of the grandfather) should be paid by the grandsons. (This is the view of) Bhṛgu.

556. When the debt of the grandfather is not repaid by his sons because they were afflicted with disease, such a debt of the grandfather should be paid by the grandson, but only the principal (should be paid).

years old attain majority and men when sixteen' (द्वादशवर्षा स्त्री षाडव्यवहारा भवति षोडशवर्षः पुमान्).

553. 'Independent' because of the death of the father. This is the same as Nār. p. 50 v. 31.

554. 'Tainted'-a debt is tainted when it is was incurred for liquor, lust, gambling, when it is a fine or a toll &c. Vide Gautama XII. 38, Manu VIII. 159, Vas. 16. 31, Kauṭ. p. 189, Yāj. II. 47 and Mit. thereon for an enumeration of debts declared to be so tainted that the son need not pay them.

556. 'Such a debt' means a debt not tainted as laid down in the texts cited in the note to v. 554. Vide notes on 560-561 Compare Br. p. 328, v. 49.

557. (The king) should make the son pay (the debt of his father), if he (the son) be free from diseases, capable of taking the estate (of his father) and is able to shoulder the debt; but (he) should not make the son pay otherwise.

558. What is owed by the father must always be paid to the creditor in his absence by the sons or grandsons from his property.

559. While the father's debt remains (unpaid) the son shall not take the wealth (of the father); that wealth should be made over to the creditor; when (the father) is dead and the son takes the wealth (without paying the debt) he should be made to pay (by the king).

560. In the absence (i.e. death) of the son, the grandson should sedulously pay the debt; the fourth (in descent) should not pay (the debt of the ancestor); it (the liability to pay the debt of the ancestor) ceases in his case.

557. 'Capable of taking' i. e. not liable to be excluded from inheritance for causes mentioned in Manu IX. 201 and Yāj. II. 140; 'able to shoulder'—of age and able to pay back the debt.

558. 'In his absence'—on his death &c.

560. Compare Nār. p. 42 v. 4. Dr. Jolly has a long note on this passage and on p. 44 he makes this remark: 'The doctrine viz. that the liability to pay debts contracted by an ancestor extends to the great-grand-son is opposed to the teaching of such an eminent authority as Viṣṇāśvara, who maintains in the Mitākṣarā that the great-grand-son is not liable for debts contracted by his great-grand-father and conversely, that he does not inherit his property.' He makes similar remarks in his Tagore Law Lectures (on Partition &c. 1885) p. 171 ' but in the law of debt also, the liability to pay debts contracted by an ancestor stops with the grandson. There is every reason to suppose that in the law of inheritance also, the exclusion of the great-grandson from the narrower community of heirs by Viṣṇāśvara and Viśveśvara is intentional and not accidental '. The learned author has here fallen into a double error. The Mit. has nowhere said that the great-grand-son is excluded from inheritance. The Smṛti texts on the payment of debts by descendants present an apparent conflict. For example, vv. 555 and 558 (as also Yāj. II.

50) make no distinction between sons and grandsons as to liability, but v. 556 and Br. p. 328 v. 49 say that the son must pay the debt with interest, while the grandson need pay only the principal. The first canon of interpretation is that a conflict between texts is to be avoided and they are to be construed as one coherent whole (this is called the 'ekavākyatānyāya; vide Jaimini II. 1). This can be accomplished by assigning to each text its appropriate sphere (i.e. by following the principle of viśaya-vyavasthā). Therefore an examination of the several texts and the propositions deducible therefrom must be undertaken here. The first proposition is that the debt of a man must be paid by his three descendants (son, grandson and great-grandson) if they have ancestral estate in their hands. This follows from the rule of Yāj. II. 51 that whoever takes the riktha (ancestral estate) has to pay the debt and from the verses of Kātyāyana (855-856) that three descendants of a man form a coparcenery. The Mit. on Yāj. II. 51 distinctly says that 'the great-grandson and the like of him who is without son or grandson should be made to pay the debt if they take the riktha (ancestral estate) but not otherwise' (पुत्रहीनस्य रिक्थिन इत्येतदपि पुत्रपौत्रहीनस्य प्रपौत्रादयो यदि रिक्थं गृह्णन्ति तदा ऋणं दाप्याः नान्यथेत्येवमर्थम् ॥ मिता.). Dr. Jolly somehow failed to notice this remark in the Mit. and made the wrong assertion quoted above. This proposition is followed by modern decisions in British India. Vide. 19 All. 26 (F.B.) and 4 Patna 478 where grandson taking assets was held liable to pay grandfather's debt with interest; while 53 I.A. p. 204=48 All. 518 (P.C.) which is the latest case on the point decides that the great-grandson (who has taken assets) is liable to pay the debt of the great-grandfather with interest just as a son is liable. This rule is embodied in vv. 555, 558. But if sons and other descendants took no ancestral estate, it was felt even in ancient India that it was a great hardship that all three descendants should be made to pay the debt of the ancestor with interest. Therefore the second proposition that was enunciated by ancient and medieval Hindu lawyers was that even when no ancestral assets were taken, the son should pay his father's debt with interest, the grandson should pay his grandfather's debt but without interest and the great-grand-son was not liable to pay even the principal. This proposition is embodied in Br. (p. 328 v. 49) and in Kāt. v. 556. The Mit. on Yāj. II. 50 quotes the verse of Br. and remarks 'अत्र च पुत्रपौत्रैर्ऋणं देयमित्यविशेषणोक्तं तथापि पुत्रेण यथा पिता सवृद्धिकं ददाति तथैव ऋणं देयम् । पौत्रेण तु समं मूलमेव दातव्यं न वृद्धिरिति विशेषोवगन्तव्यः । ऋणमात्मीय.....मदेयं तत्सुतस्य त्विहि बृहस्पति'

वचनान् । तत्सुतस्य प्रपौत्रस्याग्रहीतनयस्य ।'. Dr. Jolly probably relies on this passage of the Mit. but he failed to grasp the implication of the word 'agr̥hitadhanasya' (if he has not taken ancestral wealth). In Narsimharav v. Krishnarav 2 Bom. H.C.R. p. 64 it was held (probably following Br̥haspati p. 328 v. 49) that the grandson was liable to pay the debt of his grandfather without interest independently of assets. In order to remove the great hardship on heirs (taking no ancestral estate) caused by this decision Bombay Act VII of 1866 (the Hindu Heirs Relief Act) was passed whereby it is provided that a son or grandson is not liable to be sued for the debts of his deceased ancestor merely by reason of the being such son or grandson and that the son or grandson or other heir of the deceased shall be liable only to the extent of the assets that come to his hands. Judicial decisions have laid down that the same is the law in other parts of British India. In I. L. R. 19 All. p. 26 at p. 29 both verses of Kāt. about the grandson's liability (to pay with interest and also without interest) are referred to and in I. L. R. 4 Patna 478 at p. 482 the judges express their inability to understand what Br̥haspati meant when he declared that the grandson should pay grandfather's debt without interest and follow Yāj. and Viṣṇu and refuse to follow Br̥haspati. The Vīramitrodaya (p. 34) very tersely but clearly puts forward the two propositions 'पुत्रेण रिक्थग्रहणाग्रहणयोः सवृद्धिकमेव देयम् । पुत्राभावे पौत्रेण रिक्थग्रहणे सोदयं देयम् । अग्रहणे मूलमेव । प्रपौत्रेण तु रिक्थाग्रहणे मूलमपि न देयम् ॥'. A third proposition (which is an exception to the first two) is that even a son is not liable to pay the debts of his father incurred for liquor, gambling, or arising from lust, suretyship or a fine or toll or a promise made without consideration or whatever debt is not 'vyāvahārika' (vide Gaut. XII. 38, Manu VIII. 159, Vas. XVI. 31, Kauṭ. p. 189 and Uśanas as quoted in Mit. on Yāj. II. 47). Other writers restricted the non-liability of the son for suretyship debts to cases where the father stood surety for appearance or honesty. Vide notes on vv. 536 and 534 above. In Brij Narain Rai v. Mangla Prasad L. R. 51 I. A. 129 (= 46 All. 95) the Privy Council laid down five propositions as to the liability for debts contracted by managers and fathers of joint Hindu families viz, (1) The manager of joint undivided estate cannot alienate or burden it except for purposes of necessity; (2) if the manager be the father and the other members be his sons, he may, so long as it is not for an immoral purpose, lay the estate open to be taken in execution upon a decree for the payment of his personal debt ; (3) if the father purports to burden the estate by a mortgage, it would not bind the estate unless it is made for discharging an antecedent debt ; (4) ' antecedent ' means ' antecedent in fact as well as in time ' i. e. it must be truly independent of and not part of the transaction impeached by the son ; (5) this result is not affected by the question whether the father is alive or dead. It will be observed that the Privy Council makes (in propositions 2 and 3) a distinction between a pure money debt of the father and a debt of the father secured by a mortgage. The ancient Hindu Law books afford no warrant for this distinction. Further the Privy Council in Sura; Buns; Koo v. Sheo Proshad 6 I. A. 88 at p. 106 (= I. L. R. 5 Cal. 148, 171) for the first time used the words ' antecedent debt ' when saying that the whole ancestral estate including the son's interest would be liable ' where the conveyance was executed by the father in consideration of an antecedent debt or in order to raise money to pay off an antecedent debt '. Those words for which there is nothing corresponding in the ancient texts became the subject of elaborate arguments and decisions throughout India as if they were the dicta of the ancient sages themselves. According to the Privy Council (vide proposition 5) the son's liability to pay his father's debts is as absolute during the father's lifetime as after his death. This goes far beyond the spirit of ancient Hindu Law which made the son liable after the father's death or during his life only if he had gone abroad for many years or was afflicted with incurable disease or was extremely old (vide vv. 548-550).

If verse 560 means the same thing as Nār. p. 42 v. 4 and B. p. 328 v. 49, then the meaning is that the great-grandson need not pay even the principal, if he has taken no ancestral estate. Here if the father be A, the son B, the grandson C, and the great-grandson D, then A, B, and C are the three persons liable for A's debts (though C is liable only for the principal if he has taken no estate) and the fourth D (counting from A, the first person liable) is not liable. It is in this way that Kāt. vv. 555, 558 on the one hand and 556 and 560 on the other are to be taken as referring to different sets of circumstances (viz, taking the ancestral estate in the first two and not taking it in the last two).

need pay only the principal (of the suretyship) debt of his father.

562. The debt must be paid by him who takes the estate ; if there be none such, then by him who takes the wife ; in the absence of such a person (taking the wife) by the sons and then by others in order (of heirship) who take the estate.

563. As long as the son does not get his father's wealth when it exists, so long he, though well-off, should not be made to pay as a debtor (the debt of his father).

562-563. Compare Gautama XII. 37, Yāj. II. 51, Nār p. 48 v. 23 and Br. p. 329 v. 52. Vide verse 577 below. Vide my notes to V. M. pp. 340-345 for detailed explanation of Yāj. II. 51 which is practically the same as this verse. This verse settles the order of persons liable to pay the debts of a deceased person. First comes he who takes his wealth (this may include a son or grandson or great-grandson who takes the estate). If the deceased left no estate then he who took his widow had to pay the debts of the deceased. This does not mean that widow remarriage was approved of by the sages. Manu (V. 162) rather condemns it. But remarriages took place by custom and sometimes a widow may be kept by a man as a mistress. In such a case the second husband or lover was liable to pay the debts of the first husband. That this was apprehended to be the law even in modern times is clear from the fact that section, 4 of the Hindu Heirs Relief Act (Bombay Act VII of 1866) expressly provides ' no person who has married a Hindu widow shall, merely by reason of such marriage, be liable for any of the debts of any prior deceased husband of such widow '. If there were no estate and also no widow, the son was liable to pay the debts (even though he took no estate). A man might die leaving an estate and a son who was incompetent to inherit owing to some physical or mental defect. In such a case a distant relative might take the estate (and not the son) and that relative would be liable to pay the debts (and not the disqualified son). Verse 563 makes it clear that even if a disqualified son has ample self-acquired property he would not be liable to pay his father's debts if the father died leaving an estate which never came to the son, but was taken by somebody else.

564. What was promised whether in writing or without writing must be paid, but (what was promised) to the wife of another should be known as a debt due to lust.

565. Where (the father) after having caused through anger (physical) injury to another or having destroyed the latter's wealth, promises something that pacifies him (the person wronged), that is declared to be a debt incurred through (the influence of) anger.

✓ 566. If a gift was promised by a man for a religious purpose whether when in good health or when afflicted with disease, the son should be made to pay it, if the father (the promisor) dies without (actually) giving it over ; there is no doubt on this.

567. (The debt contracted by) liquor-sellers and the like, who have no wealth and no issue, shall be paid by him who enjoys their wives.

564. Yāj. II. 47 says that a son was not bound to pay the debt incurred for lust by the father. Kāt. here explains what is meant by ' kāmakṛta ' (incurred for lust).

565. Among the debts which the son was not liable to pay Brhaspati (Br. p. 328. v. 51) included promises made under the influence of love or wrath ; Kāt. here explains the latter.

566. Read ' srāvitam ' for ' bhāvitam '. Vide verse 642 also. The only cases where an incomplete gift not actually made but remaining only in promise was enforced by the courts in ancient India are those in vv. 566 and 642. This verse contains the germs of the idea of a will, since the mere declaration of the intention of a man to give for religious purposes is here made enforceable after his death. Aparārka p. 782 says that the word ' son ' is only illustrative and every heir taking the estate of the promisor would be liable to make good the promise to make a religious gift. In modern times a mere gift for dharma without specifying any particular object is declared to be void for uncertainty. Vide 6 Bom. 24, 14 Bom. 482, 17 Bom. 351, 18 Bom. 136, 23 Bom. 725, 735 (P. C. = 26 I. A. 71). But this is opposed, as pointed out in 30 Mad. 34, to the spirit of ancient Hindu Law. Vide Manu IV. 227 for dharma meaning ऋ and दान gifts.

567. Mandlik translates (tr. of Mayūkha p. 114) ' Śaundika ' as ' drunkard ' but this is wrong, since it means ' one who distils or sells liquor or wine '.

568. The debts contracted by the wives of liquor-distillers, hunters, washermen, herdsmen, and sailors shall be paid by their husbands (lit. protectors), since they are incurred by them for the purposes of their husbands.

569-570. The debts contracted by wives shall in no way involve (bind) the husbands, except when they are contracted in distress (of the family). For the manifold activities of human beings are (made) for the sake of the family. But the wives of washermen, hunters, herdsmen, distillers of liquors (are exempt from this rule). The income of the husbands (in the case of these women) depends on them (their wives) and the family also is maintained by them.

571. If a woman possessed of considerable (stridhana) wealth repairs to another man against the wishes of her son, the son should take away from her the (stridhana) wealth in the absence of daughters (i. e. if there are no daughters).

572. One should bring into the world (i. e. produce) progeny for the purpose of (paying off) debts and not merely for the sake of (sensual) pleasure. Therefore the parents should not be made to pay (the debts of their progeny) when contracted for an improper purpose.

568. The V. R. (p. 50) reads 'nāpita' (barber) for 'nāvika' and ascribes the verse to Brhaspati (vide Br. p. 329 v. 53). Read 'rajaka' for 'janaka'. Compare Yāj. II. 48, Nār. p. 47 v. 19 and Viṣṇu VI. 37. V. R. and Vir. explain that the verse is not restricted to women of these castes only, but applies to women of all castes like oil-pressers where the livelihood of the husband depends upon the labours of their wives. This verse is not meant to apply only to debts incurred by such women for purposes of the family but to all debts incurred by them.

569-570. It is probable that these verses are not Kātyāyana's, but Nārada's. Verse 570 contains the same principle that is embodied in v. 568. These are the same as Nār. p. 47 vv. 18-19.

572. Tantu 'means' 'apatya' (progeny).

573. If a woman who has a son forsakes her son, though quite able (to bear the burden of the family), then depriving her of her strīdhana wealth, the son should pay off his father's debt (with it). (This is the view of) Manu.

574. If a woman possessed of considerable wealth has a minor son and she repairs to another husband, then the person to whom she resorts should pay the debt (of her husband). This is declared to be the rule about a woman having a minor son.

575. (The debts) of those who have gone on a distant journey, who are without relatives, who are idiots or mad, who are afflicted (with incurable diseases) and who wear peculiar sect marks (like the Bauddha ascetics) should be paid by those who have taken their wives and wealth, even when they (the former) are living.

576. Where the son (of a man) is overwhelmed by calamities or where he is found to be a minor, then (the man's debt) should be paid by him who takes the wealth; in the absence of such a person, he who takes the wife (of the deceased debtor) should be made to pay the debt.

573. If the woman forsakes her son and repairs to another (blinded by love), the son should deprive her of her strīdhana and should pay off his father's debt. ' Though quite able '—The same result follows if the son be not able (i. e. if he be a minor etc.)

574. Compare Nār, p. 47 v. 21. If we read ' trātāram ' for ' bhar-tāram ' as Sm. C. and Saras. do, then the meaning is: if a woman having a minor son and much wealth resorts to another man as a protector (such as her brother or maternal uncle), then the latter should pay (i. e. make her pay) the debt of the husband.

575. For ' lingi ' vide v. 349 above.

576. This applies where, though the son is capable of succeeding, he is a minor or is suffering from diseases; then in such a case the man who keeps his father's wealth with him (such as an uncle) should pay the debt of his father. This verse only says that such a son is not under a liability to pay and does not lay down the order in which persons are liable to pay debts.

577. The taker of (a man's) wealth shall first pay (his debts); after him the son (should be made to pay); when there is no son or when the son is extremely poor, the taker of the wife (shall pay the debt).

578. The husband should pay a debt contracted by his wife and the son should pay a debt contracted by his mother, if it is contracted for the sake of the husband (by the wife or the mother) when he (the husband or the son) goes abroad after telling her.

579. (A father) must pay that debt contracted by his son which was approved of (after it was incurred) or which was not dissented from when it was incurred and when the father heard of it and which was incurred at the order (or pressure) of the father.

(Discourse on the recovery of debts from the debtor by means of imprisonment and the like).

580. The debtor may be held in restraint (by the creditor) openly before an assembly of people according to the

577. Vide v. 562 above. Compare Nār, p. 48 v. 23. There is an apparent conflict between this verse and v. 562 (and Yāj. II. 47). But there is really no conflict. This verse applies to a particular case. First the taker of assets should pay a man's debts; if there are no assets then the son who is much more wealthy than the taker of the wife (of the deceased) should then pay the debt, if the son is not wealthy and no assets are left then the taker of the wife should pay; when there are no assets, nor taker of the wife, then even an indigent son should pay.

578. It is better to read 'bhaktasyārthe' for 'bharturarthe'; the meaning is that when a wife or mother is compelled to incur a debt for the bare maintenance of herself because the husband or son went to a distant country, the husband or son was liable to pay it. 'After telling her'—the same result would follow if he went away without telling her where he was going. If we read 'avidhāya' it would mean 'without providing for her maintenance.'

579. Vide 544 above. Compare Nār, p. 45 v. 11.

580. Vide vv. 585-586. There are five modes of recovering a debt, viz. dharma, vyavahāra, chala, ācarita and bala. Vide notes on v. 477. These five modes are mentioned by Manu VIII. 49 Nār. p. 71 v. 122, Viṣṇu VI. 18, Br. p. 329 v. 54. Br. (p. 330 vv. 55-58) defines four of these (except vyavahāra). Even Āpastamba (1. 6, 19. 1.) refers to the mode of sitting at the door of the debtor (what is called 'dharma') or the 'ācarita' of Manu. Verse 477 refers to custom of the country, so long as he does not pay what he owes.

581. Where the man held restrained has an inclination for making water or voiding faeces, he should be followed behind (by the creditor) or he should be allowed (to go alone for that purpose) in fetters.

582. He (the debtor), if a surety be furnished, should be released every day at the time of taking meals and at night, while the surety remains in custody.

583-584. That debtor who cannot secure a surety for appearance or who will not accept (the proposal to be let off on furnishing) surety (though one is available) should be confined in jail or should be placed in the presence of guards. A respectable man, who is trustworthy and pure (in conduct), should not be confined in jail. He should be let off without a surety or after being bound by an oath.

585. The creditor should recover (the debt) from his debtor when he is first shown to be so by imprisoning him or by putting pressure on him (by fasting at his door), by making him work for him, by judicial proceedings and by moral persuasion.

'desācāra' (custom of the country). The Sm. C. explains that this verse exemplifies 'desācāra' and that the creditor may himself restrain the debtor (in one country) or employ a person for hire (according to the custom of another country). V. R. says that this is an illustration of the 'vyavahāra' mode of recovering a debt.

581. The Sm. C. says that fetters are to be put on a very bad debtor only. The V. M. reads 'nibandham vā' and explains that 'he should be allowed to go on furnishing a surety for appearance.'

582. The last quarter may also mean as Sm. C. and Vir. say 'the surety having undertaken to prevent him from absconding'.

584. 'Anibaddha' may mean 'without fetters' (vide v. 581 above) or 'without guards' (as the Sm. C. and Vir. explain).

585. 'Pīdana' stands for 'bandhana or the mode of bala,' 'uparodha' for 'ācarita'. If we read 'vibhāvitam', it would mean 'a debt that is shown to have been incurred'. Compare Manu VIII. 50, Yaj. II. 40 and Nār. p. 72 v. 123.

586. In the same way (a creditor) may recover his money by a pretext or by ' ācarita ' (the customary mode of sitting at the door or fasting &c.). He should make kṣatriya, vaiśya and śūdra debtors of the same caste as his own or of a lower caste (than his own) pay off (the debt) by working for him.

587-588. (These are practically the same as 477-478).

589 Where a creditor harasses a debtor who claims investigation in a court he would lose his claim and would incur a fine equal (to the claim).

590. If (the creditor) were to make the debtor do for him dirty work which was not at first indicated (to the debtor when he was called upon to work), the creditor would have to undergo the first amercement and the debtor would be released from the debt.

591. He who having taken a debt or the like does not pay it back to the creditor (or owner) is born in the (latter's) house as a slave or a servant (for wages), a wife, or a beast.

586, Vide v. 480 for a similar verse. Compare Manu VIII. 177, Yāj. II. 43 and Br. p. 330 v. 59 who further provide that a debtor of a higher caste than the creditor should not be made to work for the creditor, but should be made to pay by instalments according to his ability.

587-588. Verse 477 read राजा तु स्वामिने and here the reading is ' राजानं स्वामिनं विप्र ' which would mean ' he (the king) should make a kṣatriya or a brāhmaṇa debtor pay to the creditor &c.

589. ' Harasses '—this refers to ' bala ' and the other coercive measures (except vyavahāra) to which a creditor was allowed to resort if the whole claim of the creditor was admitted. ' Nyāya-vādi ' literally means ' one who says that he would pay what would be found by the judge to be justly due '. Where there was a dispute about the amount of the debt due, the creditor's only remedy was a law-suit. Compare Br. p. 331 vv. 63-65.

590. Compare vv. 479 and 586, which lay down that a debt may be liquidated by doing work for the creditor.

591. ' Debt and the like '—The same holds good in the case of an article borrowed or a deposit. Vide v. 551 and compare Nār. p. 44, v. 8.

(Deposit)

592. An article that is sold (but is still in the hands of the vendor), what is deposited with a man when one is going on a distant journey, a pledge, bailment to one for delivery to another, a loan (of ornaments etc. for temporary use), what is handed over to a man as a trader (for sale as an agent)— all these are declared to be upanidhi.

593. Whatever is deposited with a person should be preserved by him with efforts; the loss of the article arising otherwise than by Fate (act of God) or the king is proclaimed as due to him (to his neglect).

594. He, by whose fault anything (that is deposited with him) is destroyed or lost, should be made to pay the thing together with interest, except in the case of fate or king (act of God or king).

595. If the thing bailed is lost even by act of Fate or

592. The words upanidhi, nyāsa and nikṣepa are very similar in meaning but they were differentiated by writers on law. 'Nikṣepa' is a deposit entrusted to a man in his presence after counting before him the coins &c.; 'upanidhi' is the deposit of articles enclosed in a sealed box or envelope (the articles not being counted in the presence of the deposittee); a 'nyāsa' is a deposit not made in the presence of the deposittee, but handed over to persons in his house for being given into his custody. These three words, particularly 'nyāsa' and 'nikṣepa' are often used as synonyms. Vide Vir. p. 361 (for all the three) and Mit. on Yāj. II. 67 for nyāsa and nikṣepa. Yāj. II. 65 defines upanidhi as defined by the Mit. Nār. p. 120 v. 1 defines nikṣepa and p. 121 v. 5 defines 'upanidhi'. Br. p. 332 vv. 2-3 define nyāsa (as including both nyāsa and nikṣepa) and upanidhi. Manu VIII. 185 employs the terms nikṣepa and upanidhi. Kaut. p. 177 has a chapter on 'upanidhi' and extends the rules about it to nikṣepa. Kāt. makes 'upanidhi' a generic term for all bailments. For the definition of 'anvāhita' or 'anvādhi' vide v. 611. Where A makes a deposit with B and B hands it over to C for being delivered to A, this is 'anvāhita'. Kāt. means that all the rules about the preservation and return of these various kinds of bailments are the same. Vide Yāj. II. 67, Nār, p. 123 v. 14, Br. p. 334 v. 15.

594. Compare Gautama XII. 39, Nār. p. 122 v. 9, Br. p. 333 vv. 10-11. 'Fault' means 'negligence' &c. Compare sections 151-152 of the Indian Contract Act (of 1872) for similar provisions as to the care required of the bailee.

595. Compare Nār. p. 111 v. 7 which prescribes unishment f r king after it is demanded back, the bailee should be made to pay the price of it only (to the bailor); there is no doubt about this.

596-597. Whoever uses up (lit. eats up) the property of another which was with him as a nyāsa (deposit) or the like, or who takes no care about it or who allows it to be destroyed through ignorance shall be made to return it (or its price). What he used up he should be made to return with interest, he should be made to pay the equivalent (only, without interest) of what he neglected, he should be made to pay a little less (than the price of) of what he allowed to be destroyed through ignorance.

598. Where a thing deposited is destroyed even without the act of Fate or king together with the goods of the bailee, the loss is declared to be that of the depositor.

599. Where the depositor, even after knowing the (probable) loss of an article, deposits it, there the bailee is not made to pay even if the deposit is lost for any cause whatever.

600. Whatever is lost through the fault of the bailee, that loss falls on the bailee; when it is lost or stolen the bailee must offer (to the bailor) the price (of it).

601. The deposit (upanidhi) should be taken back (by the depositor) at the proper time ; (the bailee) should avoid (returning it) at an improper time. If he returns at an not returning a deposit after demand. Manu VIII. 191 and Yāj. II. 66 do the same. Compare section 161 of the Indian Contract Act.

596-97. Compare Yāj. II. 67, Nār. p. 122 v. 8 and Br. p. 333 v. 11 and sec. 154 of the Indian Contract Act. The Mit. on Yāj. II. 67 says that ' a little less than ' means ' minus one fourth of the price '.

598. Compare Nār. p. 122 v. 9, Yāj. II. 66, Manu VIII. 189 and Br. p. 333 v. 10.

599. Where the depositor knows that if he deposits an article with A, it is likely to be lost through the act of God or King and yet deposits it with A, the latter is not liable for loss even if it occurred for any cause other than act of God or king.

600. The latter half occurs in Par. M. III. p. 290 with the reading ' mr̥te ' and ' āvahet '.

601. ' Proper time ' i. e. at the time when the cause of fear on account of which the deposit was made ceases to exist; ' improper time ' - if the bailee returns before the cause for fear &c. has ceased or before improper time, he (the bailee) should be made to pay fine double (of the value of the thing).

602. These rules are declared to apply to all kinds of upanidhis.

603. If an artisan retains an article delivered beyond the definite number of days during which it was (agreed) to be worked up, he should be made to pay (its price) even if it was lost through Fate.

604. The artisan shall not be made to pay (the price) if the article (delivered for being worked up) were to be lost through defects in the article itself. If what is delivered for being worked up is destroyed through the fault of the artisan, he should be made to pay (the price).

605. If an article is destroyed after it is worked up a little only, then the loss (of the wages for that much work) falls on the artisan employed, but when an artisan desires to deliver an article (to the owner) after it is finished, the loss belongs to the (owner) who did not take it, if it be destroyed

606. If (the loan of an article) were taken for a particular purpose or for a definite period of time and a demand the bailor demands it. Br. p. 333 v. 8 says a deposit should be returned when it is at least once asked for.

602. Compare Yāj. II 67, Nār. p. 123 v. 14, Br. p. 334 v. 15.

603. Compare sec. 161 of the Indian Contract Act.

604. If old worn clothes were handed over to a washerman and they were torn in the process of washing because they were worn out, the washerman was not liable.

605. If yarn is given to a weaver and he has only woven the border of the cloth, then if he has to weave it again, he has to do so without demanding additional wages. Similarly after the border woven is destroyed and the owner does not furnish additional yarn the wages already paid to the weaver belong to him and the owner cannot demand the wages back.

606. The V. M. takes this verse to refer to an article entrusted to an artisan, while, the Sm. C. and Vir. say that it refers to a 'yācitaka'. In the middle before the purpose is fulfilled or the time fixed expires. The person has to return it after the time fixed were made in the middle and the article is not returned (on demand), the person (taking the loan) would not be made to pay the price with interest.

607. If a person (who has taken an article on loan) does not return it even when requested (to do so) after the fixed period is reached or the purpose (of the loan) is carried out, the borrower should offer the price (to the owner) if the article were destroyed or stolen.

609. If the owner himself (of the article borrowed as a loan) were (likely) to sustain loss (if the article were not returned when demanded by him), then the borrower should be made to deliver it back even though the time fixed (for the loan) had not expired or even when the purpose (for which the loan was taken) was half accomplished.

610. He, who having taken the loan of an article does not deliver it even on demand, should be restrained and forcibly made to return it and fined if he does not return.

611. That is declared to be (a bailment) called anvādhi which is delivered to another with the words, 'you or the purpose is served and has not to pay interest simply because he did not return on demand, and if he does not return it then and the thing is lost he has to pay only the price. This verse is an exception to the rule in v. 608 Compare sec. 159-160 of the Indian Contract Act-

608. This states the general rule to which v. 606 is an exception and v. 607 is another.

609. Compare the more stringent provision in favour of lenders contained in sec. 159 of the Contract Act.

610. The lender had not to resort to the several means of persuasion &c. as in the case of a debt ; he could at once resort to 'bala' mode and if the borrower did not deliver even then, the king would fine him.

611. Vide note on v. 592 for an example of anvādhi or anyāhita.

should hand over (to the owner) in my name in due course of business. '

(Sale by one who is not the owner).

612. A sale, gift or pledge made without ownership should be rescinded.

613. The claimant should first establish the thing (claimed) as his own property by (the evidence of) his kinsmen; afterwards the buyer should establish in order to clear himself his purchase (as honest and bonafide) by (the testimony of) his kinsmen.

614. The owner of the lost article should proceed to establish his ownership of the article by (the testimony of) his kinsmen; and if he proves that it was not donated, abandoned or sold by him, then he gets it back.

615. (The purchaser) should establish that his purchase was overt or he should produce (before the court) the original (seller). Time for producing the seller should be given (to him) according to the number of yojanas (the seller was away).

and Mit. on Yāj II. 67. V. R. notices that Halāyudha read ' atra mārgena '.

612. The word ' asvāmi ' is separate, is an adverb and is to be construed with the rescission of all three kinds of transactions. Compare Manu VII. 199.

613. This verse applies to a case where A claims that he is the owner of a thing which he had lost and which he finds in the hands of B who claims to be a bonafide purchaser from C. Here A must prove his ownership of the thing. When he leads such evidence then the purchaser is called upon to prove that his purchase from C was bonafide; 'by kinsmen'-- this is only illustrative and implies all means of proof.

615. The purchaser can escape fine by showing that he made the purchase in the market overt or by producing the vendor.

616. (The purchaser) should establish his purchase to be overt by (the testimony of) his own kinsmen who are respectable. In this case no other means of proof, whether divine or human, is declared (to be proper).

617. Where the party (the purchaser) after putting forward (the name of) the vendor again relies on overt purchase, he must produce the seller and no purpose is served by (the plea of) overt purchase.

618. If the seller cannot be produced (before the court), (the purchaser) should clear his purchase (as overt). When he has justified his purchase (as overt and so legal) he should not be blamed at all by the king.

619. (A purchaser) who does not produce the seller or who does not establish the purchase (as overt) should be made to pay to the owner the price (of the article) as claimed (in the plaint.) and a fine (to the king).

620. If the claimant of an article (alleged to be) lost does not establish that as his by the (the testimony of) his kinsmen he deserves to be punished like a thief in order to

616. 'No other means &c.'—provided such kinsmen are available; but if such kinsmen are not available, then other modes of proof were allowed.

617. This applies to a case where the purchaser at first says he would produce the seller and then tries to prove overt purchase. He becomes a hinavādi because he changes his case and so he is made to stick to what he first put forward as his justification.

618-619. Compare Yāj. II. 170, Br. p. 335 v. 4, Nār. p. 145 vv. 2 and 4.

620. 'Prasāṅga' is explained as 'atiprasāṅga' by the Sm. C. Claimants must be deterred from advancing false claims and hence severe punishment is prescribed. Compare Br. p. 335 v. 5. The purport of all these rules is: If A sells to B an article and C comes forward as the real owner and complains that A had no ownership, C had first to prove his ownership. If he failed in this he was fined (verse 620). If he proved his ownership, then the purchaser B had either to prove a sale in market overt or produce the seller; if he produced the seller then he had to give up the thing to the rightful owner and claim his money from the seller. If he could prevent the (taking of) undue advantage.

621-623. Where a purchase has been made in the midst of a row of traders to the knowledge of the king's officers, but it is made from one whose habitation is not known or where the vendor is dead (after the purchase), the real owner (of the thing thus sold by one not owner) will recover his own chattel after paying half the price (to the purchaser) ; in such a case both (the real owner and the purchaser) lose a half on account of the rule of law (in such matters). Purchase from a man who was unknown (or whose habitation was unknown) is a fault and so also is being careless about preserving one's goods; both these are declared by the wise to cause loss of property.

not produce the seller owing to distance, he had to prove overt purchase; if he did so, he would be free from blame, but he would have to deliver the article to the owner. If the purchaser could not prove even overt sale, then he had to deliver the article to the owner and to pay a fine to the king and he lost his money also. Vide Kaut. p. 189 (text) for very similar provisions.

621-623. 'In the midst of a row of traders'.—This means that the purchase was not made in secret. 'To the knowledge of &c.'—This means that the purchase was in an open market held under the supervision of state officials; even when a purchase was made in the open market and it was proved that the article belonged to another (and not to the vendor), the purchaser, if unable to produce the the vendor because his address was not known or because he was dead (after the sale), had to give up to the real owner the article on receiving half of the price. Both were equally guilty; the purchaser purchased from one whose habitation was not known and the owner was not vigilant enough to keep his property. The law aids the vigilant and not the negligent. These verses lay down the doctrine of 'caveat emptor'. These rules show that in order to be a valid and legal sale every sale had to be in open market on a market day and at a proper hour. Vide Yāj. II. 168, Nar. p. 145 vv. 2-3. These three verses are B., pp. 335-336 vv. 7-9.

(Partnership)

624. When several persons, either traders or artisans, join together or when unseparated brothers (work together or put ancestral funds together), the profit obtained by these is to be enjoyed in equal shares when they separate.

625. They must each of them pay without fail in accordance with the agreement (made by them) for merchandise (bought for being sold), food charges, other charges (like tolls), losses (due to bad debts), freight and supervision of valuable property.

626. Of those who jointly deal in (or lend for profit) gold, grain or liquids and the like, the gain shall be the same as their shares (in the joint funds) whether equal, more or less.

627. If one out of many partners, being approved (i.e. authorised) by all, alone gives property or contracts a debt, it will be deemed to be done by all.

624. This title is so called because there is something undertaken (samutthāna = undertaking) by several persons joining together (sambhūya = having joined together). In the dharma-sūtras there is hardly any treatment of this topic. It was therefore one of the titles of law that was developed last. In the Aitareya-brāhmaṇa (IX. 1) there is a reference to the fact that in the booty obtained in a battle the warrior was entitled to $\frac{3}{4}$ ths and the charioteer was given $\frac{1}{4}$ only. Vide Yaj. II. 259 and Nār. p. 124, v. 1 (for definition) and Br. p. 340 v. 27 for the meaning of ' śilpīn ' as one who works in gold, silver-thread, wood, stone, leather &c.

625. This is the same as Nār. p. 124 v. 4.

626. This is Br. p. 337 v. 4. Vide Br. p. 336. v. 3, which says that the expenses, the labour and the profit of each partner shall be according to the original share of funds contributed by him.

627. ' Gives property ' i.e. enters into sale transactions on behalf of the partnership. Most digests read ' karanam kārayet ' (he passes a document), which is a good reading and was probably changed into ' man ca ' as ' karaṇa ' in the sense of document was not quite well-known. Compare section 251 of the Indian Contract Act (of 1872). This is the same as Br. p. 337 v. 5.

628. A debt should be given to agnates, other relatives and friends only after taking a pledge from them (as security) and to others (a debt should be advanced) after taking a surety and under a document and before witnesses.

629. Gold may be advanced at one's will, but grain and liquids should be advanced for a period (definitely fixed at the time of advance). One should lend and recover according to the custom of the country.

630. What was given (or lent) by several (partners) jointly must be recovered by them in the same way (i. e. jointly); any one alone (from among them) should not demand it (from the borrower); if he does so he loses the gain (or the interest).

631. He who saves from thieves, or from water or from fire any chattel should be given a tenth part of it; this is the rule in all disputes.

632. If artisans (of four grades of skill) viz. apprentices, more advanced students, experts (in that craft) and teachers (are employed together in one undertaking), they

628. This verse lays down that a partner, when lending out partnership money to his relatives and friends, should show more care by demanding a pledge or mortgage than when dealing with other people.

629. 'At one's will'.—A partner may fix a period for repayment of money or gold or may not fix it at the time of making the advance. Compare Br. p. 337 v. 18.

630. This is same as Br. p. 339 v. 19.

631. Compare Nār. p. 125 v. 6, Yāj. II, 260, and Br. p. 338 v. 10. That partner who saves partnership assets by his own single-handed efforts from loss due to some calamity gets $\frac{1}{10}$ of the price as his special reward; 'in all disputes'—this rule applies even to property not belonging to partnerships.

632. Vide Manu VIII, 210 and Mit. on Yāj. II, 265 for an unequal distribution of the one hundred cows offered as 'dakṣiṇā' or the jyotiṣṭoma sacrifice among four principal priests and the three shall receive one after another in order one, two, three and four shares (of the profit of that undertaking).

633--635. That booty which is brought by a pillaging party at the command of their king from an enemy country should be divided by them according to the (settled) rule (on this point) after setting aside a tenth part for their king. The head of the pillagers should get four shares from that (booty) ; the specially intrepid (among the pillagers) should get three shares, the capable (fighters of the party) two each, and the rest should each get one share. If any one from among them while they are scattered about for pillage is caught, then they should contribute according to their shares towards the payment of the ransom (that the person caught) had to pay for securing his own release.

636. This very rule has been declared by the good in the case of dancers ; one who keeps the time takes a half share, the singers take equal shares, the principals (in the troupe of dancers or musicians) are entitled to two shares each ; this is (the rule) as regards those who undertake (any work) jointly.

637. This is the rule of decision as regards all, who engage in a joint undertaking without previously defining their shares such as merchants, husbandmen, robbers or artisans.

assistants of each of of them. Vide my notes to V. M. p. 365 for complete explanation. The Pūrvamīmāṃsā had a special discussion on this topic (Jaimini X. 3. 53-55).

633-634. Compare Br. p. 341 vv. 31-32. Br. says that the king of the free-booters should get a sixth part of the booty (instead of $\frac{1}{10}$ as Kāt. does). The Sm. C. explains that Bṛhaspati's verse applies to a very powerful enemy, while Kāt. refers to a weaker one ; while the V. R. explains that $\frac{1}{6}$ or $\frac{1}{10}$ depends upon the proximity or otherwise of the country.

636. Br. p. 341 v. 30 has the first two halves and reads ' adhyardham ' (a share and half).

(Non-remission or Resumption of Gift)

638-639 Wives and sons, if unwilling, should not be made the subjects of sale or gift; wives, sons and one's entire wealth could be employed by a man himself (for any purpose of his own); but in times of adversity one may sell or gift away (even one's wives and sons), but he should not proceed to do so otherwise (i. e. in the absence of adversity). This is the definite conclusion of the S'āstras.

640. Whatever belongs to oneself which is over and above of what is required for maintaining one's family may be the subject of gift, except one's house or one's entire wealth; what is other than this cannot be given away.

641. The same as 471 above.

✓ 642. He, who having voluntarily promised a gift to a brāhmana does not deliver it, should be made to pay it as a debt and should be awarded the lowest amercement.

643. A man is born for hundreds of crores of kalpas in the form of lower animals if he does not deliver what he has promised or if he takes back what is donated.

638-639. Verse 638 refers to cases where there is no adversity. These verses are in conflict with 471 above. The Sm. C. and Par. M. explain 471 by saying that it applies where a man has an only son, while these apply where a man has several sons. Vide note on 471 above. Nār. p. 128 v. 4 and Br. p. 342 v. 2 and Yāj. II. 175 declare that son and wife cannot be given away, but the Sm. C. explains these also in the same way. Compare Kaut. p. 189 (text).

640. Compare Nār. p. 128 v. 6 and Br. p. 342 vv. 3-4. Sm. C. explains that this verse of Kāt. applies only where there is a single house and that if there are more houses than one acquired in one of the seven modes of lawful acquisition (as laid down in Manu X. 115) a gift could be made of one of them.

642. Note v. 566 above. Gautama V. 21 made an exception that if a gift be promised to one (even a brāhmana) who does not follow the rules of life as required by religious texts, it should not be delivered.

643. For the duration of kalpa vide note on v. 10.

644-645. Where a reward is indicated (i. e. promised) for finding out what is unknown, that is declared to be wagest when it (the gift promised) is obtained by the finding ou, (of the thing unknown). That is known as a gift obtained through gratitude when it is obtained in the following manner viz. (in return) for protection from danger, for guarding (the property of a minor &c.) and for effecting some desired object (such as marriage).

646. 'To him who will rescue me who am in danger of life from this state, I shall give my entire wealth',—even when this (promise) is uttered, it cannot be so.

647. What is promised through lust or wrath or by those who are dependent (like servants or slaves), by those distressed, by those who are cowards (or are frightened), by lunatics and by those who are infatuated, or through misapprehension or joke, may be taken back (or withdrawn).

644-645. Nār. p. 129 v. 8 and Br. p. 343 v. 8 speak of seven and eight kinds of valid gifts respectively, two of which are 'bhṛtī' and 'pratyupakārataḥ'. Kāt. in these two verses explains those words. 'Bhṛtī' seems to mean a reward promised for finding out a lost article or an unknown offender &c.

646. If a man promises to give all his wealth for being freed from a dangerous situation, the man who saves him from that situation cannot get his whole wealth. 'It cannot be so'—It would not be the property of the man who saves, it cannot be a valid gift.

647. 'Misapprehension'—'vyatyāsa' is so translated. It means, as V. R. explains, 'to give to A when B was meant to be the donee, or to give an article X when Y was intended to be given.' The general rule as stated by Yāj. II. 176 is 'what is promised must be given and what is given should not be taken back'. This and the following verses give the kinds of promises that need not be kept and gifts that are invalid. Compare Gautama V. 22, Nār. p. 130 vv. 9-10, Br. p. 343 vv. 9-10. As regards gifts by 'āṛta' (distressed) there was a special rule in favour of their validity as embodied in v. 566 above.

648--649. What is promised as a bribe (to a man) for accomplishing a certain object need never be given, even though that object be accomplished. But if it (the bribe) be already paid, it should be forcibly returned (to the promisor) and a fine eleven times (as much as the bribe should be levied); this is what the followers of Garga and Manu say.

650--651. That is said to be ' utkoca ' (a bribe) which is obtained by these, viz. by giving information about a thief, about a felon, about one who breaks the rules of decent conduct, about an adulterer, by pointing out those who are of bad character or by spreading false reports about a person. In these cases the person offering the bribe is not to be fined, but the intermediary deserves blame.

652--653. If a man who is appointed to (do) certain duties (by the king) obtains a bribe, he should be made to return the whole of the money (given as bribe) and to pay a fine eleven times as much (to the king). If a person who is not appointed to do a certain duty obtains a gratification which is in the nature of return (or reward) out of gratitude for (a kind) deed, he incurs no blame.

654. Same as 566.

648-649. ' Utkocā ' (or utkoca in the masculine) is defined in vv. 650-651. ' Eleven times '.—Eleven times the bribe was the fine to be paid to the king by the person accepting the bribe. These two verses are quoted in Shri Sitaram v. Shri Harihar 1. L. R. 35 Bom. 169. at p. 180 where it was held that if an adoption was induced by a bribe given to a widow, the bribe was an illegal payment and cannot support a sale or gift.

650-651. ' Giving..... a thief '— by suppressing information about a person who is really a thief or threatening an innocent person that he would be reported a thief; 'asatyappravartanāt' may also mean 'by offer to procure false witnesses.' 'The intermediary'—The person who approaches both the giver and the taker of the bribe was fined and so was the receiver of the bribe fined. But the person who offered the bribe was let off, in contrast to the modern provisions of the Indian Penal Code in sec. 161 and the following sections read with sec. 109.

655. What is mortgaged or sold through deceit or what is gifted or accepted through deceit or wherever (the king or judge) sees fraud, all such transactions he should annul.

(Non-payment of wages)

656. When no wages are settled the trader, the cowherd the husbandman should get a tenth part respectively of the profit, of the milk and of the crops.

657. He who having begun a work does not finish it at all should be forced (by the king) to finish it; he deserves to be fined if he does not do it.

658-659. A palanquin-bearer causing an obstacle at the time of starting should be made to pay double the wages (settled). (A servant) should not be made to pay when a thing (entrusted to him) is plundered by thieves or is burnt or carried away by a flood.

660. (The master) who abandons on the road (while on a journey) his servant when he is tired or afflicted with disease should be fined the first amercement if he does not wait for three days in the (neighbouring) village (to look after his servant).

656. This verse should have been placed under ' non-payment of wages '. The trader who sold as an agent a thing for the owner should get a tenth part of the profit made in the sale by the owner, the cowherd employed to look after the cattle and to milk them is to get a tenth of the milk, and the field-labourer 1/10 of the crops (land, seed and implements being furnished by the owner). Compare Yāj. II. 194 and Nār. p. 139 v. 3.

657. The Sm. C. says, following a verse of Vṛddha-Manu that the fine would be two hundred kārṣāpaṇas. Compare Āp. Dh. S. II, 11. 28. 2-3 which provides for a field-labourer or cowherd giving up his work.

658-659. ' Palanquin-bearer '—This is only illustrative and includes every one (like an armed escort). ' Obstacle ' simply means ' refusing to start ' at the time settled. Compare Nār. p. 148 v. 8 and Yāj. II. 197.

661. When the goods (or merchandise) are attached or carried away on the road, (the servant) should get as much wages as are proportionate to the distance already traversed.

662. He who having hired elephants, horses, bullocks, asses, camels and the like does not return them though his work is finished shall be made to return them together with the hire (until the date of return).

663. He who having taken on hire a house, a water (tank), market or the like, does not return it to the owner (even when his work is done) should be made to pay the hire (till the date of return).

(Dispute between master and herdsman)

664. When (cattle) enter into fields, parks, reserved pastures, houses and cowsheds, they should be seized or beaten. This is the view of Brhaspati.

665. In the case of beating of the beasts of the lowest, middle and highest class, if their owner raises a dispute (the king or judge) should there prescribe the fine.

661. ' Attached '— by the king's officers (such as toll-gate keepers); ' carried away ' by robbers &c. This applies to a case where a lump sum is fixed as the wages for carrying certain merchandise for a certain distance.

663. ' Water '— means ' a water vessel ' according to the Sm, C. and Vir; V. R. seems to take it as referring to water tank dug by the owner.

664. Compare Āp. Dh. S. II. 11. 28. 5-6. The Sm, C. says that the calves should be seized and the big bullocks should be beaten.

665. ' Raises a dispute '.—If the owner of the trespassing beasts pleads that the beating was more severe than necessary or allowed by the śāstras and proves his contention, the owner of the field trespassed upon was fined according to his fault.

666. Before the crops have grown, (the owner) should construct a high paling (surrounding them). Animals (or deer) when they have once tasted the sweet (crops) can be warded off only with great difficulty.

667. He (the king) should make the (owner of a trespassing) cow pay a fine of a fourth pana, (the owner of) a she-buffalo two quarters of a pana; so also the fine in the case of goats, sheep and calves is declared to be a fourth (of a pana).

(Violation of compacts)

668-669. Members of groups while strictly adhering to their individual duties (as laid down in the śāstras) should perform all their actions according to the conventional rules of their various groups. If royal edicts (or commands) that are issued are not in conflict with one's duty (as laid down in śruti and smṛti), one should by the king's order first perform those acts only.

666. Compare Manu VIII. 239, Nār. p. 164 vv. 40-41. This verse applies to a field which is near a forest, while Nār. p. 164 v. 41 applies to a field which is near a public road.

667. 'Pana' here means 'kāṛṣāṇa'. In the various smṛtis various fines are enumerated which apply to various sets of circumstances. Vide Gautama XII. 19-23, Nār. p. 161 v. 31, Yāj. II. 159-160, Manu VIII. 241.

668-669. Compare Yāj. II. 186, Br. p. 347 v. 5, Nār. p. 153, v. 2. The Mit. mentions among compacts made by groups in a village the rules about pastures, about the distribution of water and preservation of temples and among royal edicts (not in conflict with dharma) such as giving food to travellers coming to a village, not selling horses to persons from an enemy country. Br. p. 348 vv. 11-12 give as examples of agreements made by groups and reduced to writing the following: 'The construction of a house of assembly, a shed for giving water to travellers, a temple, a tank, a garden, relief to helpless people, performance of sacrificial acts, a common path or defence shall be undertaken by us in proportionate shares.' The Sm.C. says that if a king's order (e. g. a field or house donated by the king should not be sold or mortgaged) is opposed to the general rules of dharma, then it impliedly follows from the above verse (669) that it need not be obeyed.

670. That wicked man who would not observe the rules put in vogue by the king should be censured and fined as he sets at naught the king's order.

671. He (that member of a group) who opposes what is reasonable, who gives no scope to the speaker (when the group meets) or who speaks what is absurd, should be made to pay the first amercement.

✓ 672. He who is guilty of sāhasa (a heinous crime), who causes a split (in the group) or who destroys the wealth belonging to the group— all these should be proclaimed to the king and destroyed (by the group); this is the view of Bhṛgu.

673. He who can eat in the same vessel or in the same line with another should be fined if he refuses to do so without pointing out the fault (in him that prevents such commensality of food).

674. Whatever debt was incurred (by the spokesmen of groups) as for the (purposes of) the group but was misappropriated (lit. eaten up) by them or was applied to their individual purposes must be paid by themselves only.

675-676. Those who (subsequently) enter into groups, corporations and classes become equally entitled to the property and liable to the debts (of the groups) previously (acquired

670. The Sm. C. says that this applies only to such orders as are not opposed to the rules of śruti and smṛti.

671. For carrying on the objects of the group, two, three or five persons were to be appointed as advisors and their advice was to be followed by all. Vide Yāj. II. 188, Br. p. 347 v. 10.

672. Compare Yāj. II. 187, Manu VIII. 219-220 and Br. p. 348 v. 16 and Nār. p. 155. v. 6. Heavy sentences are meant for persistent defiance.

673. Persons of the same sub-caste sit down to meals in the same line. If any one refuses to do so, that is a great disrespect. He can do so only if he shows some ground which makes the man liable to be excommunicated by the caste.

674. This is an exception to the general rule in 677.

or incurred). One who is inside a group is entitled to a share in the food, the partible things (like grain), in the charities, and religious duties (of the group), but one who has gone out (of a group) is not entitled to a share.

677. Whatever is obtained by them (i.e. by the advisers of groups) or is saved by them or whatever debts are incurred by them for their group and whatever they obtained through the favour of the king should be equally shared by all (members of the group).

678. A group of several inhabitants of the same city is called ' naigama ' ; a troop of persons bearing various kinds of weapons are declared to be ' vrāta '.

679. A group of merchants and the like is declared to 677. Yāj. (II. 189-190) says that when the principal men of a group wait on the king the latter should listen to them and send them away with honours and gifts and that whatever they obtain from the king they should hand over as the property of the group. This is ' rājaprasādalabha '. The principal men of a village represented the village in a boundary dispute. The additional land they may obtain belongs to the whole village. This is ' whatever is obtained &c. ' Compare Br p. 349, vv. 22 and 24.

678 Nārada has a verse ' पाषाण्डनैगम-श्रेणिपूगत्रातगणादिषु ॥ संरक्षेत् सम्यं राजा दुर्गे जनपदे तथा ' (Nār. p. 153 v. 2), the various terms in which have been differently interpreted by different commentators. Kāt. explains in his own way most of these terms. Yāj. II. 192 is a similar verse. The Mit. explains ' Naigamas ' as ' sects like the Pāśupatas who though not accepting all the dogmas of orthodox Brahmanism accept the Vedas (Naigama) as authoritative. ' The Madanaratna explains ' naigamāṇi ' as ' merchants who form a caravan '. The word ' vrāta ' occurs even in the Vedas and means ' a collection or multitude ' (Rg. I. 163. 8, VI. 75. 9, IX. 16. 7, and Vāj. Sam. III. 55). The Mahābhāṣya on Pāṇini V. 2. 21 (vrātena jīvati) explains ' vrāta ' as a group of men of several castes and several occupations who make a living by relying on their tall bodies. '.

679 The word ' pūga ' occurs in the Kausītaki-brāhmaṇa 16. 7 (pūgo vai Rudraḥ) where Rudra is called pūga. Pāṇini (V. 2, 52) strings together pūga, gaṇa and saṅgha. Medhātithi (on Manu IV. 30) explains ' pāsāṇḍi ' as ' Baudhdhas and others who do not recognise the Vedas '. Mit. explains it similarly; ' pūga ' is explained by the Smr. C. as ' elephant and horse riders ', while the V. R. says that some explain it as meaning ' multitudes of persons of various castes whose means of subsistence are not fixed. ' be 'pūga' and those are said to be 'pāṣaṇḍas' (heretics) who have forsaken the (rules of the) order of ascetics.

KATYAYANA ON VYAVAHARA

680. The corporation of brāhmaṇas is called gana and those who subsist by following some craft are called craftsmen.

681. The groups of the followers of Arhat (i. e. the Jainas) and of the followers of Buddha are styled saṅgha and the companies of cāṇḍalas and śvapacas (those who eat dog-flesh) are called gulma.

682. Ganas, heretics, pūgas, vrātas and śrenis (corporations) and all others who constitute groups are styled vargas (groups). This is what Bṛhaspati says.

(Repentance after purchase and sale, or repentance after purchase or non-delivery after selling).

683. He, who after having purchased a thing and having brought it under his control does not receive it or he who does not deliver it as free from defect (such as being wet), should pay a tenth part of the price to the other (side) and would obtain his property.

680. The Mit. on Yāj. II. 192 explains 'gana' as 'an assembly of persons armed who subsist by following one avocation'. 'Gana' occurs in the Vedas (R̥gveda I. 14. 3, I. 64. 12 and Tai. Sam. V. 4. 77 speaks of the Maruts as formed into gana).

681. 'Saṅgha' is well known in Buddhist works. 'Buddha, Dharma and Saṅgha'—these constitute their great trinity. Kaut. p. 12 speaks of saṅgha of Vṛṣṇis perishing through their attempt against Dvāipāyana.

682. 'Śreni' occurs in R̥g. I. 163. 10 (where it is said that 'like hamsas they work in groups'). The Mit. explains that a śreni is a guild or corporation that follows the same trade or craft. Compare Gautama XI. 21 where it is said that husbandmen, merchants, herdsmen, money-lenders and craftsmen are authority as to the usages of each 'varga' (group). Vide v. 349 above which is similar.

683. This applies to one who having purchased a thing⁷ repents of it and so does not accept delivery or one who having sold a thing does not deliver it; compare Nār. p. 149 v. 1 and p. 146 v. 1.

684. When the time of employing a thing for the purpose (for which it was purchased or sold) has not arrived then (the king) should not make (the defaulting party) pay (the tenth part of price) though receipt (of the thing purchased) or delivery (of the thing sold) is not made. This is the rule up till the 10th day ; beyond that there is no (recognition in law of repentance.)

✓685. In the case of land (repentance is allowed) to the seller up to the tenth day, the same is the time for the buyer ; twelve days are allowed to sapindas (for repentance in the case of lands), lesser time than this (is allowed) in other cases.

686. If after purchasing (an article) the purchaser repents and does not receive the article such as milch cattle though it has no defect at the time (of repentance), he should offer a tenth part of the price (to the seller).

687. If the purchaser, after purchasing an article, begins to repent when it has been delivered to him, then a wise man after giving a sixth part of the price should give up the thing purchased.

684. When a cow or bullock is purchased for milk or carrying burdens and the purchaser refuses to receive the cow or bullock before that time arrives or the seller refuses to deliver, he had not to pay even the 10th part of the price. This is a special case. Compare Manu VIII. 222-223 for the period of ten days for repentance. Nār. (p. 150 vv. 2 and 3) allows a shorter period for repentance. The Par. M. explains that the shorter periods apply to things that are lost or deteriorate by use even for a short time.

686. V. R. explains ' at the time ' as ' at the time of paying the price ' ; while the Sm. C. explains as above. According to V. R. this verse applies where a thing was purchased without examination.

687. V. R. says that the former verse applies where the thing purchased has not yet come into the custody of the purchaser. The Vir. says that this verse (viz. payment of $\frac{1}{6}$) applies where the thing purchased is such as perishes by use.

688. If what was purchased without being properly understood (by examination) is later on proved to have defects, that purchased article may be returned to the owner within the time (prescribed for examination) but not otherwise.

689. Where (a seller) having shown an article free from defects (as the one to be sold) delivers one that is full of defects, he should be made to pay double the price (to the buyer) and an equal fine as punishment (to the king).

690. If an article were to be burnt or carried away (by thieves) the loss falls on the seller only, when having sold it he does not deliver it.

691. And where the purchaser does not accept the article purchased by him when it is being delivered to him, then the seller, if he sells it to another, would not be guilty of any fault,

692. What has been sold by one intoxicated or insane or for inadequate price, or through fear or by one who is not his own master or by an idiot should be relinquished (by the purchaser); it still belongs to him (the seller).

693-694. One (the purchaser) should examine milk animals for three days, a beast of burden for five days and the examination of pearls, diamonds and corals may be for seven days. Half a month (may be allowed) in the case of male bipeds

688. An article though full of defects cannot be returned after the time prescribed for examination. This embodies the doctrine of caveat emptor. Vide vv. 621-623 above.

689. Compare Br. p. 350 v. 4.

690. Compare Yāj. II. 256, Nār. p. 148, 6.

691. Compare Yāj. II. 255, Nār. p. 148 v. 9. Yāj. provides that the loss on resale falls on the defaulting buyer, for which compare sec. 107 of the Indian Contract Act.

692. The last quarter may be construed ' that man (the purchaser) will have to relinquish it.' Compare Br. p. 350 v. 5.

693-694. These are the same as Nār. p. 150 vv. 5-6. Compare Yāj. II. 177 who compresses in one verse the contents of these two verses. ' Male bipeds '— means slaves. This verse applies where the thing is purchased without examination. If an article is pur-

(for examination) and twice as much in the case of females; ten days for all kinds of seeds and one day for iron and clothes.

695. If some blemish in the article purchased is seen before the periods (specified above) expire, the article should be returned to the seller and the purchaser will get back the price (paid by him).

696. When a garment is worn out by use, is in a tattered condition and soiled, if it is purchased even with all these (patent) defects, it cannot be returned to the seller.

697. If a thing jointly owned (by several) were purchased, a single vile man cannot deliver it (to the buyer). It should not be received nor taken nor should it be sold.

698-699. Where a purchaser after purchasing a chattel for a price thinks that he has made a bad purchase he should return it to the seller the very same day without looking at it. The purchaser returning it on the 2nd day should offer (to the seller) a thirtieth part (of the price) and double of this (i.e. 15th part) on the third day. After that (the third day) the article belongs to the buyer himself (and cannot be returned).

chased after examination it cannot be returned. Vide Nār. p. 150, v. 4 and Br. p. 350 v. 3.

695. Vide Br. p. 350, v. 6 for the same verse.

✓ 696. This is the same as Nār. p. 150 v. 7.

697. Property in a thing belonging to several persons jointly cannot pass by the act of one alone without their consent.

698. ' Without looking at it '—without stopping to examine it. If we read ' avikṣatam ' it means (he should return it) ' without any damage to it ' (and if some damage has already resulted then with compensation). Both 698-99 are the same as Nār. pp. 149-150 vv. 2-3.

700. After dividing the value of a thing into five parts, three parts are declared to be the price of it, the fourth part is the profit and the fifth is meant for truth.

701. A compromise and an exchange, if they are unequal, can be annulled for three generations and a sale by order can be annulled up till the 10th year.

702. The conclusion is that there can be no lawful sale or purchase of land without securing the approval of the kinsmen (of the seller and buyer) who are neighbours (i. e. owners of neighbouring lands) and who are respectable men.

703. In the same village a period of ten nights (for vetoing by kinsmen the sale made by one of the kinsmen) is prescribed ; when (land sold is) in another village, the period is three fortnights, when in another country six months, when the language (of the kinsmen vetoing) is different, a year.

700. This verse applies according to Saras. to trade in saffron. It is somewhat obscure. If $\frac{3}{5}$ ths of the value of a thing in the eyes of its owner are offered, it is an adequate price. $\frac{1}{5}$ of the value really corresponds to the profit which the seller wants to make and the other $\frac{1}{5}$ is what he wants for holding the purchaser to his transaction i.e. it represents what the seller thinks should be compensation to him if the sale goes off.

701. This is cited by the Saras. as from Vṛddha Kātyāyana. An ājñākṛaya appears to be a purchase by order of the king of a man's land for recovery of the land revenue or other state dues. Vide v. 704 below. The Saras. quotes verses from Bhāradvāja and Sumantu to the effect that a compromise, an exchange and a partition can be resiled from for ten days even when it is fair, but up to nine years when any one of them is unfair. Thus the rule about repentance for ten days in the case of sales is applicable to other transactions also.

702. The Mit. on Yāj. II. 114 quotes a similar verse “स्वग्राम-ज्ञातिसामन्तदायादानुमतेन च । हिरण्योदकदानेन षड्भिर्गच्छति मेदिनी ॥” and remarks that the consent of the villagers, kinsmen and coheirs was to be taken simply for the purpose of giving notice to them of the intended sale and of neighbours for avoiding disputes about boundaries in future. So Kāt. must be interpreted in the same sense.

703. This verse seems to lay down the periods during which kinsmen could prevent a sale by one of them becoming perfect by opposing it and withholding their consent.

704. If the man liable to pay the (land) tax absconds along with the surety for the tax the members of the (royal) audience hall should sell the land of the taxpayer for recovering the tax.

705-706. What is decided upon by the neighbours gathering together who know (the land &c. and its value) and who are afraid of sin as the price of fields, gardens, houses, and the like and of bipeds and quadrupeds, that is said to be their proper price. Dividing that price into eight parts, any price (offered by a buyer) which exceeds by $\frac{1}{8}$ th or is less by $\frac{1}{8}$ th (of the price so decided) is to be known as improper.

707. All that (i.e. a sale for inadequate price) can be annulled even when a hundred years have elapsed. In purchases and sales (a thing) should be sold for that price which the article deserves according to the rules (of śāstra).

708-709. If when a purchase or sale is effected and when the price is less by a fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh or even eighth part (of the proper price arrived as laid down above), all that becomes (a transaction) for an inadequate price and though carried out must be (regarded) as not done (i.e. as invalid). But a purchase is not at all defective when it is (for a price) a little less than (the price arrived at as above).

710. But when a purchase or sale falls short as to price by that part, then the transaction, though carried out, is declared by those who know dharma to be invalid.

706. Supposing the proper price of a house decided upon by the kinsmen is 800 rupees, then any price below 700 is inadequate and any price above 900 is improper or too high.

709. A purchase for 750 when the proper price arrived at under v. 705 is 800 Rs. is good.

710. ' By that part ' i.e. by more than $\frac{1}{8}$ th of the proper price.

711. A sale of 'uktalābha' kind will be valid if it is for more than half (the price of the thing as settled by the rule above) provided more than ten (years) have elapsed (after the period fixed in it) An avakraya (transfer for hire by a bailee) becomes valid after enjoyment for three generations and a purchase by mutual agreement (between the seller and buyer) becomes valid at once.

712. The purchase of an article may be rendered valid even when much less than the proper price has been paid ; but (the balance of the price) would have to be paid with compound interest if there is no agreement (as to the time when the balance of the price is to be paid).

(Breach of a contract of service).

713. That master, who would not teach (his apprentice)

711. An 'uktalābha' seems to be the same as the mortgage by conditional sale defined by sec. 58 (C) of the Transfer of Property Act. The Saras. p. 324 quotes the following definition 'किञ्चित् द्रव्यमादाय काले दास्यामि ते कञ्चित् । नो चेन्मूलमिदं त्वक्तं वेदारस्येति यः क्रयः । स उक्तलाभ इत्युक्त उक्तकालेप्यनर्पणात् ॥'. Avakraya is a transaction whereby a bailee transfers to another an article for hire e. g. where a washerman to whom a garment had been given for washing gives it to another (than the owner) for a time in return for hire. Vide Mit. on Yāj. II. 238 ('Vikrayāvakryādhānāyāciteṣu pañān daśa') for definition of avakraya. Pāṇini (IV. 4. 50) uses the word 'avakraya', but it is explained as the dues recoverable by a king from a market &c. Gautama XII. 39 uses 'avakṛita' in the sense of ' what is purchased, but the price of which is altogether unpaid or only partially paid '. This meaning may suit in this verse. If a man purchases a thing without paying the price, ownership in the thing is not perfect for three generations.

712. Compound interest will be calculated for the balance, when no time has been fixed ; if a time has been fixed for the payment of the balance, then till that time only the balance has to be paid. But even within that time if a demand is made, there is compound interest calculated from the date of demand.

713. 'Abhyupetya' means 'after having made an agreement, after having accepted' and 'aśūrūṣā' means 'not serving or waiting upon.' Compare Nār. p. 133 v. 17. According to Nārada the craft (for learning which he is apprenticed) and employs him for doing other work, should be fined the first amercement and the apprentice should return from him.

714. An apprentice, although he may have (thoroughly) learnt (the craft), should indeed do (at his teacher's house) the work undertaken by him. The fruits of the work that he may do there (in the teacher's house) belong to the master himself.

715-716. Bhṛgu holds that (a man) becomes a slave as he surrenders himself when free (to another's will) just as the wife (surrenders her person to the husband). (Members) of three varṇas can become slaves but a brāhmaṇa can never be a slave. Slavery in the case of the (three) varṇas viz, kṣatriyas, vaiśyas and śūdras is in their direct order and not in the inverse order when they surrender their independence.

717-718. Even one of the same caste (i. e. a brāhmaṇa) should not make a brāhmaṇa work as a slave, since the glory (lit. lustre) of a king becomes tarnished by the slavery of a brāhmaṇa. A man who is a kṣatriya, vaiśya or śūdra in his duties may occasionally do the work of a slave for a man of the same caste (as his own), but a brāhmaṇa should never

(p. 131 vv. 2-3), there are five sorts of attendants, pupils (śiṣya), apprentices (antevāsin), hired servant (bhṛtaka), supervising official (adhikarmakṛt) and slave. An apprentice is one who, desirous of learning a craft or art (like dancing and singing), resides with a master with the consent of his relations, having fixed the duration of his apprenticeship (vide Nār. p. 133 v. 16).

714. Even if a pupil masters the technique of the craft quickly, he had to remain with the teacher till the period of apprenticeship agreed upon expired. Compare Yāj. II. 184 and Nār. p. 134 v. 19.

715-716. ' In the direct order '—a śūdra could be the slave of any master of the four castes, a vaiśya of any master of the first three castes, but not of a śūdra master, a kṣatriya could be a slave of a brāhmaṇa or kṣatriya master but not of a vaiśya or śūdra master. Slavery is here assimilated to anuloma marriages. Compare Nār. p. 137 v. 39 and Yāj. II. 183 (latter half).

be made to do the work of a slave. This is the view of Brhaspati.

719. A brāhmaṇa may, if he chooses, do work of an inferior kind for another brāhmaṇa who is possessed of (high) character and Vedic learning; but even then a brāhmaṇa should not do what is impure work.

720. Sweeping faeces and urine, shampooing (the master) when naked and taking charge of (or seizing) bulls and the like—these should generally be done by the issue of female slaves.

721. Where the three varṇas, brāhmaṇa and the rest, become apostates from the order of ascetics, the king should banish the brāhmaṇa from the country and should make the kṣatriya and vaiśya work as a slave.

719. A brāhmaṇa could not be made to work as a slave even by a brāhmaṇa, but a brāhmaṇa may of his own will do menial work for another learned brāhmaṇa as an act of good will (as paropakāra) and not for wages, but he was not to do even for a brāhmaṇa impure acts like sweeping the gate, privy or road, shampooing private parts &c. Nārada divides occupations into śubha and aśubha, which latter are to be done only by slaves. Vide Nār. pp. 131-132 vv. 6-7 for impure acts.

720. V. R. explains 'nagnatvapaparmardana' as 'helping to put on clothes when the master is naked'.

721. Compare Nār. p. 137 v. 35. and Yāj. II. 183, who declares that one who has fallen from the order of asceticism becomes a slave of the king till his own death. One who does not do the duties appropriate to a saṁnyāsin is 'pravrajyāvasita' according to the Mit. and becomes a slave if he does not perform the proper prayas'citta (penance). Dakṣa declares that he who is an apostate from asceticism should be branded with a red hot piece of iron resembling a dog's foot, and then banished. If the king is himself a vaiśya or śūdra, this verse shows that one who was a kṣatriya and became an apostate may thus become the slave of a vaiśya or śūdra (king). So far this is an exception to v. 716.

722. One may make the śūdra work as a slave, whether he be purchased or not purchased; the creator himself created him for slavery.

723. When a master has sexual intercourse with his female slave and the latter then gives birth to a son, the master looking to the seed (which was his own) should make the female slave free from slavery together with her progeny.

724. The wealth that a slave has belongs to the master (of the slave). But the master is not entitled to that money which (the slave) got by selling himself openly.

725. A woman who is not a slave, if she is married by a slave, becomes a slave, since her husband is her lord and the husband is dependent on the master (whose slave he is).

722. Manu VIII. 413 reads ' brāhmaṇasyā ' for ' svayam-eva ' in this verse.

723. Compare Kauṭ. p. 183 (text. स्वामिनस्तस्यां दास्यां जातं समातुक्-मदासं विद्यात्). ' Looking to the seed '— The Sm. C. explains this as ' looking to the fact that she conceived from him and that otherwise his own child would be a slave '. V. R. says that this applies when the master has no son. For the method of freeing a slave, vide Nār. p. 138 vv. 42-43. This verse is referred to in I.L.R. 7 Mad. 407 at p. 412.

724. Compare for the first half Manu VIII. 416 (which is the same as Nār. p. 138 v. 41) and Mahābhārata Udyogaparva 33-64 (which is slightly different). The reading of the Vivādacintā-maṇi ' prasāda-vikrayāt ' gives the best sense, meaning ' what the slave gets through the favour of his master and the price he got by selling himself do not belong to the master '.

725. A woman may be free and marry a slave, then she becomes the slave of the same master. A woman though a slave may not be the slave of that master whose slave her husband is. If her master consents to the marriage then he loses his ownership and she becomes the slave of another. But if the marriage takes place without her owner's consent, then she does not cease to be his slave and her slavery to the husband's master is only indirect.

726-729. If one would take (i. e. buy) a brāhmana woman (as a slave) or would sell her, the king should annul that (transaction) and all of them (buyer, seller &c) would be liable to pay a fine. He who enslaves a woman of a respectable family that took shelter with him at her pleasure or who transfers her to another as a slave should be fined and that transaction should be annulled. He who enjoys the nurse of his child or another woman who is not his slave or the wife of his servant as if she were a slave, should be fined the first amercement. He who though well off and not involved in any misfortune desires to sell a female slave who is faithful and who weeps bitterly should be fined two hundred.

730. He who being not his own master offers himself to another (as a slave) saying 'I am thine', he (the slave) would not secure his desire and his former master would get him back.

731. One who becomes a slave because he is an apostate from the order of asceticism cannot be freed from slavery by anybody. One who was maintained during a famine is freed from slavery if he gives a pair of oxen.

726-729. For 726 compare Viṣṇu V. 151. 'Another woman who is not his slave' i. e. who is placed under his care or who comes to him for shelter. 'Weeping bitterly' i. e. who is unwilling to be sold to another; 'two hundred'—this refers to paṇas. The verse implies that if the slave is not devoted to the master, no fine is incurred by selling her.

730. 'Not his own master' i. e. being already the slave of one man; 'would not secure his desire' i. e. he cannot be the slave of the other man to whom he desires to go. This is the same as Nār. p. 138 v. 40.

731. Nār. (pp. 135-136 vv. 26-27) enumerates fifteen kinds of slaves of whom 'pravrajyāvasita' (apostate &c.) and 'anākāla-bhṛta', (maintained in a famine) are two. So Kāt. has in view Nārada's verses. Manu VIII. 415 mentions seven kinds of slaves but he does not exclude a larger number. With the first hal. compare Yāj. II. 183 and Nār. p. 137 v. 135 and vide v. 721 above. The only way in which an apostate from asceticism could gain his release would have been by saving the king's life from danger by endangering his own life. Vide Yāj. II. 182 and Nāj. p. 136 v. 30. The latter half of 731 is the same as Nār. p. 136 v. 31.

(Boundary disputes)

732. There are six causes of land disputes, viz larger extent of share or deficiency of share, the existence or non-existence (of a share in the land), seizing or possession when there was no possession and boundary.

733. In boundary disputes, enjoyment (i. e. possession) should be relied upon (as the means of proof) and (that) depends upon witnesses. A witness is of two sorts, viz. one who has subscribed himself on a document and one not so.

734. When a dispute between two men arises as to fields, houses, ponds, wells, gardens and dams, the neighbour who dwells on the border is the deciding evidence in all these matters.

732. The Mit. on Yāj. II. 150 explains these six :— When one says that he has more than five nivartanas of land in a particular area and another says that he has only five and not more, this is a dispute as to ādhikya (larger extent); if one says he has five nivartanas of land and another says that that man is entitled to less, that is a dispute about deficiency (nyūnatā); where a man says that his share is five nivartanas and another says he has no share, that is a dispute concerning the existence or non-existence of a share; when one says that his land which was never in the enjoyment of another has recently been taken into his possession by that other and that other says his enjoyment is immemorial, that is ' abhogabhukti ' cause of dispute. Whether this is the boundary or that is the sixth cause of land dispute. But in all six boundaries have directly or indirectly to be settled and therefore all may be included in the topic ' simāvivāda '. A boundary dispute may relate to one between countries, villages, fields and houses.

733. It is better to read ' sa ca sākṣiṣu '. Compare Manu VIII. 252-253. A witness in a boundary dispute is defined by Brhaspati as ' अगमं च प्रमाणं च भोगं कालं च नाम च । भूभागलक्षणं चैव ये विदुस्तेत्र साक्षिणः ॥ ' quoted in स्मृतिच० III. p. 537.

734. Compare Vasiṣṭha 16. 13 ' गृहक्षेत्रविरोधे सामन्तप्रत्ययः ' and Manu VIII. 262.

735. When there are neighbours (available as witnesses) (the king or judge) should decide (disputes about the boundaries of) fields and the like by (the evidence of) neighbours; so also about boundaries of villages, towns and districts.

736. A village is the 'sāmanta' in the case of (another) village, a field in the case of a field and a house in the case of a house, since these stand (as if) embracing (each other) all round.

737. In the absence of them (witnesses) sāmantas, maulas, viddhas and uddhrtas are in order (the means of decision) in all the six kinds of disputes about immovables. This should not be doubted.

738. Sāmantas are those who are inseparably connected (with the village in dispute); then beyond them are those who are connected with them and then come those who verge on those who are connected with the sāmantas — all these are like the lotus (with numerous layers of petals).

735. 'Sāmanta' is derived from 'samanta' and means 'those who stay round about' (samantād-bhava). Omit the 'avagraha' after 'sāmantabhāve'.

736. When there is a doubt about the boundaries of a village, the four villages round that village in the four principal directions are the neighbours (sāmantas). The words village, field, house, stand for persons dwelling therein or owning them. Compare Manu VIII, 258.

737. Maulas and the other two are defined in vv. 743-745. The six kinds are those in v. 732. 'In the absence of them' — in the absence of the two kinds of witnesses mentioned in verse 733. Vide Manu VIII, 258 for sāmantas in the absence of witnesses.

738. The four villages immediately on the boundary of the village in dispute are called sāmantas (or samsaktas); these are sāmantas par excellence; the four villages beyond these four are 'samsaktasakta'. The four villages even beyond the 2nd group of four are 'samsaktasaktasamsakta'. These latter two classes also may be called sāmantas in a secondary sense. They resemble a lotus, the inner petals being sāmantas, the next layer being the samsaktasaktas and so on.

739-740. When the sāmantas (the first row of surrounding villages) are shown to be vitiated by defects for establishing the purpose (viz. the correct boundary) the decision should be made, as the matter (of boundaries) is a very important one, by (the evidence of) those (villages or villagers) who come immediately after the (first row of) sāmantas. There is no doubt about this. When faults (are shown) in those who come immediately after the sāmantas (the first group of villages), those (i.e. the third group) who are after these (after the 2nd group) are declared (to be the persons whose evidence is decisive). But the king who knows the law should not hold those who are shown to be vitiated (as proper persons for giving evidence as to boundaries).

741. The sāmantas (neighbouring villagers) are not free from their duty of (helping in) decision (of a boundary dispute) by (pretending) ignorance. When they profess that they are ignorant, they should be fined and (the king) should further proceed with the consideration (of the boundary dispute); when they (sāmantas) have deposed, and there is contradiction (in their testimony) they should be fined the highest amercement.

742. Giving up neighbours (sāmantas) if they are vitiated (by partiality &c.) the king should settle (the 739-740. 'Vitiated by defects' i. e. they are seen to be partial owing to friendship or enmity. The sāmantas even though shown to be partial owing to friendship or enmity are not to be regarded as proper persons simply because they are sāmantas; if they are partial then the next row (samsaktasaktas) are to be relied upon.

741. 'Further proceed' i. e. he should rely on documents and on the evidence of other persons (like maulas &c.). Vide Vas. 16-14 'सामन्तविरोधे लेख्यप्रत्ययः'. Nār. p. 156 v. 7 prescribes the second amercement in this case and so do Manu VIII. 263 and Yāj. II. 53. Therefore Kātyāyana's rule is applicable where their deposition is grossly false.

742. 'Others'—these are persons other than sāmantas, i. e. they are citizens, and other villagers &c. It is better to read 'samikṣya' (having considered) or 'sammarśya' as V. R. and boundary by mixing up others with the maulas and the rest. Those who know the law declare this to be the law (on boundary disputes).

743. Those are called by the sages maulas who were at first sāmantas (of the disputed land) and afterwards migrated to another country, (being called maulas) because they (were) principal ones (at one time).

744. Those are called uddhṛtas, who, whether they are actually old or not, being endowed with the (good) qualities of men, saw the matter (of the boundary) when it was effected.

745. They are known to be uddhṛtas since they being marked with the characteristics of knowing (the boundary) from others, enjoyment, recovering the taxes (of the land in dispute), popular report, help to decide the matter.

746. Sāmantas are the first means of proof (in boundary disputes), but if their undesirability is pointed out, then those who are beyond them (are the means) provided they are

Sm. C. respectively do. Manu VIII. 259 also says that in the absence of sāmantas, the king should rely on maulas and in the absence of these on others.

743. 'Maula' is derived by Kāt. from 'mūla' (the root). At one time being sāmantas they were of prime importance and hence they are called maulas (though they are no longer sāmantas).

744. 'Whether they are actually old or not — Being old is not an essential requisite of the definition. They must have seen the boundary being actually laid down or described in former times.

745. Uddhṛtas are those who know the boundary in an indirect way i. e. by hearsay &c. 'Kārya' is explained as 'kara-grahana', 'ākhyāna' as 'vārtā' and 'upaśravaṇa' as 'paraspara-prasiddhi' by Aparārka.

746. This verse declares that sāmantas or sāmsaktas are the principal persons; if faults (due to friendship or hatred) are shown in them, then the next group (sāmsaktasaktas) is to be taken; but possessed of good qualities and are double in number (of the sāmantas); those other than these last (i. e. sañsaktasakta-sañsakta) must be three times as many (as the sāmantas).

747. Even a single person, if acceptable to both (parties to the dispute), may in some cases lay down the boundary as it should be; he should do so clad in red clothes with an unperturbed mind and after placing a clod of earth on his head.

748. In the absence of all, (the proper boundary) is the one determined by the king himself who is free from all sorts of apprehensions.

749. (This procedure should be followed in deciding boundary disputes) about large fields, wells, tanks, enclosed fields, gardens, houses, mansions, cottages, king's palaces and temples.

their number must be double of the sañsaktas, Yāj. II. 152 laid down that the number of sāmantas must be 4, 8 or ten. So the *sañsaktasakta*s must be 8, 16 or 20. Compare Śankha-Likhita ' गृहक्षेत्रयोर्विरोधे सामन्तप्रत्ययः, सामन्तविरोधे अभिलेख्यप्रत्ययः, अभिलेख्यविरोधे ग्रामनगरवृद्धश्रेणिप्रत्ययः, ग्रामनगरवृद्धश्रेणिविरोधे दशवर्षमुक्तमन्यत्र राजविप्रस्वात् ' (quoted in V. R. p. 208).

747. Compare Br. p. 352 v. 11. Nār. p. 157 v. 9 laid down the general rule that a single man should not fix a boundary, but in v. 10 he allowed even a single man to do so. The wearing of red garments and placing earth on the head are prescribed even in the case of many by Manu VIII. 256 and Yāj. II. 152.

748. When there were no witnesses, no sāmantas and the rest, no indications such as trees &c. for settling the boundary, the king was to settle it according to his own lights. Vide Manu VIII. 265, Yāj. II. 153 (latter half), Nār. p. 157. v. 11.

749. Compare Manu VIII. 262, Yāj. II. 154, Nār. p. 157. v. 12. ' Kedāra ' is explained ' as a field with low embankments '.

750. Of the many persons gathered together (for settling the dispute) if all do not give decisive testimony through fear or greed, each of them should be made to pay the highest amercement.

751. In the case of (settling a boundary dispute by) walking over the boundary, in the ordeal by holy water, and in swearing by touching the feet (of idols, elders or brāhmaṇas), (the visitation of) divine disfavour or royal disfavour is to be expected within three fort-nights, one fort-night, a week respectively.

752-3 One should not interfere with the base of the wall, a drain (or waterspout), a balcony, window, water-course and dwelling house (of another); one who obstructs these would be liable to fine. These are not to be added (to one's house) after the first building of it (so as to cause obstruction or annoyance to another); one should not open a window (so as to command a view) in the interior of another's house or should not construct a water-course (that will drain off rain water) on another's house.

750. Vide v. 741 above and note thereon. Compare Manu VIII. 257 (prescribing a fine of 200 paṇas for sākṣi) and v. 263 (which prescribes middle amercement for false sāmāntas), Yāj. II. 153 (who prescribes middle amercement i. e. 500 paṇas for sāmāntas), Nār. p. 156, v. 7. The Mit. explains that the highest fine is to be awarded if they purposely give false testimony.

751. The idea is that a boundary settled by the evidence of sāmāntas &c. should not be regarded as final for three fortnights; if within that period the persons settling that boundary are visited by divine or royal displeasure, then it is to be inferred that they decided falsely.

752-753. Compare Br. p. 354 vv. 24-25 for similar provisions as to the protection of easements; ' should not open a window '— this right of privacy is recognised even now by the courts as prevalent in Gujerat, Vide 2 Bom. L. R. 454, 22 Bom. L. R. 226,

754. One should construct the mounds meant for (depositing) ordure, urine, and filthy water, a fire-place and a pit at a distance of (at least) two cubits from the walls of other people (his neighbours).

755. That by which all men pass at all times without obstruction is called catuspatha (thoroughfare or road where four roads meet) and that is called rājamārga (king's way) by which all men can pass at certain times.

756. One should not plant anything on that (thoroughfare or rājamārga) nor should obstruct it by (placing on it) anything. A man who does not give precedence on the way to his guru, preceptor, the king and the like is liable to fine.

757. He who puts obstruction (by keeping carts &c.) thereon or makes pits or plants trees or wilfully voids excrement thereon (i. e. on the public thoroughfare) should be fined a māsa.

754. Aparārka reads 'cakram' for 'vapram' which is explained by V. R. as 'machine for pressing oil'. Compare Br. p. 354 v. 26.

755. Read 'aniruddhā' for 'aniruddho'. Compare Br. p. 354 v. 27 who calls catuspatha by the name 'samsaraṇa'.

756. Yāj. I. 34 defines guru as one who performs all the sah-skāras of a man and imparts the Veda to him, while an ācārya is one who performs only the thread ceremony and teaches the Veda. About precedence on the road elaborate rules were laid down from ancient times. Vide Āp. Dh. S. II. 5. 11. 5-9; Gautama VI. 21-22, Manu II. 138-139 (the precedence is to be given to one in a wheeled carriage, one very old, one diseased, one carrying a burden, woman, a snātaka, king, bridegroom); Baud. Dh. S. II. 3. 50, Vas. 13. 58-60 and Vanaparva 133. 1. Most of these emphasize that a snātaka or a learned brāhmaṇa was to be given precedence over even the king and Vas. 13. 60 says that all should give precedence to a bride who is being taken in a procession.

757. For 'māsa' vide verses 492-493; compare Manu IX. 282 who prescribes a heavier fine (of two kāṣāpanas) in the case of one who voids ordure on the rājamārga; but Manu IX. 283 makes an exception in the case of old men, diseased men, pregnant women and children; when they do the same, they are to be only reprov'd and not fined. This verse is the same as Br. p. 354 v. 28. Compare Kauṭ. p. 145 (text) for fines for throwing dust on the public road and for throwing ordure or urine on holy places, in water etc.

758-59. He who defiles a tank, a garden and holy waters (or ghats) with ordure, should be made to remove the filth and should be fined the first amercement. He who soils holy and purifying tīrthas (sacred waters or ghats) established (or constructed) by saintly persons should be fined the first amercement.

760-761. The fruits and flowers of those trees that grow on the boundary between two fields should be declared (by the king or judge) as joint between the owners of the two fields. But where the branches of trees growing in one man's field spread over another man's field, that man should be known as the owner (of the trees together with the branches) in whose field the trees grow (are born).

762-763. He who, without the permission of the owner, does repairs to a house, garden or tank, does not get (even) his expense (from the owner) when the owner comes (from abroad) if (he made the repairs) without informing the king; but if he informs (the king) and is directed by the king (to do the repairs) he recovers the expenses made thereon (from the owner).

759. This refers to washing soiled clothes in holy water etc.

760-761. If one owner alone takes all the fruits, he is liable to fine for taking half the fruits. Compare Nār. p. 157-158 vv. 13-14. It is possible to interpret 761 in another way. When the branches of trees growing in one man's field take root in the field of another (as in the case of banyan and similar trees), the branches that become fresh stocks belong to him in whose field the branches take root. But this construction is rather far-fetched and restricted to a few special trees only. Vide 44 Bom. 605 about the right to cut over-hanging trees and also 43 Bom. 164.

762-763. Compare Yāj. II. 157 which applies a similar rule to the construction of a dike or water-course in another's land. Nār. (p. 159 vv. 20-21) contains the same rule as Yāj. about a dike.

764. (If the owner of a field lying fallow) cannot return through inability (i. e. through want of means) the expenses incurred (by an husbandman) for (turning) fallow land (into arable land), the actual tiller (who makes the expenses) would get all the produce of the field minus an eighth part; for eight years the actual tiller (who spends money) will enjoy the produce (in this way); after that (period) he should hand over the field to the owner.

765-767. When the owner of a field is unable (to cultivate it) or is dead or is not heard of, if a stranger cultivates the field without being prevented by anybody, that man (the stranger) shall enjoy the produce of the field. If the owner returns while the field is being tilled (by a stranger), he can get his field back after returning (to the stranger) all the money spent on turning the waste land (into arable). Till seven years have passed away (the stranger should enjoy the produce) with a deduction of the eighth part. But when the eighth year is finished the owner would get back his field that has been enjoyed (for years by a stranger).

(Abuse and defamation)

768. That is said to be harshness of words (i. e. abuse) when one makes the sound " hum " (before another), coughs (before him) or imitates or utters (before another) whatever is censurable according to popular notions.

764. ' Minus an eighth part '—the eighth part goes to the owner as his due for his ownership.

765-767. The first two are the same as Nār. pp. 159-160 vv. 23-24. There would be conflict between 764 and 767 if ' samāpte ' is taken to mean ' is reached '. ' If the owner returns '— this includes ' the son of the owner ', where the owner is dead or unheard of. Nār. p. 160 v. 26 says that a field which has not been cultivated for one year becomes half-waste; that which is not cultivated for three years becomes waste and that which is not cultivated for five years is no better than a forest.

768. The sound ' hum ' is a sound of defiance,

769. That (abuse) is known to be threefold since it may be either nisthura, as'lila, or tivra. It is known to be nisthura when there is reproach (in the words used), as'lila is what is styled nyaṅga (indecent); the wise call that tivra wherein there are charges (of acts) that make a man liable to expulsion from caste.

770. Those are known as nisthura words when one reproaches another with the possession of constituents that are (generally) termed undesirable (or bad), whether they actually exist in him or not.

771. When a man through wrath reduces another to a humiliating position by words so far as his character, country family and the like are concerned, that is known to be as'lila speech.

769. 'Reproach'—one may reproach a man's country (e. g. saying to a Gauda that Gaudas are quarrelsome), caste (e. g. saying brāhmanas are very avaricious), family (e. g. members of the Viśvāmitra gotra are cruel), or one's profession or learning etc. 'Nyāṅga' means 'indecent'. Charging a man with drinking liquor or the like is tivra, as drinking was a mahāpātaka and would involve for a brāhmana expulsion from caste. This is the same as Nār. p. 207 v. 2. Vide Bṛ. p. 355. vv. 2-4 for the three kinds and for the statement that each of the three is in order worse than the preceding. The Tāndya Mahābrāhmaṇa (14. 6. 6.) contains an example of reproach (ākrośa as to caste) 'वत्सश्च मेधातिथिश्च काण्वावास्तां तं वत्सं मेधातिथिराक्रोशद्वाद्वाणोति शुद्रापुत्र इति'. Vide Pāṇini VI. 3. 21 and VIII. 4. 48 for आक्रोश.

770. Even when a man is cripple or blind to call him so to his face is abuse; if a man is not blind, to call him so is also abuse. Vide Kaṭ. p. 193 (text) and Manu. VIII. 274. Compare exception one to sec. 499 of the Indian Penal Code, where the mere truth of an imputation does not exonerate a man without more.

771. Aparārka and V. R. read 'nyāṅgāvagūraṇam' which means 'treating a man with utter contempt by pointing to one's lowest limbs (private parts etc.)'.

772. That speech is well known as tivrā, which connects a man with grave sins, which gives rise to friendship or hatred, or which charges a man (with acts that cause) loss of caste.

773. That man is known to be abusive in speech (guilty of abuse) who through wrath enumerates faults in a man (who possesses the opposite virtues) or who declares a man who has no (good) qualities to be one who appreciates good qualities or who asks one man by an epithet applicable to another.

774. That man is known to be guilty of abuse who recites for the sake of mere fault-finding faults in a man who (really) does not possess them or who points out the faults of one man while pretending to refer to another.

775. (The king or judge) should prescribe half the fine (for him) who says 'what I said (in abuse) was said through ignorance, carelessness, rivalry or familiarity; I shall not again say so'.

776-777. Where one man mentions another as putita (guilty of grave sin) in order that he may be avoided by others, there he would not be guilty because he says so, provided he establishes that sin (in the man whom he mentions as putita). Otherwise he would be as guilty (as the man whose faults he mentions) and if he falsely points out faults the fine (for him) is declared to be the highest.

772. The great sins were five according to Manu. XI. 54 and. Vas. I. 19-20 and Viṣṇu 35. Vide Āp. Dh. S. I. 7. 21. 7-11, Gautama XXI. 1-3, Baud. Dh. S. II. 1. 40-41 for 'patanīyāni'. Viṣṇu (chapter 38) deals with acts that cause loss of caste (जातिव्रज).

775. Compare Kauṭ. p. 193 'प्रमादमदमोहादिभिरर्थदण्डः'.

776-777. 'May be avoided' —to have intercourse with a sinful man led to being equally guilty; hence if one warned another about such a man there was no offence. Compare exceptions 9 and 10 to section 499 of the Indian Penal Code. 'Otherwise' i.e. if he mentions the sins of another not for the purpose of warning others against contact with him. Vide v. 770 above and Nār. p. 210 v. 21.

778. (The king) should with great concentration (application) establish the (guilt of the man) charged with abuse; the king should with great effort consider what he is informed of as false. Cutting of the tongue is (the proper) expiation (punishment) for those who are addicted to spreading false reports (about others).

(Assault and battery)

779. If (the king) is not able to find out the cause of assault by means of inference and the like, then he should employ witnesses or ordeals.

780. That man, who strikes another with a fierce weapon though he may himself have been harassed, is declared to be liable to be punished.

781. For cutting off the ear, the lip, the nose, the foot, the eye, the tongue, the penis, the hand, the punishment is the highest amercement and for causing injury (or wounding) to these, the middle amercement; this is the view of Bhṛgu.

778. The V. R. explains that the punishment of cutting the tongue is meant for offenders who are not brāhmaṇas and it quotes a sūtra of Hārīta about cutting of tongue. Compare आप. व. सू. II. 10. 27 14 जिह्वाच्छेदनं शूद्रस्यार्थं धर्मिकमाक्राशतः. Vide notes above on vv. 479-480.

779. Aparārka explains 'employ ordeals which then stand in place of witnesses.' But this seems farfetched. Vide Yāj. II. 212 and Mit. thereon. The oldest reference in Sanskrit literature to fines for assault is contained in the Taittirīya Saṃhitā II. 6. 10. 2 'Him who strikes a brāhmaṇa, he shall fine a thousand; he who draws blood from a brāhmaṇa shall not see the world of pitaṃ etc.'

780. 'Fierce weapon'-like a sword etc. One who is assaulted may exercise the right of private defence of body by striking in return, but he must not exceed it. If slapped with the hand, he cannot use a sword and cut off the man. Compare sections 100 and 101 of the Indian Penal Code. Vide Nār. p. 208 v. 9 and Br. p. 357 v. 4.

782. When man and beasts are struck with a view to cause them great pain, the king should inflict fine in proportion to the pain caused.

783. The punishment for untouchables, gamblers, slaves, for mlecchas, for persistent sinners and for those who are born of unions in the reverse order of castes is beating (whipping) and not in money.

784. The fine should be raised to fourfold when a person's body is brought in contact with vomitted matter, urine or ordure; but (if thrown) on the middle of the body the fine would be sixfold and if on the head, it is eightfold.

785. When the hand is raised (to strike a man of the same caste) the fine is twelve panas; the fine is declared to be double of that when the hand strikes persons of one's own caste.

786. Just as in abuse punishments have been declared in accordance with the direct or inverse order of castes (of the guilty person) so also in assaults punishments should be awarded in the same manner.

787. For injury to the organs of the body just as a fine should be prescribed by the king, so also something must be given (by the offender) for appeasing (the person injured) and also for setting up (for curing him) as may be fixed by experts. He (the offender) should pay (all) the expenses for setting the man up including the healing of the wound.

782. This is Manu. VIII. 286.

783. 'Unions etc.'—vide Manu X. 11 - 13 for offspring of unions in the reverse order. Compare Nār. p. 209 vv. 11-12 and Br. p. 359 v. 15.

784. 'Fourfold'—fourfold of ten panas. Yaj. II. 213 prescribes a fine of ten panas when ashes or mud is thrown at another. This fine applies when those things are thrown at any part of the body except the head and the trunk

785. Compare Yaj. II 216.

786. Compare Gautama XII. 1.

787. Compare Man III. 287, Yaj. II. 222 and Br.
358 v. 1

788. As regards those offenders for whom reproof by words and beating (whipping) were declared (to be the punishment), they should be made to pay (the price of) what was carried away or injured by them; and those who are indigent should make up (the loss) by doing work (for the man who is to be recompensed.)

789. That man, who makes asses, bullocks, buffaloes, camels and the like carry burdens at an improper time or when they are tired, or oppressed with thirst or hunger, should be punished with the first amercement.

790. For killing deer and birds (belonging to a person) and for killing snakes, cats, mongoose, dog, pigs (kept by men) the fine is two paṇas and twelve paṇas respectively.

791. He who makes a young cow, animals dedicated to Gods and a sacred bull carry burdens (or carts) should be fined the first amercement and the highest amercement if he kills them.

792. On killing animals, the (offender) should give (to the owner) another animal (of the same type) or its proper price; this is what Manu said.

793. In the case of the destruction of all trees, the settled rule is that the fine must be in proportion to the usefulness of the (several kinds of) trees.

789. Compare Br p. 359 v. 16.

792. Manu (VIII. 296-298) lays down various fines for killing valuable animals like elephants, horses and cows and less valuable animals like asses and goats &c. and VIII. 288 lays down that he who causes mischief to the belongings of a man should satisfy that man and pay a fine to the king.

793. This is Manu VIII. 285. Compare Viṣṇu V. 55-59 who prescribes the highest amercement for cutting trees the fruits of which are useful, the middle one for cutting off trees the flowers alone of which are useful, 100 kārṣāpaṇas for cutting creepers and bushes and one kārṣāpaṇa for cutting grass and the offender had to pay compensation for the loss of the trees. Yāj. II. 228 prescribes double the ordinary fine for cutting trees near temples, cemeteries, boundaries.

794. If the preceptor were to strike through anger a pupil (with something) other than a creeper, whereby great pain is caused (to the pupil), the father (may in such a case) make a complaint (against the teacher) for the pupil (his son).

795. That is declared to be sāhasa which is an act done with force.

796. Robbing in the presence of guards, carrying away a thing by force—sāhasa is of this kind, while (mere) theft is said to be concealing (i. e. depriving a man stealthily).

797. Where an offence coming under the name ' sāhasa ' has taken place without (leaving) indicatory signs (for fastening the guilt), the person (charged with sāhasa) must establish his innocence by oaths (and ordeals). This is the rule in all disputes.

794. Gautama (II. 48-50) lays down that the teacher was to regulate the pupil without beating him but if unable to do so, he might use a thin rope or piece of bamboo and that if he beat the pupil he was to be punished by the king. Compare Āp. Dh. S. I. 2. 8. 29-30 (who does not at all allow beating, but only reproof, not giving food for some time &c.).

795. Compare Nār. p. 202 v. 1. Sāhasa is derived by Nārada from ' sahas ' meaning ' force '. The term sāhasa is used to denote violent deeds or heinous offences of every sort. Br. p. 359 v. 1 divides it into four kinds viz. homicide, theft, assault on another's wife and pāruṣya (of two kinds).

796. Compare Manu VIII. 332 (where the word anvaya occurs); Yāj. II. 230 and Kaut. p. 191 (text, where also ' anvaya ' occurs); ' anvaya ' has been explained by the Mit. as ' persons guarding the wealth, royal officials &c '.

797. Yāj. (II. 280-281) lays down various circumstances and modes of ascertaining the offender in case of homicide ; vide Br. p. 364 vv. 34-36 for the same. Compare with this verse Br. p. 364 vv. 37-38.

798. If several men violently beat one man to death he out of them who gives the fatal blow is declared to be the murderer.

799. One who is the author of the murder by (actually) killing (the deceased) would be liable to be killed in various ways. One should certainly kill without waiting for consideration a man coming with the intention of destroying (a life or a dam).

800. No blame attaches to him who kills wicked men that are ready (to kill another), but when they have desisted from their attempt (to kill), they should be captured and not killed.

801. If a man superior in austerities, Vedic study and birth becomes an ātatāyin (a desperate felon), killing him is not proper; killing is prescribed for a sinner of a lower class. This is the view of Bhṛgu.

798. This means that he is to suffer the full punishment for murder and the rest are to be awarded lesser punishments. Compare Br. p. 363 v. 31 for the same idea.

799. Vide Yāj. II. 278, 282 (for various ways of carrying out the sentence of death), Br. p. 363 vv. 29, 30, 17, 18.

800. Compare sections 100 and 102 of the Indian Penal Code as to the right of private defence.

801. All are agreed that an ātatāyin who is not a brāhmaṇa may be killed outright without incurring any blame. But the minds of all writers of digests were exercised over the question whether a brāhmaṇa ātatāyin could be killed without incurring sin, since there are conflicting texts on the point. In this verse the reference in the first half is to a brāhmaṇa who becomes an ātatāyin. Manu IV. 162 forbids the killing of one's teacher, parents, brāhmaṇas cows &c. Kāt. probably refers to this verse of Manu when he speaks of Bhṛgu's view. But there is another verse of Manu (VIII. 350, which permits the killing of even a guru or a brāhmaṇa when he comes as an ātatāyin. So there is a conflict between two verses) of Manu. Vide Mit. on Yāj. II. 21 and my notes on V. M. pp. 415-422 for an elaborate discussion of this topic.

802-803. He who is about to use his sword, poison or fire, he whose hand wields a drawn bow, who kills by the incantations contained in the Atharvaveda, who is a backbiter conveying to the king (information that would lead the king to harm a man), who assaults another's wife, who is bent upon finding out weak points in another (and striking him there)—all these and the like should be known as ātatāyin.

804. These wicked men who rob a man of his fame and his character; who deprive (one) of dharmā and artha (are said to be ātatāyins); he who not being charged (or accused) before proceeds to take life or rob (a man) of his all or to commit similar offences is to be known as ātatāyin.

805. One who kills animals having (sharp) claws, horned animals, animals with fangs or tusks, and elephants and horses and other animals when all these are ātatāyin, does not incur any blame.

802-803. 'Incantations &c.'—There are numerous hymns in the Atharvaveda which were employed against one's enemies e. g; I, 19, II, 19, III, 1 and 2 (which hymns are styled 'mohanāni' in the Kausika sūtra), VII, 108 &c. 'All these and the like'—this shows that the enumeration of ātatāyins here and in other texts is not exhaustive. Vas. III, 16 mentions six kinds of ātatāyins (incendiary, poisoner, one with a raised weapon, one who deprives of all property, one who abducts another's wife or robs him of his field). The word 'ātatāyin' is applied to Rudra in the Vājasaneyya saṃhitā 16. 18 and in the Kāthaka saṃhitā 17. 12 and probably means there 'one who always goes about with his bow stretched'. Vide Vas. III, 17, 18 which declare that there is no blame in killing even a learned brāhmaṇa when he is an ātatāyin; also Baud. Dh. S. I, 10. 12; Viṣṇu, V, 190-192; Manu, VIII, 350-51.

804. 'Ākṣarita' means 'accused or charged'. Vide Mann VIII, 354-355 for use of that word.

805. 'Other animals' i. e. birds that strike with their beaks. Wherever it is said that in killing an ātatāyin man or animal one incurs no blame, the meaning is that he is not liable to the punishment usually laid down for killing a man or animal.

806. Even a brāhmaṇa deserves to be killed if he be guilty of causing abortion, if he be a thief (of gold), or if he strikes a brāhmaṇa woman with a sharp weapon, or if he kills an innocent woman.

807. That man who causes (slight) injury, breakage or total destruction of (valuable) articles would be liable to the first amercement and the owner of the article is entitled to get (another similar) article (or its price).

808. He who steals, breaks or burns the idols of Gods or who causes damage to temples should be punished with the first amercement.

809. He who causes a breach in a rampart wall or pulls it down or shatters it, or obstructs the flow of water (running in a water channel) should be awarded the first amercement.

806. There is a similar verse of Yāj. (II. 277 the Mitākṣarā interpretation of which differs from Viśvarūpa's, who counts it as II. 281).

807. This verse applies to mischief to valuable articles like crystal. Compare Manu IX. 286. Vide Yāj. II. 223 for fines for mischief to articles of small value.

808. Manu IX. 285 prescribes a fine of 500 for breaking pratimās (which, Kullūka explains, were made of clay &c. and so were of an inferior kind), while Viṣṇu V. 174 prescribes the highest amercement for a breaker of images and Śāṅkha-Likhita prescribe a fine of eight hundred for the same offence ' प्रतिमारात्मकप-संक्रमध्वजसेतुनिधानभङ्गेषु तत्समुत्थापनं प्रतिसंस्कारोद्वहते च ' (quoted in V. R. p. 364). These various fines were due to the superiority and value or inferiority of the images.

809. Vide Manu. IX. 289 who prescribes the punishment of banishment for one who causes a breach in the city wall.

(Theft)

810. Depriving a man of his wealth, either clandestinely or openly and either by night or by day is known to be theft.

811. (The king) should carefully examine property (alleged to be) stolen (to see) whether the article passed to the hands (of the alleged thief) from another's hand, or whether he took it up without any intention (of stealing) when it lay on the ground (unclaimed) or whether he actually lifted it away as a thief.

812. (Where a trader) deals (with his customers) by means of balances, measures (of corn) and measures of capacity that are imitations or substitutes for true ones or not so should be fined the first amercement.

810. Compare Nār. p. 204 v. 12. Āp. Dh. S. I. 9. 25. 11 quotes a verse which mentions theft, drinking, incest and killing of a brāhmaṇa as very heavy sins and Āp. Dh. S. I. 9. 25. 4-11 prescribe various prāyaścittas (penances) for theft. The Tai. Sam. IV. 1. 10. 2 speaks of thieves (stealing secretly), taskaras (stealing openly) and malimlus (robbers and dacoits). Vide. Vāj. Sam. XI. 77-79 for the same. Even in the Rgveda taskaras figure very often (vide I. 191. 5; X. 4. 6).

811 Compare Nār. p. 23 v. 71 where he says that liars may have the appearance of honest men and vice versa.

812. Compare Yāj. II. 244. ' Or not so ' - i. e. that are not false imitations of true weights. Manu (VIII. 256) divides thieves (taskaras) into open (prakāśa) and clandestine (aprakāśa) and instances traders dealing in merchandise as open thieves and those who hide themselves in forests as clandestine ones. Vide Manu VIII. 258-260, Nār. p. 223 vv. 1-5 for other examples of the two kinds. This verse deals with traders who use false balances or measures or who use clods of earth as weights and deceive people or those who without using false or wrong weights &c. deceive people. Viṣṇu V. 122 prescribes highest amercement for forging balance or measure. Compare Nār. p. 223 v. 2 and Yāj. II. 244. Kaut. p. 103 (II. 19) has a chapter on the superintendent of weights and measures. Śankha-Likhita as quoted in V. R. p. 298 say ' कृतबुद्धमान-प्रतिमानव्यवहारे शरीराङ्गच्छदा वा '.

813-814. What is stolen from the houses in a village, (the king) should make the thief-catchers pay it (to the owners). He should make the guarding officers and wardens of the country (pay the price of stolen articles) if the thief be not found. The property stolen in the village should be restored (or its value be paid) by the headman of the village; in case (the theft took place) in a forest the king must restore (stolen property or its price), but if it took place in a place other than a forest, then it must be restored by the officer appointed to catch thieves.

815-817. Whatever is stolen from any person in one's kingdom must be restored by the king; the king should search for the thing lost and if found (after he pays the price to the owner) he should retain (the article) himself. (The king) should restore with efforts the thing itself that is stolen by thieves; in the absence of the thing the price (thereof should be paid by the king); otherwise the king incurs sin. Even when the thief be caught, if the article stolen be not recovered from him, (the king) should restore the thing (himself) or he should make the thief pay according to his (the king's) pleasure.

813-814. 'Thief-catchers' - officers appointed to trace and catch thieves. 'Ārakṣaka' is explained by V. R. as 'one appointed to guard a village' and the V. C. paraphrases it by a vernacular word 'kotāla' (which seems to be the same as the modern Kotwal). 'Dikpāla' is paraphrased as 'deśapati'. In the inscription of Dhara-sena II of 'Valabhi' (Ind. Ant. vol 15 p. 187) among several officers we have a 'cauroddharanika'; in the inscription of Nārāyanpāla (Ind. Ant. vol. 15 p. 304) we have in a long list 'cauroddharanika' 'kottapāla' (who is the same as modern 'kotwal') and 'viṣayapati'; in Karhad plate of Kṛṣṇa III dated ſake 880 (958 A. D.) we have 'rāṣṭrapati', 'viṣayapati', 'grāmakūta' etc. (Epi. Ind. vol. IV p. 278, 285). 'Vivīta' means 'land reserved for grass, forest'. Compare Āp. Dh. S. II 10, 26, 4-8; Gautama X. 46-47 (for the king's liability to restore); Yāj. II. 271, Nār. p. 225 v. 17

815-817. Compare Viṣṇu. III, 65-66 with 816. The V. R. seems to explain the last half of 817 as 'the king should hand over the thief to the owner or should himself pay for the price of the thing stolen'.

818-819. When thieves are being made to restore (articles alleged to be stolen) if there be a doubt as to the offence, the person who was robbed should be made to take oaths or he should establish (his allegation of stolen articles) by (the evidence of) his relatives. Where the owner recovers a portion of his stolen property from a certain person, he (the owner) should recover the rest from the same man, if he (the owner) establishes (the loss of all the articles alleged).

820. Those who are traitors (or cause destruction of) to their country and those who are highway robbers should be deprived (by the king) of their all and should be ordered to be impaled on a stake.

821. If those who are intent on (i. e. whose duty it is to) tracing thieves were to make one who is not the real thief to restore (or pay the price of) the thing stolen, the persons so compelled would get back what they had to pay when (the real thief) was found and (the king) should make (the officers guilty of harassing the innocent man) pay (to the latter) double (of the price).

818-819. It is better to read 'moṣe' for 'doṣe' with V. R. and then the meaning will be 'if there be a doubt about what things were actually stolen;' 'relatives'—this is only illustrative; it means that he should prove the articles stolen on the testimony of reliable witnesses; 'pratyaye; kṛte' may also mean 'if the owner undergoes an ordeal or takes oath as to the articles stolen'. With 819 compare 219 above and Yāj. II. 20 and Viṣṇu. VI. 22.

820. Compare Br. p. 361 v, 17. If thieves residing in one country cause loss in another country, the king was not to visit them with this punishment. Vide 633 above.

821. Compare Nār. p. 226 v, 20.

822. The king should cut off that limb of a robber with which he causes loss to another, so that he will not do so again.

822 A. If a person takes two cucumbers, or two melons, five mangoes or five pomegranate fruits and a handful of oats or jujubes (from another's land or trees) he does not incur blame.

823. The Mānavas (school of Manu) declare that those (thieves) who are caught (red-handed) with booty should be at once banished (from the kingdom); but this (punishment) is not approved of by Gautamas (the school of Gautama) since it is censured owing to the destruction (or reduction) of people (in the country).

822. It is possible to understand this verse to mean 'cut off that limb of a robber who causes injury to a similiar limb of another' (in committing a robbery). Compare Manu. IX. 276-277 and VIII. 334, Yāj. II. 274, Nār. p. 228 v. 34.

822 A. Compare Manu. VIII. 339 (taking grass for one's cows, roots and flowers of forest plants, or wood for sacrificial fire from another's land was no theft) and 341 (a traveller of the three higher castes short of food was allowed to take two sugarcanes and two roots from another's field). Vide Gautama XII. 25, Āp. I. 10. 28. 3. Yāj. II. 166 and Nār. p. 219 v. 37. Compare the maxim. 'de minimis non curat lex' and sec. 95 of the Indian Penal Code.

823. Compare Manu. IX. 270, The V. R. and V. C explain that these verses (823-825) apply to brāhmaṇa offenders. Manu VIII. 380 prescribes banishment for a brāhmaṇa offender, whatever his crime may be and forbids the sentence of death Verse 823 prescribes banishment for a brāhmaṇa who is learned.

824-825. The king, after catching (a brāhmaṇa) thief and proclaiming (publicly) the signs of his guilt, whether he be caught with booty or not, provided his heinous crime is established as a fact, should deprive him of all his wealth. (The brāhmaṇa thieves), who are very strong, being guarded with iron fetters, fed on meagre food, should do (hard) labour for the king till their death: this is the view of Kauṣika.

826. When a foreigner steals property from another country (and brings it into a country where he is sojourning), the king (of the latter country) should deprive him of that property and should let him off without punishment.

827. Those who supply food to thieves, those who give them fire and water, those who purchase (stolen) goods from them and receive (stolen) property from them and those who hide them - these are all declared to be liable to the same punishment (as the thieves themselves).

824. Read 'pragrhya cinham etc'. 824 applies to brāhmaṇa possessed of wealth, but not learned; 825 applies to a brāhmaṇa offender who is neither learned nor rich. In the case of theft Gautama. (XII. 12-13) prescribed for the śūdra offender a fine eight times as much as the price of the article stolen, while a vaiśya, kṣatriya and brāhmaṇa were respectively liable to pay 16, 32, 64 times as much as the price. Vide Manu. VIII. 337-338 for the same rule.

827. Abettors of thieves and receivers of stolen property were dealt with like thieves from ancient times. Compare Gautama XII. 46-47, Āp. Dh. S. I. 9. 25. 5 and II. 11. 29. 1, Manu. IX. 271 and 278 (who employs the word 'bhaktadāyaka'), Yāj. II. 276 (who uses the words 'bhakta', 'agni', and 'udaka'), Nār. p. 225 vv. 14-15. Compare sec. 212 (harbouring an offender) and 411 (receiving stolen property) of the Indian Penal Code.

828. Where one who is not learned officiates as a priest at a sacrifice and where one who is not himself firmly grounded (in any sāstra) sets up as a propounder of it, the king should punish both with the punishment for a thief and should make them abide by the (proper) path.

(Adultery)

829. Adultery is said to be ninefold, viz. when it is accompanied by the employment of a go-between; being together at an improper time and place; falling on a woman's neck or seizing her hair or the border of her sāri (or gown), seizing a woman by the ear, nose or hand; sitting or taking food with her on the same seat.

830. When a man has forcibly had sexual intercourse with a woman, capital punishment is to be inflicted in that case (by the king) since it is a violation of (good) conduct.

828. Yaj. II. 202 says that a brāhmaṇa who is devoid of learning and austerities should not accept a gift. Vide also Manu III. 168.

829. Compare Manu VIII. 357, Yaj. II. 283-284, Nār. p. 178 vv. 65-67 and Br. pp. 365-366 vv. 6-8. These nine (and others also) are the indications by which adultery is to be inferred.

830. There is great difference of opinion as to the circumstances in which this verse applies. The V. M. says it applies to the rape of a woman of the same caste by a kṣatriya or a person of an anuloma or pratiloma union. The Vir. p. 504 says it applies to an offender who is possessed of no merit; while the Sm. C. says it applies to rape of a woman who is the wife of a man of no merit. The punishment for adultery and rape varied according to the caste of the male and the woman, was also different for men and women and also varied according as the woman was a maiden or was married.

831. An unchaste woman who, being under the influence of lust, herself amorously approaches a man should be released by the king's order after being proclaimed (as unchaste) in the presence of people.

832-834. He who commences (a sāhasa), who is a friend (or helper), who gives advice as to the method (in which a sāhasa is to be carried out), who gives refuge or asylum (to the offender), or supplies weapons, who gives food to wrongdoers, who incites (the offender) to fight

831. If a woman was guilty of adultery with a person of a lower caste, she was to be devoured by dogs and the paramour was to be killed. Vide Gautama 23. 14-16 (this was the punishment in case no prāyaścitta was performed) and Manu VIII. 371-372, Vasiṣṭha (XXI. 1-5) prescribes that if a śūdra commits adultery with a brāhmaṇa woman, he was to be thrown into fire, the woman was to be shaved, made to sit naked on a dark donkey and sent to perish in the mountains; and that any male of a lower caste guilty of adultery with a woman of higher caste was to be dealt with similarly; vide also Manu, VIII. 359, Āp. Dh. S. II. 10. 26. 20-21 prescribed the penalty of cutting of the testicles and the penis for the male in adultery with a married woman, but when the woman was a maiden the paramour was to be deprived of all his wealth. A man of a higher caste guilty of adultery with a śūdra married woman was to be banished, while a śūdra male guilty of adultery with a married woman of a higher caste was to be killed, when he was appointed to guard her. Vide. Āp. Dh. S. II. 20. 27. 8-9 and Gautama XII. 2-3. Some writers somewhat softened these severe sentences. Yāj. II. 286 prescribed for a male for adultery with a woman of the same caste highest amercement, with woman of a lower caste the middle one, with a woman of a higher caste death and cutting of the ear for the woman. Compare Manu VIII. 378. Vide v. 487 above for lesser fine for women.

832-834. It is better to read 'yadvopadeśakah' with the Saras. read— 'vaktānu—'; 'destruction &c.'—by poison &c.; 'who connives'—this applies to a man who though not able himself to or who urges (the offender) for the destruction of the person (killed &c.), who connives at (the commission of an offence) though not related (to the offender), who exposes the faults (of the person killed or harassed), who approves (of the offence), who, though able, does not forbid (or prevent) the commission of it —all these are (as good as) perpetrators of the deed (the offence). (The king) should prescribe punishment for these according to their ability and according to their offence.

(The duties of husband and wife)

835. (A wife) never remaining apart from her husband, being disciplined (or well conducted) and devoted to her husband, should serve (sacrificial) fire with the desire of securing freedom from widowhood and possession of happiness and love.

836. A wife obtains all desired objects only by ministering to her husband. When she comes back on this earth from heaven, she becomes the receptacle of all happiness.

prevent the offence does not inform others of it so that they may help in preventing it. If we take 'ayukta' to mean 'not appointed by the king' as V. R. does, then it would have to be connected with 'doṣavaktā'. Vide verse-827 above and compare Yāj. II. 231, Br. p. 364 v. 32, and Āp. Dh. S. II. 11. 29. I.

835. 'Fire'—there were three fires (gārhapatya, āvahanīya, and dakṣiṇāgni) required in Vedic sacrifices and the gṛhya rites were performed in domestic fire. 'Saubhāgya' means 'the husband's affection and happiness'. Manu (IX. 1-102) dilates upon this topic.

836. Compare Manu V. 155, 165-166, Yāj. I. 87. The idea is that by devotion to her husband, she accumulates merit and goes to heaven and that when that merit is exhausted she returns to the earth, but is endowed with all happiness. This is the doctrine of the Upaniṣads (vide Chāndogya Up. V. 10. 1-7 and Vedāntasūtra III. 1. 13).

- 837. That chaste woman, who after her husband's death abides by the vow of celibacy, being in her conduct like Arundhati, is honoured in the world of Brahmā.

838. That is declared to be a just (or lawful) division where the fathers and brothers divide the whole (common) property (whatever) in equal shares.

839. Property of the grandfather is of equal ownership between both the father and his sons; but the son is not entitled to ownership over what is acquired by the father himself.

837. Arundhati, the wife of Vasiṣṭha, is the highest type of conjugal fidelity and the star of Arundhati in the Great Bear is shown to the newly married bride. Vide Āśvalāyana gṛhya I. 7. 22. Compare Viṣṇu. 25. 14 who prescribes brahmacharya or anyārohana (being a sati) and also 25. 17; Br. p. 369 v. 10, Manu V. 159-160. The Sm. C. III. p. 597 quotes a verse of Āngiras 'मृते मर्तरि वा नारी समारोहेदुताशनम् । तारुन्धतीसमाचारा स्वर्गलोके महीयते ॥'.

838. It is better to read 'pitarau' for 'pitarah' with the Vir. The parents and their sons when coming to a partition of joint family property take each the same share. 'Brothers' -- means sons of the father with whom a partition is made. Compare Br. p. 370 v. 2. When the sons came to a partition during the father's life-time or after his death, the mother was entitled to a share equal to that of a son. Vide Yāj. II. 115, Nār. p. 192 v. 12.

839. This verse embodies the central conception of the Mitākṣarā school as to the equal ownership of father and sons in ancestral property. Compare Yāj. II. 121, Viṣṇu. 17. 2, Br. p. 370 v. 3. The Mit. on Yāj. II. 121 explains that verses like Yāj. II. 114, Nār. p. 191 v. 12, Br. p. 370 v. 4 (which allow the father to make an unequal distribution among his sons) refer to the father's self-acquired property. Viṣṇu. 17. 1. explicitly states this. The text of Br. p. 189 v. 4 is quoted in I. L. R. 10 Bom. 528 at p. 547 and Yāj. II. 114 is quoted by Telang J. in I. L. R. 16 Bom. at p. 48 and spoken of as a general and notorious principle.

840. The grandfather's property, the father's property and whatever else is acquired by themselves (with joint efforts)—all these are divided when there is a partition between coheirs (or coparceners).

841. A house, fields, cattle and similar visible (effects or estate) should be divided; if there is a suspicion that (certain joint property) is concealed, an ordeal is prescribed (in that case).

842. Household utensils, beasts of burden, milch cattle, ornaments and slaves—these visible effects are divided. Bhṛgu declared the kośa (ordeal) when (there was a doubt whether certain joint property) was concealed.

843. In a partition while the father is living, the father should not make a distinction between one son (and other

840. 'Whatever else is acquired'—this refers to property acquired with the help of ancestral or joint property, since what is acquired by a coheir without using joint funds would be his self-acquisition. This verse is quoted in Ponappa Pillai v Pappurayyengar 4 Mad. 1. at p. 49.

841. Vide verse 415 above which prescribes the kośa ordeal in disputes about partition.

842. Aparārka says that the kośa ordeal is only illustrative, but the words of Kāt. in 415 appear to forbid other ordeals. Compare Br. 'गृहोपस्करवाद्यादिदोषाभरणकर्मिणः । वृक्ष्यमाना विभज्यन्ते गृहे कोशे विधीयते ॥' (quoted in Sm. C. III, p. 636).

843. 'Should not make a distinction'—by giving a larger share to one son as compared to the shares given to other sons; 'suddenly'—through wrath against other sons or extreme affection for one son; 'without cause'—if there be no causes for disinheriting him such as 'pātitya' &c. Kaut. (p. 161 text) has these very words 'जीवद्विभागे पिता नैकं विशेषयेत् । न त्रैकमकारणान्निभजेत् ।' Even the R̥gveda sons) nor should he suddenly deprive a son of his share without any cause.

844. Partition is ordained among (coparceners) who have attained (years of) understanding of worldly affairs; and in the case of men they attain understanding of affairs at the sixteenth year.

845. The property (share in the joint estate) of those who have not attained years of discretion, being made free from expenses, should be kept (by the other coheirs) with their (the minors') relatives and friends; the same should be done (to the shares) of those who have gone abroad.

845 A. All (coheirs) should protect the share of the (coheir) who has gone abroad; and his share of the ancestral

(I. 70. 10.) appears to refer to the practice of the division of property during the lifetime of the father (when old). Vide Baud. Dh. S. II. 2. 8. and Yāj. II. 114, Śāṅkha-Likhita ('जीवति वा पितरि रिक्थभागोनुमतः प्रकाशं वा मिथो वा धर्मतः' quoted in V. R. p. 463), Nār. p. 191, v. 4 for distribution during father's lifetime.

844. Compare Kauṭ. p. 161 (text. 'प्राप्तव्यवहाराणां विभागः' and p. 154 'द्वादशवर्षं ली प्राप्तव्यवहारा अवति षोडशवर्षः पुमान्'). Nār. p. 51 v. 35 says that a man is a minor till he attains the 16th year. There is a controversy among commentators whether minority ended at the beginning of the 16th year or at the end. Many hold the former view, but the V. R. (p. 599) holds that minority ends with the end of the 16th year.

845. Compare Kauṭ. p. 161 (अप्राप्तव्यवहाराणां देयविशुद्धं मानवन्धुषु ग्रामवृद्धेषु वा स्थापयेयुर्व्यवहारप्रापणात् प्रोषितस्य वा), Gautama X. 48, Baud. Dh. S. II. 2. 37 (तेषामप्राप्तव्यवहाराणामंशान् सोपचयान्सुगुप्तान्निदध्युराव्यवहारप्रापणात्) Manu, VIII. 27, Viṣṇu, III. 65, and Vas. 16. 7-8 cast upon the king the duty of protecting minor's estate; 'free from expenses' i. e. after deducting all the debts and charges due from the family for which the minor member's share would be liable.

845 A. According to Nārada (p. 51. v. 35) 'poganda' means a minor who has not attained the 16th year. Manu VIII. 148 appears to use it in the same sense. But Amarasiṃha explains it as estate should be guarded by the relatives, if his sons are minor or if he be dead. After him his minor (sons) should partition the wealth according to their shares.

846. All persons entitled to the ancestral wealth must pay at the time of partition all the debts incurred by the brother, paternal uncle or mother for the purpose of the family.

847. Those debts should be paid to the creditor which are established by proof (by the creditor) after a dispute is raised about them; and (the king or judge) should not cause debts (contracted by one) to be paid (by the other members) otherwise.

848. What is (promised by the father) for a religious and chritable purpose, what is promised (by the father) out of affection and that debt (of the father) which the father has specially enjoined (upon sons to pay) – these debts when found should be divided by the sons; there can be no payment out of the paternal wealth (of any other debt).

‘one who has a crippled limb or one who is devoid of a limb,’ Kāt. follows Nārada and Manu, ‘His minor sons’—we have to understand that they should do so after attaining majority.

846. Compare Yāj. II. 117, Nār. p. 197. v. 32.

847. ‘Those debts’ —i. e. those contracted by the brother, paternal uncle &c.

848. This verse is variously explained. Most writers connect ‘when found’ with debt; but the V. M. takes it separately meaning ‘visible wealth and debts should be divided.’ ‘Svaniyojitam’ is explained by V. M. as ‘what is incurred by the father himself’. Vide verse 566 above. As to gift through affection, vide Yāj. II. 123 (first half).

849-50. In a partition with coparceners one should discharge a debt that was incurred by the father, a debt that was incurred for paying off the father's debt, one's own debt incurred by another (for one's family) and a debt incurred by one's self. After paying off (the father's) debt and (his) gifts through affection the rest (of the property) should be divided.

851. The father gets two shares or half from the wealth acquired by the son; when the father is dead the mother also gets a share equal to that of a son.

852. The wise should so arrange the extent of shares (among dividing heirs) that the wealth obtained by partition may more and more be employed for purposes of sacrifice.

849-50. It is better to read 'sambaddham' for 'saṃsuddham.' Compare Nār. p. 197 v. 32, Manu VIII. 166. These two verses are quoted in Ponappa Pillai v Pappuwayyanganar 4 Mad. 1 at p. 49.

851. The first half is interpreted according to the Dāyabhāga, which gives two interpretations. If the son acquires wealth with the help of ancestral funds, then the father gets half of it, the son who earned it gets two shares and the other sons one share each; if the son acquired wealth without the help of ancestral funds, then the father and the son who acquires each get two shares and the other sons get no share. The other interpretation is that in wealth acquired by the son the father gets half if the father is possessed of learning &c. and if he is not so he gets two shares. The Vir. pp. 566, 567 severely criticizes the Dāyabhāga and interprets it to mean 'the father because he acquires the wealth and begets the son should take two shares (in property acquired by himself) or half of it.' Compare Nār. p. 191 v. 12 with this verse. Vide Br. p. 370 v. 5 for two shares for the father. Compare Yāj. II. 123 (latter half) and Viṣṇu. 18. 34 with the latter half.

853. A single (coparcener) has not in every day life the absolute power to make even a partition of ancestral estate. One can only enjoy (the ancestral estate), but one cannot (by himself) make a gift or sale of it.

854. Coheirs, whether they be separated or unseparated, are equal as to immoveable property; for a single one (out of them) has no power to make a gift, mortgage or sale.

852-853. In I. L. R. 33 All 118 at p. 121 it was said that the text of Yāj. giving a share to the mother implies an actual division of the family property and that a mere severance of interests did not confer on the mother a right to a share equal to that of a son. Vide. I. L. R. 50, All 532 at p. 534. The primary idea is that wealth is intended for performing sacrifices. Therefore a larger share should be given to that one among brothers who by his learning and conduct is expected to spend much of his share on sacrifices. Vide the verse 'यज्ञार्थं विहितं वित्तं तस्मात्तद्विनियोजयेत् ॥ स्थानेषु धर्मजुष्टेषु न स्त्रीसूखविधिमेषु॥' The Mit. (on Yāj. II. 135) however does not accept that this verse represents the correct position. Kāt. seems to favour the views contained in that verse. Vide Br. p. 371 v. 10 for a similar proposition. 'The absolute power.....estate'—this means that a single coparcener cannot without the consent of the others make a division by metes and bounds of ancestral estate.

854. This verse is variously explained. The Mit. (on Yāj. II. 114) says that in a state of union a single member cannot enter into a transaction of sale &c. without the consent of the others, but that after partition, the member can sell the property that has fallen to his share, but the consent of the other coheirs should be taken for dispelling all doubts about their having been separated and for effecting transactions with ease. The Sm. C. and Madanaratna say that where immoveable property has not been divided, but only movables were divided and it was agreed that only the produce of the immovable property was to be divided, the immovable property cannot be sold without the consent of the others. The Dāyabhāga explains that this verse prohibiting alienation even after partition simply indicates that if a vicious man sells his property so as to ruin his family he incurs sin, but that this verse does not mean that the sale (of the property fallen to his share) is invalid. Vide Br. p. 384 v. 93 for practically the same verse.

855-856. If an undivided younger brother dies (the other brothers) should make his son take a share of the inheritance if he has not obtained from his grandfather a livelihood (i. e. a share); he should obtain from his uncle or his uncle's son the share which his father would have got. That very share would be the legal share of all the brothers (who are sons of the man dying). Or even a son (of that son of the brother dying) would obtain (that share); beyond (this last) there is a cessation (of succession to that share).

857. When a son of the body is born, (other kinds of) sons take only a fourth share if of the same caste (as 855-856. 'Younger brother'—this is only illustrative and applies to even an elder brother; 'the share which his father &c.'—that is, the division is to be through the father, as laid down by Yaj II, 120 (latter half); 'beyond this last there is cessation' i. e. the 4th in descent from the propositus would not get a share, if there are sons, grand-sons or great-grandsons of the propositus alive. Vide for full explanation my notes to V. M. pp. 147 - 149. Suppose A has two undivided sons B and C. B dies undivided leaving a son D and then A dies. This verse declares that D though alone will get on a partition his father's half share from C or C's sons even if they are many. If D dies without claiming a partition and leaves a son E, the latter will get onehalf of the property of A. If B, D, E all die in the life-time of A without claiming partition and E leaves a son F and C or his sons or grandsons are living then F will not be entitled to claim a share from C. When A dies F is the fourth from the propositus A. These verses are quoted in Debi Pershad v Thakur Dial I. L. R 1 All 105 (F. B.) at p. 111. Vide Moro v Ganesh 10 Bom. H. C. R. 444 for a lucid exposition of these verses and Devala's text (at pp. 461, 466-467).

857. Yaj. II. 128-132 enumerates 12 sons, aurasa, putrikā-putra, kṣetraja, gūdhaja, kānina, pannarbhava, dattaka, kṛita, kṛitima, svayam-datta, sahodhaja, and apavidha. Manu. IX, the owner's); but (other kinds of) sons who are not of the same caste (as the owner) are entitled to receive only food and raiment.

158-160 enumerates twelve sons, 11 of which are the same as those of Yāj., but the śaudra (son of a brāhmaṇa from a śūdra wife) mentioned by Manu as 12th is omitted by Yāj. and the putrikāputra enumerated by Yāj. is separately mentioned by Manu (IX. 136). It is therefore that Br. (p. 375 v. 33) says that Manu enumerated thirteen sons. Manu says that six out of the twelve (viz. aurasa, kṣetrajā, datta, kṛtrima, gūḍhotpanna and apavidḍha) are partakers of wealth and also bāṇdhavas (i. e. they can offer pinda &c.), while the other six are bāṇdhavas but not dāyādas (i. e. they do not take the estate). Vide Viṣṇu 15. 1-28 for 12 sons and Gautama 28. 30-31. The Mit. explains that 'of the same caste' means that they must be sons of the dattaka, or kṣetrajā sort or the like and the words 'not of the same caste' mean sons who are kāṇīna, gūḍhaja, sahoḍha, and paunarbhava. Vas. 15. 9 says that if after a son is adopted, a son of the body is born to the adopter, the adopted son takes a fourth share. Gautama 28. 32 says generally 'चतुर्थांशिन औरसाद्यमावे'. Kaut. (p. 164) has a passage closely agreeing with Kāt. 'औरसे तूमने सवणीस्तृतीयांशहराः, असवर्णां ग्रासाच्छादनमाशिनः'. The Kalpataru, Dāyabhāga and V. C. read 'तृतीयांशहराः' in the text of Kāt. In Bengal the adopted son takes $\frac{1}{3}$ of the estate in such circumstances and in Benares $\frac{1}{4}$. In I. L. R. 43 Mad. 398 (at p. 402) the texts of Kāt., Vas. and Baudhāyana (S. B. E. vol. 14 p. 336) about the $\frac{1}{4}$ share were referred to and it was held that in a suit by the father and aurasa son for partition against a son previously adopted, the adopted son takes $\frac{1}{5}$ th of the estate and the father and aurasa son take one-fourth each. This means that the $\frac{1}{4}$ th share is not $\frac{1}{4}$ th of the whole but $\frac{1}{4}$ th of what the aurasa son takes. In I. L. R. 17 Bom. 100 and 49 Bom. 672 it was held that this rule about shares applied even to śūdras. In Nagindas v Bachoo L. R. 43 I. A. 56 (= 40 Bom. 270) it was held that this rule applies only to the adopted son and subsequently born aurasa son of the same father and not to the aurasa son of one brother and the adopted son of another brother, when they are joint. In L. R. 48 I. A. p. 280 (= 44 Mad. 656) it was held that in Madras and Bengal the adopted and subsequently born aurasa sons of śūdras shared equally.

858. A fourth share of the family estate is desired for daughters who have not been given away in marriage (at the time of partition); while three parts (of the family estate) go to the sons; but if the (family) property be small they (sons and unmarried daughters) share equally.

859. When a person begets a fruit (a son) with the consent of the owner of the field (husband of the wife), both

858. Compare Manu IX. 118 and Yāj. II. 124 (both of whom prescribe a fourth share). The fourth share is not one-fourth of the whole estate, but, as the Mit. explains, one-fourth of what the unmarried daughter would have got if she had been a son of the same class as herself. Vide my notes to V. M. pp. 157-158 for further explanation. The Dāyabhāga, V. R. and V. C. explain that $\frac{1}{4}$ th is only illustrative and means 'she is entitled to a proper provision for her marriage expenses.' Compare Viṣṇu 15. 31 'अनुदानं स्ववित्तानुरूपेण संस्कारं कुर्यात्', Kauṭ. p. 161 'कन्याभ्यश्च प्रदानिकं' and Śaṅkha — Likhita 'विभज्यमाने दायेभ्यः स्वकन्यालङ्कारं वैवाहिकं स्त्रीधनं च कन्या लभते' (quoted in वि. र. p. 495). Vide Bhagavati Shukul v Ram Jatan I. L. R. 45 All 297 (at p. 299) where it was held that 'the quarter share' in the Sanskrit texts means as much money as will suffice for marriage expenses, that the provision of a dowry for a daughter was a legal necessity and that where the daughter was a cripple and blind and all the property was worth Rs. 500 an alienation of the whole of it by the widowed mother for raising a dowry for the daughter was justifiable.

859. This verse refers to a topic that very much exercised the minds of ancient sages. In ancient times there was the practice of niyoga, whereby a son was begotten under certain circumstances by one man on the wife of another (e. g. vide Gautama 18. 4-8 and Manu IX 59-62). Just as a fruit grows on land (kṣetra) and seed (bīja) is required for the production of fruit, so the wife is compared to the land (and spoken of as kṣetra). The question arose to whom the son produced under niyoga belonged. Manu (IX. 52-53) seems to suggest that when there was an agreement that the son produced of them are entitled to the fruit (the son), since a fruit is not produced in the absence of one (of the two).

860. A son born of a woman who leaves an impotent husband and secures another husband is called paunarbhava and he clearly belongs to the begetter.

861. That man is said to be impotent whose urine has no froth, whose faeces (when voided) in water sink (to the bottom), and whose generative organ is devoid of erection and semen.

under niyoga was to belong to both the husband of the woman and the begetter, he belonged to both and if there was no agreement then he belonged to the husband of the woman (the kṣetrika). Āpastamba (Dh. S. II. 6. 13. 5-6) relying on a brāhmana passage and certain Vedic gāthās held that the son belonged to the begetter. Vas. 17. 63 seems to refer to the same view. Gautama 18. 9-14 refer to several views on the point. Though the Manusmṛti (IX. 64-66) severely condemns niyoga, Yāj. I. 68-69, Nār. p. 181 vv. 80-84, Kauṭ. p. 162 as also Gautama (18. 4-8), Vas. 17. 56-57 and 66 appear to have countenanced it. Br. (p. 369 vv. 12-13) condemns it. Sankha-Likhita (as quoted in V. R. pp. 581 and 557) first state the view that the son belongs to the husband of the woman and then state the views of Āngirasa and Uśanas 'नियतं क्षेत्रिणामपत्यमिति च वेदवादः' &c. and 'कारकतुरपयमित्याङ्गिरसो ब्राह्मणैर्विकयोरनुमते तद् ब्रजे प्रकीर्यते तद् द्विधा शस्यमित्युशनाः'. Vide Nār. p. 176 v. 58 and Baud. Dh. S. II. 2. 17 (S. B. E. vol. 14 p. 226) for the same idea as in this verse.

860. 'Paunarbhava' -- born of a pūnarbhū (woman twice married). Nār. (pp. 174-175 vv. 45-48) speaks of three kinds of pūnarabhūṣ. Compare Manu IX. 175 (for paunarbhava) and 176, Yāj. II. 130, Viṣṇu 15. 7-9, Vas. 17. 20.

861. Vide Nār. pp. 166-168 for the signs of a potent man and for 14 kinds of impotent men. Compare with this verse Nār. p. 167 v. 10 and Kauṭ. p. 193 'कुर्वन्नविस्त्रियः सूत्रकेनमस्तु विघ्ननिमज्जनं च' which means 'as to impotency women, froth of urine and the sinking of the faeces in water' (are the means of judging).

862. The son of a woman married out of her order, one who is born of a husband of the same gotra (as that in which the woman was born) and one who is an apostate from the order of ascetics do not obtain the inheritance.

863-64. But the son of a woman married in the wrong order takes the ancestral wealth, when he is of the same class as his father and the son of a woman who is not of the

862. The word 'akramoḍhāsutaḥ' is interpreted in two ways. Most interpret it as follows: a person was first to marry a girl of his own caste, but he could marry a girl of any of the other castes lower than his own. Vide Manu III. 12. If a brāhmaṇa married a girl of the kṣatriya caste first and then a brāhmaṇa girl, both became akramoḍhā (married in the wrong order). In such a case the son of the kṣatriya girl from the brāhmaṇa would not be entitled to a share of his father's estate, but the son of the brāhmaṇa wife would take the wealth as said in the next verse. The other interpretation given by the Vyavahāramayūkha is: when a younger brother (or sister) was married before an elder brother (or sister), the former was called parivett and the latter parivitta or parivinnā and such a procedure was called parivedana, which was declared very sinful. Vide Manu III. 172 and Baud. Dh. S. II. 1. 39. This verse declares, according to V. M., that the son of a younger sister married before her elder sister and the son of an elder sister married after a younger one were both excluded from inheritance to their fathers respectively. A sagotra marriage was forbidden, but if it took place the son of such a marriage would not take the inheritance. The Dāyabhāga takes 'sagotrā.....jāyate' to refer to the Kṣetrajā son

863-864. 'The son of a woman who is not of the same caste' etc.—If a brāhmaṇa married a brāhmaṇa girl and also a kṣatriya girl, the sons born of both would take the estate of their brāhmaṇa father, but not equally. The son of the brāhmaṇa woman would take four shares of the estate, while the son of the kṣatriya woman three and so on. Vide Manu IX. 152-154 and Yāj. II. 125 for the shares. 'Son of the woman ... reverse order'—this refers to the offspring of pratiloma unions (such as kṣatriya or vaiśya man same class with her husband (but is of a lower class) and is married in the proper order (takes the wealth of his father). But the son of a woman who is married in the reverse order does not take the ancestral estate; the approved view (of ancient writers) is that he should be given food and raiment till his death by his kinsmen.

marrying a brāhmaṇa woman). They were not entitled to the estate of their father if there were other heirs but only to food and raiment. But if there were no other heirs then even the offspring of pratiloma unions took their father's estate. Compare Gautama 28. 43 (शूद्रापुत्रवत्प्रतिलोमास्तु) with v 864. In Natha v chotalal 32 Bom. L. R. 1348 the two verses of Kātyāyana (862 and 864) are quoted (at p. 1353) and it is held that the son of a brāhmaṇa from a śūdra wife is entitled to inherit a $\frac{1}{10}$ th share in the estate of his father as well as of his uncle and that he does not get more than $\frac{1}{10}$ th as Manu (IX. 154) expressly says so. It is submitted with great respect that this decision is not in accordance with Hindu Law as understood by most eminent nibandhakāras and the principles laid down by the Privy Council. In Collector of Madura v Mootoo Ramalinga 12 Moore's Indian Appeals 397 it is said at p. 436 'The duty, therefore, of an European judge, who is under the obligation to administer Hindu Law, is not so much to inquire whether a disputed doctrine is fairly deducible from the earliest authorities as to ascertain whether it has been received by the particular school which governs the district with which he has to deal and has there been sanctioned by usage. For under the Hindu system of Law clear proof of usage will outweigh the written text of the Law'. In the case in 32 Bom. L. R. no usage about such marriages was alleged or proved. Their Lordships relied upon passages of Manu, Yājñavalkya and Viṣṇuśāstra for the view that a marriage of a brāhmaṇa with a śūdra was not forbidden. But their Lordships did not notice the express words of the Vyavahārmayūkha that in the Kali (present) age all secondary sons except dattaka are prohibited. 'अत्र दत्तकभिन्ना गौणाः पुत्राः कलौ वज्याः । दत्तौ रसेतरेषां तु पुत्रत्वेन परिग्रह इति तन्निषेधेऽपि पाठ्यते' p. 107 of my edition. The Mayūkha is of paramount authority in Guzerat from which the case came. The son of a brāhmaṇa from a śūdra woman is called niṣāda or pāraśava

865. On failure of kinsmen, he would obtain (inherit) the estate of his father. The kinsmen are not to be made to pay (food and raiment to the son of a pratiloma union) when the kinsmen have taken no wealth of his father.

(Property not liable to partition).

866. All that (ancestral) wealth which was taken away by force from the family or was lost (to the family) and which was recovered by the father himself by his own efforts, the father is not liable to share with the sons at the time of partition.

867. That wealth is said to be gained by learning by Yāj. I. 91. and pārasava by Manu (IX. 178) and also saūdra (Manu IX. 160). All the sons except the aurasa are declared by Manu (IX. 180) to be substitutes for the aurasa i. e. as secondary and the Mayūkha distinctly says that all secondary sons except dattaka are forbidden in the present age. Hence the son of a brāhmaṇa from a sūdra woman cannot be recognised as a son according to the Mayūkha, whatever the views deducible from ancient smṛtis may be. Doctrines deducible from ancient sages (such as that of niyoga, unequal distribution of ancestral property among sons) are not accepted by nibandhakāras as applicable to the present age. The same rule should have been held applicable in the present case.

866. Compare Manu IX. 209, Yāj. II. 119, Viṣṇu. 18. 43 and Br. p. 371 v. 12. In 5 Mad. H. C. R. 150 it was held that the rule was intended to apply strictly to hereditary property of which the members of the family had been violently or wrongfully dispossessed or adversely kept out of possession for a length of time.

867. This verse defines vidyādhana, which has been a fruitful source of litigation in modern times. Verses 867-873 elucidate what is meant by vidyādhana. Compare Manu IX. 206, Yāj. II. 119, Viṣṇu 18. 42, Gautama 28. 28, Nār. p. 191. v. 11. This verse is quoted in Durgadat v Ganesh 3: All 305 (at p. 312) where it is said that the definition is not exhaustive but only illustrative which is acquired by means of learning received from another while subsisting on food furnished by a stranger.

868. When a matter (a doubt or difficult point) has been placed (before an assembly of pandits) with a wager, whatever is gained by (showing one's superior) learning is known as vidyādhana (gains of learning); it is not divided at a partition.

869-70. What is acquired from a pupil (i. e. by the profession of teaching), by performing the work of a priest at a sacrifice, by propounding a question, by solving a doubtful point, by exhibiting one's knowledge, by disputation with a and it was held that, where a person learnt some astrology from his father and left his father at 14 and then made a fortune, it was his self-acquisition. The following leading cases lay down the limits within which gains of learning may not be liable to partition: 2 Mad. H. C. R. 56, 6 Bom. H. R. p. 1, L. R. 4 I. A. 109, 15 Bom. 32, 45 Cal. 666 (= L. R. 45 I. A. 41), L. R. 48 I. A. 162 (= 2 Lahore 40). But now the Legislature has intervened and by Act XXX of 1930 all doubts have been removed and it is laid down that a Hindu member of a joint family who receives education at the expense of the family can keep his earnings as his self-acquisition; however high the expenditure may be.

868. For another meaning of 'upanyaste' vide my notes on V. M. p. 213.

869-870. 'By propounding a question' i. e. when a solution is given to a query made by a sinner &c. about the prāyaścitta for a sin; 'exhibiting one's knowledge' - i. e. when there is a knotty śāstric point or when the question is who is to be honoured first as the leader among learned brāhmaṇas. 'The same is the rule &c.'—The contrast is between 'vidyā' (purely literary studies) and śilpa (arts and crafts). Whoever acquires an art by his own exertion rival, what is gained by deep learning — all this is declared to be vidyādhana and it is not divided at a partition.

The same is the rule even in the case of artisans and whatever is obtained (as a reward &c.) over and above the proper price of an article (becomes the self-acquisition of that member who sells it).

871. After vanquishing an adversary in a wager whatever is obtained by (superior) knowledge should be known as vidyādhana (gains of learning) and is not liable to be partitioned. This is the view of Brhaspati.

872. What is gained by an assertion of one's learning, what is obtained from a pupil (i. e. by teaching) and what is acquired on the analogy of priests officiating at a sacrifice — all these are known as vidyādhana; this is the view of Bhṛgu.

873. What is obtained by the superiority of one's learning, and from a sacrificer (by officiating as a priest for him) and from a pupil (by teaching him) — all this is declared to be vidyādhana; acquisitions other than these are common (i. e. jointly owned) with others.

and not at joint family expense keeps his earnings as his self-acquisition. 'Whatever is obtained &c.' — If a member of a joint family is entrusted with the sale of an article belonging to the joint family and by his skill he sells it for a price far in excess of its real value or he gets a reward from the purchaser, the excess or reward is his separate property.

871. 'Superior knowledge' — of dice or gambling.

872. 'By an assertion &c.' — by saying 'I alone of the assembled people know this science' and proving this to be true; 'rtvin-nyāya' is explained by the Sm. C. and V. M. as 'upa-darsana' (supervising a sacrifice &c.). Vide Manu VIII. 206-210 about the rewards of officiating priests at sacrifices.

874. Brhaspati declares that the wealth acquired by valour (in battle) by brothers who were instructed in the family or by the father is liable to be divided (among all the members of the family).

875. A learned man should never give to his unlearned kinsmen (brothers &c.) anything from his gains of learning; but a learned man should give his gains of learning to those (of his kinsmen) who are equally learned or more learned than himself.

876. Where a reward was given by the king (or master) being pleased by the actions of a person who putting his own life in danger did an act of strength (or valour) whatever is thus obtained is the wealth due to valour.

877. What is acquired by valour and by learning and what is known as wealth of the wife—all this is not liable to be partitioned by cosharers at the time of partition.

874. 'Instructed in the family' i.e. instructed at the expense of joint family property or by the other members of the family such as the grand-father, uncle &c. In all cases of partition of vidyā-dhana the acquirer got two shares as laid down by Vas. 17. 51.

875. The first half contains a prohibition against a learned man giving a portion of his self acquired vidyādhana to his brothers who are not learned. Compare Gautama 28. 28. Nār. p. 191. v. 11 says that out of wealth acquired by learning not imparted at family expense one need not give a share of it to his unlearned coheirs if he is unwilling to do so, but impliedly allows him to do so if he so wills.

876. This is Kātyāyana's definition of 'śauryadhana', which he distinguishes from 'dhvajāhṛta' (v. 878). Other writers like Nārada (p. 190. v. 6) and Br. (p. 381 v. 78) put both under 'śauryadhana'.

877. 'Wealth of the wife'—strīdhana or bhāryādhana is wealth which a man gets at the time of being married. Br. (p. 381 v. 78) and Nār. (190 v. 6) speak of only 'bhāryādhana'.

878. What is called 'dhvajāhṛta' is declared to be impartible. That is said to be 'dhvajāhṛta' which is recovered from a battle after putting one's life in danger of death for the king (or master) and after putting to flight the army of the adversary.

879. What is obtained at the time of marriage with a maiden of the same caste is known as 'kanyāgata' (coming with a maiden) wealth; it is declared to be pure and as promoting prosperity.

880. That is known as 'vaivāhika' (nuptial) which comes with the wife; all wealth of this sort should be known as the means of (performing) dharma (religious duties).

881. Whatever is given at the time of marriage as meant for the bridegroom, all that is the wealth of the maiden and it cannot be partitioned by the cosharers.

882-883. Money that is entered in a document, whatever is intended (or set apart) for a religious purpose, water, slaves, a nibandha that descends hereditarily, clothes that 879-880. Manu IX. 206 and Yāj. II. 118 speak of 'vaivāhika' or 'audvāhika' as impartible. That is the same as the 'bhāryādhana' of Nār. and Br. But Kāt. who has a great penchant for distinctions and definitions distinguishes between 'kanyāgata' and 'vaivāhika' both of which are really 'bhāryādhana'. The V. M. explains 'kanyāgata' differently. It is that wealth which a man obtains at the time of giving his daughter in marriage in the ārṣa form. But this is far-fetched. Vide Yāj. I. 59 and Manu III. 29 for ārṣa form.

881. 'Wealth of the maiden' i. e. wealth that may be called 'kanyāgata' as in 879.

882. 'Money document'—this means 'bond debts not yet recovered'. It is possible to take the first half of 882 as one clause (as the V. M. does) the meaning being 'what is entered in a document as set apart for religious purposes'. 'Nibandhaḥ'—This is a technical word. It means 'a pension, a periodical payment in cash or kind or an allowance granted permanently by a king, a corporation, or a village to a person, temple or a family'. The Mit. on are worn on the body (every day), ornaments and whatever else that is not fit to be divided-these should be so employed by cosharers that they may be enjoyed (in common by all of them) at the proper time.

Yāj. II. 121 gives as examples ' so many betel leaves from each bundle of betel leaves or so many betelnuts from each betelnut-load ' (to be paid to a temple or brāhmaṇa or other person). The Sm. C. gives as an example the agreement made by traders to deliver to a temple or brāhmaṇa every year or every month a fixed sum. ' Nibandha ' is paraphrased as ' vṛtti ' by V. M. The word ' nibandha ' is rendered as ' corrody ' by Colebrooke in his Digest, but as observed by the Privy council in Fattesangji v. Dessai Kallianraji I. L. R. 11, A. p. 31 at p. 51 it is not a very happy translation. Vide Collector of Thana v. Krishnanath I. L. R. 5 Bom. 322 at pp. 331-32 (for a discussion of what is included in a nibandha); Collector of Thana v. Hari Sitaram I. L. R. 6 Bom. 546 (F. B.) at pp. 555-559; Lakshmandas v. Manohar I. L. R. 10 Bom. 149; Jatindra Mohan v. Ghanashyam I. L. R. 50 Cal. 266 at p. 271 (where an annuity was held to be a nibandha and various definitions of nibandha are given). ' Water '—Rights to water and wells belonging to a joint Hindu family are ordinarily impartible and so the burden of proving that a well was exclusively assigned to one member at a partition is on him who alleges it; vide I. L. R. 36 Bom. 275 and 379. ' Clothes that are worn '—this means ' that clothes that are highly valuable and are worn only on festive occasions are to be divided ' according to price. Vide Br. p. 382 v. 79-81 where he finds fault with Manu (IX. 219) and others for declaring that clothes and other things are impartible and suggests that they may be sold and the price divided &c. These verses of Kat. are quoted in I. L. R. 30 Mad 340 at p. 344 and Khushalchand v. Mahadevgiri (1875) P. J. p. 276 refers to Kāt. and says that any portion once assigned for purposes of religion shall be excepted from partition so as to be kept available for its intended object. Compare Gautama 28. 44-45, Manu. IX. 219 and 200, Viṣṇu. 18 44, Śaṅkha-Likhita ' न वस्तुविभागो नोदकपात्रालङ्कारोपयुक्तस्त्रीवाससाम्, अपां प्रचारवर्त्मनामविभागश्चेति प्रजापतिः ' quoted in V. R. p. 503), Kauṭ. p. 161 (उदकपात्राण्यपि निष्कित्वा विभजेरन्नित्याचार्याः).

884. A pasture for cattle, way, clothes (every day) worn on the body, money lent and what is set apart for religious purposes should not be divided: this is the view of Brhaspati.

884 A. Whatever is declared as the rule of law in a particular country, caste, group or village, (the king) should prescribe partition of heritage in accordance with that. (This is the view of) Bhṛgu.

(Fresh partition as to concealed ancestral estate).

885. If (joint) wealth was concealed, but is afterwards found, the sons should divide it equally with their brothers in the absence (i. e. death) of the father.

886. Whatever was concealed from each other (by the cosharers) and what was divided in an unjust manner and whatever was recovered after (partition) should be partitioned in equal shares. This is the view of Bhṛgu.

884. It is better to read 'rathyā' (way) for 'rakṣā' (which may mean 'a reserved pasture or forest'). If 'rakṣā' is kept 'gopracāra' would mean 'way for leading cattle'. 'Pracāra' has two meanings, 'way' or 'pasture'. Vide Shantaram v Vaman I. L. R. 47 Bom. 389 at p. 396 for the meaning of 'pracāra'. Compare Br. p. 382 v 84. 'Prayojya' was explained as 'a book' by Pārijāta. (which says that they should not be divided with fool-s). Viṣṇu 18 44 reads 'योगक्षेमं प्रचारश्च न विभज्यं च पुस्तकम्'.

884. A This is practically the same as the last verse of the Kautīliya on 'putravibhāga' (II. 7. p. 165). Manu²J. 118 speaks of the dharmas of देश, जाति, कुल and गण.

886. 'Divided in an unjust manner' i. e. divided by giving unequal shares; 'recovered after partition' i. e. debts due from debtors of the family, if recovered after partition, should be equally divided. The meaning is that all cosharers are entitled to divide it and not he alone who finds out concealed wealth &c. Compare Manu IX. 218, Yāj. II. 126, Kaut. p. 161 'दुर्विभक्तमन्योन्यापहृतमन्तर्हि तमविज्ञातोत्पन्नं वा पुनर्विभजेरन्'.

887. Whatever wealth was acquired by a man after he became separated belongs to him alone (exclusively); but whatever is found after it was carried off (by strangers) or after it was (given up as) lost and what is mentioned already should be again divided.

888. (The king) should not by force compel the co-sharer to return (joint) wealth taken away by one cosharer; he should not make undivided coparceners to return (the price of the) enjoyment (over and above their proper share).

889-890. If a man, leaving the common country, goes to another country, his share should be given to his descendant when he comes (to demand it); there is no doubt. Even if he (the descendant) be the third, fifth or even seventh (from the man who left the country), he should get the share that descends hereditarily on his birth and family name being ascertained.

887. 'Lost' — a deposit or debt that was regarded as irrecoverable at the time of partition; 'mentioned already' — This refers to verse 886 viz. wealth concealed from other cosharers or inequitably divided.

888. The first half means that a cosharer who takes away more wealth out of the joint property than would properly fall to his share should be made to yield up by other modes than force (such as trick &c). Vide v 478 above and Br. p. 384 v 96. If when the family is undivided one cosharer has more enjoyment of the joint property than others (because he has more children or because other members are absent), he cannot be made to account for the extra enjoyment to his cosharers at the time of partition; because such excessive enjoyment by one is inevitable in a joint family. The Vir. reads 'nivartayet' which means 'the king should not prevent undivided cosharers from enjoying the joint property'.

889-90. 'Common country' i. e. the country where he and his cosharers lived. Vide Br. p. 373 vv. 24-25 for same verses. Compare Art. 127 of the Indian Limitation Act.

891. The gotrajas (members of the family) should allow (a share in the ancestral) lands to the descendant of a man whom the maulas and neighbours know to be a co-owner (in the land) by descent, when he (the descendant) comes (after partition to demand his share).

892. If persons become separate as to ancestral wealth and then again begin to live together, they should again divide (their wealth after living together), but he who acquires property should get two shares.

(Indications of partition)

893. When for ten years brothers reside (separately) doing religious observances separately and have separate transactions, they should be known as separate so far as ancestral property is concerned.

891. The Sm. C. explains that this applies only to lands (and not to movables) and a share will be allowed after the lapse of a long time only as to land. For the meaning of maulas vide v. 743 above. This is the same as Br. p. 374 v. 26.

892. This verse refers to a case where divided members again live together i. e. reunite and mix up their shares and one of them acquires more wealth with the help of the wealth that is reunited and so is common. In such a case the acquirer gets two shares and the other members who have joined together get one share each. If any one of the re-united members acquires wealth with his own efforts without detriment to the re-united wealth, he would keep it as his self-acquisition. This is the explanation given by the Dāyabhāga following Śrīkara. Vide Vasiṣṭha 17. 51 and Br. p. 381 v. 77.

893. 'Brothers'—this is illustrative and stands for all members of a family that was once joint; 'doing...separately'—the *dharma*s are such as Vaiśvadeva; when members are joint, worship of gods, Vaiśvadeva and other Mahāyajñas and rites are one. Compare Manu IX. 111, Gautama 28. 4. Nār. p. 198 v. 37 and Br. p. 370 v. 6. 'Transactions' such as bearing witness, lending money, standing surety &c. Compare Nār. p. 199 vv. 38-40 and Br. p. 384 v. 92 Lakṣmī v. Bai Amrit. I. L. R. 2 Bom. 299 refers to this verse (at p. 309). This verse is almost the same as Nār. p. 199 v. 41.

(Definition of strīdhana and the kinds thereof)

894. What was given before the nuptial fire, what was given at the time of the bridal procession, what was given to a woman through affection, what was received from the brother, mother or father – this strīdhana is declared to be sixfold.

895. What is given to women (by anybody) at the time of marriage before (the nuptial) fire, that is declared to be adhyagni strīdhana by the wise.

896. That again which a woman obtains when she is being taken (in a procession) from her father's house (to the bridegroom's) is termed strīdhana of the adhyāvahanika kind.

894. Kātyāyana's treatment of strīdhana is classical and the fullest of all smṛti writers. This verse is practically the same as Manu IX. 194. The Mit. explains that the mention of six is not meant to exclude a larger number, but means that there cannot be less than six kinds. In Bhugwandeen v. Mynabai 11 Moore's Indian Appeals at 512 it is said that the Vivādacintāmaṇi and the Mayūkha confine strīdhana within the definition of Manu and Kātyāyana and that they exclude the property inherited and the other acquisitions which are comprehended in the last clause of the para of the Mitākṣarā. (Compare Yāj. II. 143, Viṣṇu 17. 18 for these and other kinds of strīdhana). In the Taittirīya Samhitā VI. 2. 1. 1 we read ' for the wife is master of house-hold gear'. This is the germ of the law of Strīdhana. Āp. Dh. S. II. 6. 14. 9 says that the ornaments of a wife belong to her. Vas. 17. 46 refers to the marriage gifts of a woman and Baud. Dh. S. II. 24. 4 says the ornaments of a woman go to her daughters. Gautama 28. 22-24 has three sūtras on strīdhana.

896. The V. R. (p. 523) says that when the married girl is taken back from the bridegroom's house to her father's, what is given by her father-in-law and others is also adhyāvahanika and the V. C. says that it is what is obtained at the time of ' dvirāgamaṇa'.

897. Whatever is given (to a woman) through affection by the father-in-law or mother-in-law and what is received at the time of saluting the feet of elders is termed prtidatta (gift through affection).

898. That is declared to be śulka, which is obtained as the price of household utensils, of beasts of burden, of milch cattle, ornaments and slaves.

899. Whatever is obtained by a woman after marriage from the family of her husband and also what is similarly obtained from the family of her (father's) kinsmen is said to be anvādheya (gift subsequent).

900. Whatever is obtained by a woman through affection after her marriage from her husband or from her parents, that is anvādheya. This is the view of Bhṛgu.

898. 'Śulka' generally means 'bride price' i. e. the price paid by the bridegroom for giving the girl in marriage. Vide Manu III. 51 who prohibits the taking of a śulka by the father of the girl for himself, but in III. 54 allows śulka being taken if it is kept apart for the girl herself. The Sm. C. and Vir. explain it as the price of the articles which the bridegroom was in the habit of presenting to the bride at the time of marriage or when he started a home. The Dāyabhāga explains that it is either that wealth which is obtained by a wife as a bribe from artisans for inducing her husband to embark on building a house &c. or it is what is given to a married girl for inducing her to go to her husband's house.

899-900. The two verses convey practically the same meaning. Many digests omit 900. If v. 900 is really Kātyāyana's as the Dāyabhāga and V. R. say, then Kāt. is therein merely transcribing Bhṛgu's view which somewhat restricts the scope of anvādheya. Vide Manu IX. 195 which contains the word 'anvādheya'. In I. L. R. 33 Cal. 315 the definition of anvādheya (v. 899) is quoted (at p. 320) and it is held that a permanent lease at a nominal rent granted by a father to his married daughter is her anvādheya stridhana. In Sitabai v. Vasant Rao 3 Bom. L. R. 201 it. is said that anvādheya extends to gifts from parents as well as to gifts from the husband (p. 206).

901 That is known as saudāyika which is obtained by a married woman or by a maiden in her husband's or father's house from her brother or from her parents.

(Discussion of ownership of strīdhana)

902. The father, mother, the husband, brother and kinsmen should give strīdhana to a woman according to their means up to two thousand (paṇas) except immoveable property.

901. Saudāyika is a technical word used in a peculiar sense by Kāt. For its derivation vide my notes to V. M. p. 285. Saudāyika comprehends several kinds of strīdhana property. It is specially coined for saying that over Saudāyika strīdhana a woman has absolute power of disposal even during her husband's lifetime. It is that wealth which a woman receives from her brother or parents or their relatives but not from her husband or his relations. This is the interpretation of the Sm. C. and V. R. (p. 511), but the Dāyabhāga reads ' मर्तुः सकाशात् ' which runs counter to this explanation. In F. L. R. 39 Mad. 298 Kātyāyana's definition of saudāyika is quoted (at p. 300), the views of the Sm. C. and other digests are set out and it is held that a gift by a father of immoveable property to his daughter before marriage was saudāyika and at her absolute disposal. In 3 Bom. L. R. 201 at p. 207 it is said that Saudāyika is not used in contradistinction to anvādheya in connection with succession.

902. The Sm. C., Par. M. and V. M. say that this limit of 2000 paṇas is fixed with reference to payment each year. If they want to give to a woman only once in their lifetime or in several years they may give more than two thousand paṇas or give even immoveable property. Sm. C. quotes a similar verse of Vyāsa. Kaut. (III. 2. p. 152 text, p. 193 tr.) says that ' vritti ' and jewelry constitute strīdhana; vritti (may be given) up to two thousand as the highest limit and there is no limit as to jewelry. Par. M. III, p. 549 quotes Bṛhaspati ' दद्याद्धनं च पर्याप्तं क्षेत्रांश्च वा यदिच्छति '.

903. Whatever was given to a woman on an occasion (or condition) or with a fraudulent intent by the father, brother or husband is not held to be strīdhana.

904. In that wealth which is obtained (by a woman) by mechanical arts or from a stranger through affection the ownership is of the husband; the rest is declared to be the strīdhana.

905-906. On obtaining wealth of the saudāyika kind it is held (lit. desired) that women have independent ownership (over it), since it was given by them (by the kindred)

903. If the father or husband gives some ornaments to his daughter or wife for wearing on some special occasion (upādhi means condition) or if a father or husband in fraud of his coparceners gives some family property to his daughter or wife, that cannot become her strīdhana.

904. 'A stranger' i. e. from one who is a friend, but not the father or brother or other near relative. This verse according to the Dāyabhāga and Vir. means that over such wealth the husband has complete power of disposal even when he is not in distress and the woman who acquires it has no power of gift or sale over it without the husband's consent. But the object of the verse is not to deny that it is strīdhana at all. In Muthu Ramkrishna v. Marimuthu Goundan 38 Mad. 1036 this verse of Kāt. is quoted (at p. 1040) and it is held that all the texts recognise the wife's ownership in the property acquired by her own labour; they only restrict her right of alienation and make it subject to the wishes of the husband and that where husband and wife jointly earned profits in a trade and purchased properties, the properties were jointly of the husband and wife and on the wife's death her interest devolved on her heirs and not on the husband.

905-906. 'In order condition'—this is the explanation of 'ānṛśamsyārtham' according to V. R. p. 511; others explain it as meaning 'out of affection'; 'always'—even during husband's lifetime. The Digests quote a text of Nārada that over gifts made by the husband through affection women have absolute power sa a support in order that they may not be reduced to a terrible (or wretched) condition. It has been declared that women always have independence in saudāyika wealth as regards sale or gift at their pleasure and even in immoveables (if saudāyika).

907. A woman, when her husband is dead, may deal with the gift given by her husband just as she pleases; but of disposal except over immoveables (which she cannot dispose of at her pleasure even after his death). Vv. 905-906 are quoted in 1 Mad. H. C. R. p. 85 at p. 90 (note). Bhagirthibai v Kahnajirao 11 Bom 285 (F. B.) refers to Kāt. on saudāyika (at p. 302). In Bhau v Raghunath I. L. R. 34 Bom. 229 these two verses and the definition of saudāyika are quoted (on p. 238) and it is held that 'except as to the kind known as saudāyika a woman's power of disposal over her strīdhana is during coverture subject to her husband's consent and that she cannot dispose of such strīdhana (other than saudāyika) by will where the husband survives her and is not shown to have assented to the will. Vide Bhagavanlal v Bai Divali 27 Bom. L. R. 633 (where when a woman had lived 30 or 40 years apart from her husband, inherited property from her father and willed it away, it was held that she was in the peculiar circumstances of the case competent to dispose off by will without her husband's consent) where 30 Bom. 229 was distinguished. Vide Nathubhai v Javer I. L. R. 1 Bom. 121 where verse 906 is relied upon (at p. 123) for the proposition that a Hindu female is not on account of her sex absolutely disqualified from entering into a contract. In spite of the text of Nārada referred to above it was held in Mulchand v Bai Mancha I. L. R. 7 Bom. 491 that an absolute bequest by a Hindu of his separate immoveable property to his widow confers on her as full dominion and power of alienation over that property as if the bequest had been made to a stranger.

907. This verse is variously interpreted. 'Bhartṛdāya' is explained by the Sm. C. as the strīdhana given to a woman by her husband through affection', while the V. R. and V. C. take 'bhartṛdāya' as meaning 'the husband's own property'. According to Sm. C. in 'pṛitidatta' strīdhana from the husband a woman has she should preserve it while he is alive; or she may spend (the affectionate gift of the husband) on his family.

908-910. If the husband has married two wives and he does not honour (reside with) her (one of them), he should be forcibly made to return (by the king the stridhana of the ill-treated wife) even when she bestowed it upon him through affection (for him); where food, raiment and residence are denied to (or withheld from) a woman, she may exact her own stridhana and also the share (that would have fallen to her husband on partition) from the coparceners (of her husband). This is the rule of law laid down by Likhita; when she recovers (her wealth) she should reside in the husband's house; if she is afflicted with disease she may at the time of death go to her kinsmen.

after his death absolute power of disposal except over immoveables given by him and that during her husband's life she can dispose of the affectionate gifts of the husband only with his consent (even moveables). The last pāda would also mean 'she may pass her day in her husband's family'. 'She should preserve it' — means 'she cannot dispose of it without his consent'. The verse as interpreted by V. R. and V. C. means 'a woman succeeding to her husband's wealth after his death because there is no son &c. may dispose of it as she pleases, except immoveable property, and that when the husband is alive she can spend it only with his consent'. The V. R. (p. 512.) says that Halāyudha and Pārijāta took 'bhartṛdāya' to mean gifts of affection made by the husband and it prefers the view of Prakāśa. I. L. R. 1 Mad. 281 quotes this verse at p. 286.

908-910. In 11 Moore's I. A. 487 at p. 511 and in 8 Mad. 290 at p. 291 this verse is quoted. 908-909 are ascribed to Devala by V. M. but other ancient and weighty authorities ascribe them to hāt. Both 908 and 909 refer to the husband only. 'Husband's house' — that is though the husband does not honour her, she must stay in her husband's house. This is the old Hindu sentiment to which classical expression is given in the Śakuntala Act V, verse 17

911-912. Neither the husband, nor the son, nor the father, nor the brothers have authority (or power) over strīdhana for the purpose of taking it (for themselves) or for giving it away (to others). If anyone of these forcibly consumes strīdhana he should be made to return it with interest and should also be liable to a fine.

913-914. If a person (out of the husband, son etc.) were to consume strīdhana amicably after obtaining her consent, then he would be liable to return only the principle, when he becomes well off (or rich enough to pay). Whatever (of strīdhana) was allowed (to be taken) by a woman through affection knowing that (her husband) was afflicted with disease, engulfed in misfortune or harassed (or imprisoned) by creditors, the husband may return at his will.

911-912. Verse 911 is quoted in I. L. R. 1 Bom. 121 at p. 123 and I. L. R. 1 Mad. 281 (at p. 286); in the latter case it was held that a woman purchasing immoveable property with her strīdhana may dispose of it by will. The Sm. C. (III. p. 656) adroitly points out that by marriage a wife gets a sort of dominion over her husband's property, though she is subordinate to him, but the husband has not even that dominion over his wife's strīdhana. With 912 compare Manu, IX. 200 and VIII. 29.

913-914. The Sm. C. holds that verse 914 applies only to the husband, while V. R. and V. C. hold that it applies to all those enumerated in verse 911. If we look at Yāj. II. 147 where the husband alone is expressly mentioned, it appears that the interpretation of the Sm. C. is the proper one. Kaut. p. 152 (III. 2) closely follows Yāj. (तदात्मपुत्रस्तुषाभर्मणि प्रवासाप्रतिविधाने च भार्याया भोक्तुमदोषः । प्रतिरोषकव्याधिदुर्भिक्षभयप्रतीकारे धर्मकार्ये च पत्युः ॥). Yāj. II. 147 is quoted in I. L. R. 50 Mad. 941 at pp. 944 and 946 and it is held that 'taken' means 'taken and used'.

915. The husband, the sons, the brothers-in-law and kinsmen on the paternal side of a woman are declared to have no power over her strīdhana while she is alive; those that deprive her of it should be fined.

916. That strīdhana which was promised (to a woman) by her husband should be paid to her as a debt by the sons (of the husband), provided she resides in the husband's family. she should not reside with her paternal family.

(Heirs to the wealth of a deceased woman)

917-918. Sisters having husbands should share with their brothers the strīdhana of their mother; This is the rule of law and a partition (among the brothers and sisters) is prescribed.

915. Vide v. 912 and Manu VIII. 29 who says that the fine is the one for a thief.

916. 'The sons of the husband' i. e. either her own sons or step-sons. This is only illustrative; even the grand-son would be liable to pay it, as he is liable to pay a debt of the grandfather; The first half is attributed to Devala in V. M. Compare verse 910 above.

917-918. There is great divergence of view as regards the succession to strīdhana among the smṛti writers and the nibandha-kāras. The Mit. on Yāj. II. 145 speaks of two lines of devolution, one for śulka (following Gautama 28, 23.) and the other for all kinds of strīdhana other than śulka (following Gautama 28. 22, Yāj. II 117 latter half). The Mayūkha speaks of five different lines of devolution viz. for anvādheya and bhartṛprītidatta; (II) for Yastaka; (III) for śulka; IV for strīdhana of the technical kind other than the first three; (V) for strīdhana which is not technical. The two verses 917 and 918 are apparently in conflict, the first saying that sisters whose husbands are living take along with brothers, while 918 says that sons succeed to strīdhana only on

In the absence (i.e. on failure) of daughters the wealth (stridhana) goes to the sons (of the deceased woman); the wealth given by a woman's (paternal or maternal) kinsmen goes in the absence of bandhus to her husband.

919. Whatever immoveable property was given by the parents to their daughter always goes to her brothers, if she dies without progeny.

failure of daughters. Therefore 918 must be interpreted to mean (in accordance with Gautama 28. 22) that unmarried daughters succeed in preference to married daughters and sons. Verse 917 applies to a case where there are no maiden daughters and it lays down that married daughters whose husbands are living succeed along with sons. The word 'sabhartṛkāh' excludes widowed daughters of the deceased woman when there are married ones. The V. R. says that verse 918 (first half) applies to marriage gifts, yautaka. and gifts given by father only. With 917 compare Manu IX. 192 and vide the explanation of Mit. on Yāj. II. 145 of this verse of Manu, where it is made to mean that full brothers take equally the wealth of their mother and that full sisters do so. The verse of Manu does not mean according to the Mit. that the brothers and sisters succeed together. Br. p. 383 v. 87 and Nār. p. 191 v. 9 both say in a general way that stridhana goes to the children. The Sm. C. says that the latter half applies to the case of a woman married in any of the three forms of marriage, viz. āsura, rākṣasa and paśāca. That half may also mean 'on failure (of even sons) the wealth given by paternal or maternal relatives goes to such relatives and in their absence to the husband'. Compare with 917 Kauṭ. III. 2. p. 153 'जीवति भर्तारि मृतायाः पुत्रा दुहितश्च स्त्रीधनं विभजेरन् ! अपुत्राया दुहितरः । तदभावे भर्ता ।' and with 918 (latter half) Kauṭ. 'शुल्कमन्वाधेयमन्यद्राबन्धुभिर्दत्तं बान्धवा हरेयुः'. The Mayūkhā has 'putragāmi' in 918. The dayamaṅ says that 918 applies to śulka and the Sm. C. that it applies to a marriage other than the first five.

919. 'Without progeny'—this is illustrative here and in 92 and includes daughter's daughter and son and son's son also.

920. That strīdhana which was obtained by a woman from her parents in the forms of marriage beginning with the āsura is desired (held) to go to her parents on failure of her progeny.

(Heirs such as the widow to the wealth of a sonless man)

921. A sonless (widow) preserving the bed of her husband (unsullied) and residing with her elders and being self-controlled (or forbearing) should enjoy (her husband's property) till her death; after her the (other) heirs (of the husband) would get it (succeed to it).

920. 'In the forms of āsura'— i. e. in any one of the four forms āsura, gāndharva, rākṣasa and paiśāca. These four forms are said to be unapproved and the other four, brāhma, daiva, ārṣa and prājāpatya, are said to be approved forms. Vide Manu III. 21 and Yāj. I. 58-61 for the eight forms. The essence of the āsura form is the receipt of a bride-price from the bridegroom. Compare Manu IX. 197 and Yāj. II. 145 who prescribes that on failure of progeny, strīdhana goes to the husband; if the marriage be in the brāhma and other approved forms and to the father if it is in the āsura and the other unapproved forms. Compare Kautīlya p. 152 (text).

921. 'Should enjoy'— (i. e., she has no power of sale or gift) 'Heirs'—of her husband such as daughter, daughter's son, mother, father, brother &c. 'Being self-controlled'— the V. C. explains 'kṣāntā' as not spending too much. Compare Br. p. 377 vv. 49-50 and Kaut. (III. 2, p. 153) 'अपुत्रा पतिशयने पालयन्ती गुरुसमीपे स्त्री धनमायुः क्षयाद्भुजित आपदर्थे हि स्त्रीधनम् । ऊर्ध्वं दायदं गच्छेत् '. I. L. R. 2 All. 150 (F. B.) refers to this verse of Kāt. (at p. 152) and holds that subsequent unchastity does not cause a forfeiture in the case of a widow. This verse and v. 924 are the foundation of the rights of a widow and the reversioners after her death. In 5 Patna. 646 at p. 678 this verse is quoted and it is held that a widow can make a gift of a small portion of immoveable property to the bridegroom at the time of her only daughter's marriage. Vide 5 Lahore p. 70 also. In Bhagwandeem v. Myna Bae 11 Moore's I. A. 487 at p. 511 this verse is quoted. 8 Mad. 290 at p. 292 quotes this verse and v. 924.

922-923. When her husband is gone to heaven (is dead) the wife is entitled only to food and raiment if her husband was not separated or she may get a share in (ancestral) wealth till her death. ((The widow) intent on serving her elders is entitled to enjoy the share allotted to her; if she does not serve (her elders), food and raiment should be assigned to her.

924-925. (A wife) who keeps (the honour of) the family would get the share of her husband, when he is dead, till her death; but she has no power for gift, mortgage or sale. (A widow) engrossed in religious observances and fasts, fixed in (the vow of) celibacy, always intent on restraining (her

922-923. These verses mean that when the husband dies un-separated (or re-united) his widow may at the choice of the other members get a share in the joint family property or she may be given only food and raiment. 'Elders' i.e. the father-in-law &c. Verse 922 is quoted in I. L. R. 2 Bom. 494 at p. 511 and at p. 582 (F. B.)

924-925. These verses do not absolutely forbid a widow from making a gift or sale of her husband's property; on the contrary Kāt. enjoins on her the duty of making gifts. As the V. M. says the prohibition as to gifts applies to gifts to bards &c. The Privy Council laid down in 8 Moo. I. A. 29 that 'for religious and charitable purposes and those which are supposed to conduce to the spiritual welfare of her husband' a widow has very large powers of disposition. Verse 924 is referred to in Narasimha v. Venkatadri 8 Mad. 290 at p. 292 and it is held that the restrictions on the widow's power apply to both moveables and immoveables and in Bhugavandeem v. Myna Bae 11 Moore's Indian Appeals p. 487 it was held that both properties are included in the text of Kāt. Pandharinath v. Govind I. L. R. 32 Bom. 59 refers to this verse and holds that a Hindu widow is not competent to make a gift of moveables inherited from her husband (p. 70). In I. L. R. 42 Bom. 136 both verses are referred to (at p. 143) and it was held that a gift by a Hindu widow of 4/5ths of her husband's property for the religious benefit of her husband was not valid. Vide 41 All. 130 at p. 145. 'Even though sonless'—It was believed that one to whom no son was born did not go to heaven; vide Ait. Br. VII. 3 'nāputrasya lokostiti &c.', Tai. Sam. VI. 3. 10. 5 (about the three debts), Śāta-patha Brāhmaṇa I. 7. 2. 1, Tai. Sam. I. 4. 46. 1 'prajābhiragne senses) and making gifts would go to heaven even though sonless.

926. The widow, if chaste, takes the wealth of her husband; in default of her, the daughter (takes the wealth) if she be unmarried.

927. Of a sonless man (the heirs) are declared to be wife of good family, daughters, on default of them father, mother, brother and (brother's) sons.

928. When a person dies separated (or in a state of separation) on default of sons, his father takes his wealth or his brother, or mother, or father's mother in order.

amṛtatvam - aśyām.' An exception was made in the case of those who observed a vow of perpetual student-hood. Compare Āp. Dh. S. I. 1. 4 29 and Manu V. 159-160 (where it is expressly said that a widow who observes perpetual celibacy after her husband's death goes to heaven even though sonless just as ancient sages who observed perpetual studenthood went to heaven without sons).

926. Compare Manu IX 130, Nār. p. 201 v. 50, Br. p. 378, vv. 55-57 for the claims of the daughter. From Āp. Dh. S. II. 6. 14. 4 (duhitā vā) it appears that her claims were not clearly recognised in his day. In a competition between unmarried and married daughters, the unmarried were preferred; vide the well-known sūtra of Gautam 28. 22. It is to be noted that Kāt. does not expressly require chastity in the case of the daughter, as he does in the case of the widow (before the latter can succeed as heir). In Advyaṇa v. Rubrāva I. L. R. 4 Bom. 104 this verse of Kāt. is quoted (on p. 114) and it was held that the daughter was not debarred from inheritance on the ground of incontinence. Vide also 1 All 46 (F. B.). In 11 Bom 285 (F. B.) it was held that a daughter inheriting from her mother or father takes an absolute estate which on her death passes to her heirs, but this is not the law in Madras, Benares and Bengal. Vide L. R. 47 I. A. 213 at p. 223.

927. Compare Yāj. II. 135-136, Viṣṇu 17. 4-11 for the order among these heirs. There was great divergence of view on the order of heirs. Vide Gautama 28. 19, Āp. Dh. S. II. 6. 14. 2-4. Kauṭ. p. 160 (who omits माता), Śāṅkha-Likhita (अथापुत्रस्य स्वर्णतस्य आरुगामि द्रव्यं तदभावे मातापितरौ लभेतां पत्नी वा ज्येष्ठा) quoted in Mit. and Aparārka.

928. Compare Manu IX. 185 and 217 where the father, brothers, mother and father's mother are mentioned as heirs.

929. A wife who is full of evil deeds, who is immodest, who wastes property and who is given to adultery does not deserve (inherit) the wealth (of her husband).

930. Whatever a woman does that relates to (benefit in) future state (i.e. state after death) without the permission of her father, husband or son would become fruitless.

931. Heirless (property) goes to the king after keeping aside (wealth sufficient to provide) for the women, the servants, and the s'rāddhas (of the deceased); the wealth of a

929. This verse is quoted in 1 All. 46 (F. B.) at p. 49.

930. Yāj. I. 85 says that father, husband and sons protect a woman respectively in her maidenhood, married life and old age and a woman has no independence. The same idea is expressed here. If a woman performs certain observances for the benefit of her soul after her death without the permission of the father and the rest, she does not reap the fruit of those acts.

931. Compare Nār. p. 202 v. 52 for a similar provision for the 'women' (stri). The Mit., V. M. and other works say that 'women' here means 'the concubines of the deceased' since a king cannot take the wealth when the wife is living. That the king was the ultimate heir and that the property of an heirless brāhmana did not go to the king are propositions laid down by all ancient writers. Vide Band. Dh. S. I. 5. 102 (तस्माद्राजा ब्राह्मणस्वं नाददीत परमं हेतु-
द्विषं यद् ब्राह्मणस्वमिति), Manu IX. 189, Āp. Dh. S. II. 6. 14. 5, Gautama 28. 39-40, Vas. 17. 83-87 (who requires it to be given to those learned in the three Vedas and those who are virtuous); Viṣṇu 17. 13-14, Kaut. p. 161 (अदायादकं राजा हरेत् स्त्रीवृत्तिप्रेतकदर्यवर्जमन्यत्र श्रोत्रियद्रव्यात् । तत् त्रैविद्येभ्यः प्रयच्छेत्). This verse is quoted in I. L. R. 2 Bom 573 at p. 608 and is the foundation of the right to maintenance of a concubine (against the heirs of the deceased) recognised in modern decisions. Vide I. L. R. 12 Bom. 26 (where it is held after quoting this verse that continued continence is a condition precedent to a concubine of a deceased person claiming maintenance); 26 Bom. 163 (where it was said that the concubine has no legal right against her paramour, but on the latter's death, she has a legally enforceable right against the heir if she continued to be a concubine up to the brāhmaṇa learned in the Vedas (when there is no heir) should be assigned to other learned brāhmaṇas.

932. In the absence (of sons, grand-sons and great grand-sons or the wife) the re-united coparceners are declared to take the wealth of (deceased re-united coparceners) and separated kinsmen of (deceased separated kinsmen), they being persons who mutually inherit though they are not the descendants of each other.

(Gambling and prize-fighting)

933. One should not resort to gambling which inflames the passions and greed (of men), which engenders bad characdeath of the deceased and was continent afterwards). This last case was approved of in L. R. 53. I. A. 163 (=50 Bcm. 604) where it was held that an avaruddha woman (a concubine) of the deceased can claim maintenance from his heirs out of the estate of the deceased, but it is not a condition that she should have resided in the same house with the deceased together with his wife and regular family. Vide I. L. R. 48 Bom. 203 (where a kept mistress whose husband was alive was not treated as a concubine entitled to maintenance from the heirs of her deceased paramour). 'The wealth of a brāhmaṇa etc.'—This direction of the ancient sages as to the wealth of a brāhmaṇa has not been respected in modern times. Vide Collector of Masulipatam v. Cavalry Venkata 8 Moore's Indian Appeals 500 at p. 527.

932. This verse is somewhat obscure. The translation is made according to V. C. and V. B; 'nirbījanyonyabhāginah' is explained by V. C. as 'ते हि परस्परं निरन्वयापरभागभाज इत्यर्थः'.

933. Gambling is one of the most ancient vices. Rgveda X. 34 is a hymn which contains the lament of a gambler. There are numerous references to gambling in the Vedas; vide Rg. I. 41. 9; VII. 86. 6; Vājasaneyā Sam. 30. 18 (akṣa-rājāya kitavam). Pāṇini (II. 1. 10, II. 3. 57-58, IV. 4. 2 and IV. 4. 19) in several sūtras explains words referring to gambling and mentions 'akṣa' (dice) and 'śalākā' as instruments of gambling. Āp. Dh. S. (II. 10. 25. 12-13) refers to gambling houses. Manu (IX. 223) defines gambling as that which is carried on with inanimate objects (like dice, draughts &c.) and 'samāhvaya' as that which is carried on by means of sentient beings (i. e. birds like cocks and animals like rams and bulls). Nār. p. 212 v. 1 and Br p. 385 v. 3 make the same distinction, Manu IX. 224-227 condemns gambling and calls ters, which is cruel, and causes loss of wealth to men.

934. Since strife is certain (to follow) from gambling just as poison (is sure to issue forth) from the mouth of a serpent, therefore the king should stop this vice in his country.

935. If it (gambling) has to remain (has to be allowed) he (the king) should allow it to be done openly with an (ornamental) arch erected near the door (of the gambling hall) in order that respectable people may not be mistaken (about its real nature) and he should make it yield revenue (tax).

936. The keeper of the gaming house should make the gambling go on and should himself pay to the king (the latter's) dues. He (the keeper) should take from the defeated party ten per cent as his profit.

937. The keeper should give to the winner his money (out of his own pocket) and he should recover from the defeated gambler within three fortnights or at once; there is no doubt (about this rule).

upon the king to punish gamblers and vintners and to banish them from the kingdom; while Kaut̐ (III. 20 p. 197 text) allows gambling under the supervision of the king's officers and Yaj. II. 199-203 also does the same and says that regulated gambling is helpful in detecting thieves. Br p 385 v. 1 refers to this divergence of views between Manu and other legislators.

934. 'Since strife &c.'—compare Manu IX. 227, which is the same as Mahābhārata Udyogaparva 37. 19.

935. Gambling may be carried on secretly or openly. Even Yāj. II. 202 prescribes that those who carry on gambling secretly should be branded and banished; 'with an arch &c.'—that is, it had probably an arch with a sign-board and from its exterior, it must have been clear to everybody that it was a gambling den and not an ordinary habitation. Compare Br. p. 386 v. 5 for gambling being allowed only if done openly.

936. Compare Nār p. 212 v. 2 (for a closely similar verse) and Br. p. 386 v. 8, Yāj. II. 199; Kaut̐ (III. 20 p. 198 text) allows only five per cent to the keeper, besides the hire for supplying gambling accessories and for water and accommodation. The last half may also mean 'that he should take 10 per cent as interest if the defeated party has not paid down the wager in cash'.

937. The reading 'kitavād dhana-samsāye' (he should recover at once when there is doubt as to whether the money will be forthcoming) is better.

938. Where (the throw) of a man playing with dice in gambling is the same as or double (of the previous throw) there the (former) gambler is the winner and his protection (from the other gamblers) is to be arranged for.

939. Or the gambler (himself), after giving to the king his share (of revenue) as declared, should carry on gambling openly. In this way he will be guilty of no fault.

940. The keeper of the gaming house should make the defeated gambler forcibly pay what (the defeated) has to pay in the same place (i.e. in the gaming hall) and not elsewhere; since the procedure (in gambling matters) entirely rests with the keeper of the gaming house.

941. A person ignorant (of gambling) if defeated (in gambling) should be released (from his liability), but one who knows gambling should not be released if he is defeated in secret (gambling); when one knowing gambling has lost his all (in a wager), he should not be made to pay his all.

942. In disputes (among gamblers), in (deciding on) victory, in the matter of the gain (to the winner), and as regards the means (i.e. dice) of those who are (alleged to be) playing with false dice, the keeper of the gaming house, if he is honest, is the final authority.

943. In the case of mlecchas, cāṇḍālas (lit. dog-caters), rogues, gamblers, ascetics, the decision as to those who (are

938. The translation of this verse is merely tentative. Compare a similar verse in Nār. p. 213 v.3.

939. This verse is an exception to the rule mentioned by Br. p. 385 v.2 that gambling should be carried on under the eye of a master of the gaming house. 'The gambler'—includes also the plural. 'No fault'—i. e. he will not be guilty of depriving the state of its revenue and of engaging in gambling unauthorisedly. Compare Nār. p. 213 v. 8 which is the same.

941. Compare Br p. 386 v. 7.

943. The idea is that the king should not take upon himself to decide their disputes, but should assign that work to other gamblers etc. who alone are proper judges (and witnesses also) in such cases.

alleged to) have violated their conventions does not rest with the king.

(Miscellaneous)

944-946. Whatever was omitted in the preceding discourse (on the titles of law), and whatever is cut off from its proper context, what is taken from another system of knowledge and is not quite appropriate, what is stated at the close of the s'āstra (i. e. of the dharmaśāstra) by way of illustrations and occupies the position of being (more or less) a repetition :— those passages which are set forth in this way are called prakīrṇaka. The duties of kings, one's own duties, and disquisition on doubtful matters and what is omitted from the preceding discourse—all this is prakīrṇaka.

947-948. (Fixing) a proper share (of the produce)

Vide Yāj II. 202 (first half), Nār. p. 213. v. 4, Br. p. 386 v. 6 for the same idea.

944.-946. There is some difference as to the exact meaning of 'prakīrṇaka'. Manu (VIII. 4-7) does not enumerate among his eighteen titles such a separate title as 'prakīrṇaka'. Yāj. does not expressly name the word nor does he define it, but according to the Mit. (and other digests) the last few verses (295-307) of his second chapter (on Vyavahāra) treat of 'prakīrṇaka'. This word literally means 'scattered about'. Nār. p. 214 vv 1-4 sets out the subjects that fall under this head, the first of which is 'transgression of the king's commands' and the last is 'whatever is omitted from the discussion of the preceding titles of law' and Br. p. 386 v. 1 says that prakīrṇaka comprehends those causes that are instituted by the king himself (and not by a private person). It is therefore that the Mit. (on Yāj II. 295) says that that judicial investigation which is started by the king himself is prakīrṇaka. Kāt. mentions only a few out of the thirteen subjects that Nārada enumerates. In verses 949-951 Kāt. mentions some of the topics that fall under prakīrṇaka according to Nārada. Tantra means 'siddhānta' (propositions propounded in a system of knowledge or philosophy). Compare Nyāyasūtra I. 1. 28-31. It is difficult to connect the accusatives in 'dharmān' in v. 946 and to say definitely what 'svadharma' here means, We should probably read 'rājdharmāḥ svadharmāśca' and 'svadharma' may be taken to mean 'the attributes of the soul'.

947-948 It is probable that the proper reading is 'sadbhāga' (1/3th of the produce). Kauṭ. (II. 15 p. 93) and Manu VIII. 307 distinguish between 'sadbhāga' and 'kara', though very often 'kara' as the king's dues of subsidies (from vassals) and of tolls, what is to be paid at the pits, divulging (the secrets) of a battle or conspiring with thieves, assault on another's wife, desire to kill (i. e. attempt to kill) cows and brāhmanas, destruction of crops — these ten wrongs the king should himself look into (i. e. should start and investigate).

949-950. Non-performance of prāyas'cittas (penances), transgression of (royal) commandments and arrests (āsedha), the obliteration (or destruction) of (the duties of) the varnas and ās'ramas (the four stages of life), the prevention of the confusion of castes, (finding of) treasure-trove, (accumulation simply means 'tax'. Kauṭ (II. 21 and 22) has two chapters on the superintendent of tolls (called śūlkādhyakṣa) and on the levying of tolls. According to ancient ideas the king was entitled to one-sixth of all wealth (which was called his 'vetana', wages, in S'āntiparva 71-10) and also of the merit (puṇya) of his subjects. Vide Baud. Dh. S. I. 10. 1 (षड्भागमुतो राजा रक्षेत्रजाम्), Gautama. X. 24 (6th was the maximum), Vas. I. 42-44 (राजा तु धर्मेणानुशासन् षष्ठं धनस्य हरेत् । अन्यत्र ब्राह्मणात् । इष्टापूर्तस्य तु षष्ठमंशं भजतीति), Manu. VII. 130-132 and VIII 305. It is difficult to say what 'garta' (pit) means; probably the reference is to mines. Vide Kauṭ. (II. 12) on mines as a royal preserve and also Viṣṇu 3-55. Under Sec. 69 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code, all mines and minerals belong to Government, except where Government has alienated its rights. For ten aparādhas mentioned by Pitāmaha vide note to v. 27 above. For including the fines for ten aparādhas in royal grants vide grant of Dhruvasena of Valabhi (619-20 A. D.) in E. I. vol. I. p. 85 and also in E. I. I. 55, E. I. vol. VI p. 196. - According to Nārada quoted in Sm. C. III. p. 63 transgression of commands, killing a female, confusion of castes, illicit intercourse with another's wife, robbery, pregnancy from a man other than the husband, abuse, insulting (or obscene) language, assault and abortion were ten aparādhas. Vide Nār. p. 234 vv. 11-12.

949-950 For 'āsedha' vide note on v. 104. It would be better to read 'kopanam' (fomenting or provoking) for 'lopanam'. 'Treasure-trove'—the ancient Hindu Law on this point was that the finder of treasure-trove if he informed the king was to get one sixth and the rest went to the king, that if the finder was a learned brāhmana he could keep the whole and that the king was to seize the whole and also inflict a fine if the finder did not inform the king.

of) wealth without useful employment of it, (sudden) accession of riches in the case of an indigent man, — after clearly ascertaining these through spies, the king should himself employ preventive measures.

951--952. Matters on which no express provisions are found in the śāstras, the wranglings of disputants about the burden (or means) of proof, fomenting (dissensions or hatred) among the constituent elements of the state, the mutual conventions (to be observed by the constituent elements of the state), whatever actions not permitted by the śāstras come into vogue among the subjects — these the king should (try to) settle (or reduce) by such expedients as conciliation, division &c.

953. (The king) should employ the punishment of words towards his allies (or friends), the punishment in the word ' fie ' in the case of ascetics. Whatever is expressly declared

Vide Gautam X. 43-45, Vas. III. 13, Manu VIII. 35-39, Yāj II. 34, Viṣṇu III. 56-64, The Indian Treasure-trove Act (VI of 1878) requires the finder to give notice in writing to the Collector of the District (sec. 4) and prescribes that on failure to give such notice he will forfeit the treasure and be punishable with one year's imprisonment or fine or both. ' Accession of riches etc. ' — the king was to investigate how a poor man at once became rich (whether it was by theft or other offences).

951-952 ' Matters etc. ' — compare Manu XII. 108 (where also the word ' anāmnāta ' is used). The reading should be ' kriyāvādāśca '. The meaning of ' kriyāvādāśca vādinām ' is not quite clear; ' constituent elements of the state ' — there are seven such elements (prakṛtis) according to Manu IX. 294 (the king, the ministers, the country, the treasury, the fortified capital, army and allies are the seven) and Kaut. (VI. 96 p. 257); ' whatever actions etc ' — compare Yāj. I. 361; expedients — of royal policy are four ; vide notes on v. 192 above and Manu VII. 107-109.

953. Vide notes above on v. 481 where the four kinds of danda,

(in the śāstra for a certain offender) that should be done in his case; if nothing is said (in the śātra) then he (the king) should well prescribe (the proper punishment).

954. He who succeeds in his cause by means of false evidence (document) or by a false seal, should be made to pay the highest amercement.

955. Those who are addicted to the pastimes (specially reserved) for kings, those who betake to the avocation of the king, those who are given to speaking what is distasteful (to the king) should be awarded corporal punishment.

956. Those who imitate the king in his appearance (dress &c.), those who become spectators (when they should be doing their duties), those who recover more taxes (than are due) and those who steal the king's wealth should be punished with various corporal punishments.

957. —Same as 486 above.

viz. vāk, dhik, dhana, and vadha are mentioned. Compare Br p. 387 vv. 4-8.

954. Vide Manu IX. 232, (who prescribes death for manufacturing a false royal edict), Yāj. II. 295 (who prescribes highest amercement for making unauthorised alterations in royal edicts). Śāṅkha—Likhita (कृतशासनप्रयोगे राजशासनप्रतिषेधे कृततुल्यमानप्रतिमानव्यवहारे शारीरोक्तच्छेदो वा' quoted in V. R. p. 369).

955. 'Pastimes etc.'—we have to understand 'without the permission of the king' here and in the next clause; 'betake to the avocation of the king' i.e. those who take upon themselves the function of protecting the people (without the king's permission); 'those who are given to &c.'—the punishment is prescribed for persistent indulgence in uttering what is distasteful to the king (viz. praising his enemies &c.). Compare Yāj. II. 302-303 for punishment for persistent utterance of what is distasteful and riding the king's own horse or sitting on his throne.

956. 'Spectators'—those who look on dancing &c. that is going on before the king neglecting their duties as servants of the king; 'those who recover'—The V. R. p. 369 explains that those who take fine in excess of those declared by the king are meant.

958. (The king) should ask the culprit when (caught) red-handed the reason why he committed the offence and then having carefully brought the guilt home to him, he (the king) should prescribe the punishment.

959. When an offence is committed by any one, who is well-conducted, through helplessness or ill-luck, in that case (the king) should not prescribe a punishment.

960. Kings who prescribe proper punishments are honoured even by gods; (the king) should award the first part of a fine for only beginning (an offence), the middle part for being in the midst of doing it; the (full) punishment prescribed (in the texts) for an offence is to be awarded when the whole offence is completed.

961. Kings and especially ministers would get this (hell) by not punishing sinners and by punishing those who bow (to the law).

962. Those who are dependent on another, and those who are reduced to slavery — these are said to be not their own masters. Beating is (the only) punishment in their case.

958. 'Sacihnam' — may also mean 'after branding on the forehead'. For various grave offences branding on the forehead was prescribed by Manu LX, 237 and 240.

959. 'Through helplessness or ill-luck' i.e. through fear or through mistake.

960. When a completed offence is constituted by several acts each of which is punishable, this verse prescribes a fourth part of the fine for the completed offence, if only the first of the several acts constituting the complete offence is perpetrated; half the punishment is prescribed when half of the acts constituting the full offence are committed.

961. Read 'enam' for 'evam', which latter makes no sense; 'bow to the law' i.e. who are on the right path and so do not deserve punishment. Compare Manu VIII, 128 (who speaks of hell for doing this).

962. 'Dependent on another' — such persons as wife, sons &c.; 'beating' — they are not to be fined, but only corporal punishment is to be inflicted on them.

963. Beating (whipping), imprisonment and making him a laughing stock — these are the punishments (proper) for a slave; monetary punishment is not prescribed (for him).

964. The man who deserves capital punishment should be made to pay one hundred suvarṇas (as fine in lieu of death sentence); one deserving of having a limb cut off (should be made to pay) half of that (i. e. 50 suvarṇas); one deserving banishment (should be made to pay) twenty-five (suvarṇas).

965. In the case of offenders who are of high family or are respectable or possessed of good qualities, but who are not well off, (the fine should follow) the above proportions; or having seized their all (when they are not well-off) the king should quickly banish these from the capital.

966. Those who have no wealth should be kept in jail; (the king) should not carry out the death sentence. In the case of all offenders, special procedure (as to punishment) should be observed in accordance with the (rules of s'āstras).

967. A brāhmaṇa who is guilty of an offence punishable with death or cutting off a limb should sit in a jail without having to do anything. He is (in that way) prevented from doing bad acts. That (keeping him in a jail without allowing

963. 'Making him &c.'— i.e. tonsuring his head or making him ride an ass.

964. For suvarṇa vide notes to v. 494; compare Br. p. 388. v. 12 for a very similar verse.

965. 'Should follow &c.'—that is if a hundred suvarṇas cannot be had, then a reduced fine may be awarded.

966. This seems to ordain that death sentence should be as rare as possible.

967. This refers to a brāhmaṇa offender who was well-conducted and devoted to his duties till then; he should be confined in a jail and should not be allowed to do his duties. If we read 'tadākarma'—the sense becomes easier; 'he is then not able to do his usual religious duties'. Compare Br. p. 388 vv. 10-11 (who forbids capital punishment for a brāhmaṇa and recommends shaving, him to do his religious duties) becomes the proper punishment for him.

968. (A brāhmaṇa) who gives false evidence should be banished, a brāhmaṇa who accepts a gift from a sinful person should be proclaimed (to all people), one who is guilty of cutting a limb of another should be deprived of the performance of his religious duties by being sent to jail.

969. In the case of those who are guilty of offences similar to these, similar punishments should be prescribed (by the king). In the case of minors, old men, diseased persons and women, there is no punishment but that of beating.

970. A king who follows the law should make (a woman offender) pay a fine out of her strīdhana ; but a woman guilty of an offence who has no wealth deserves beating as punishment.

branding and banishment, instead) Manu VIII. 379, Gautama 12. 43-44, Baud. Dh. S. I. 10. 17-18.

968. Manu. VIII. 123 and Yāj. II. 81 prescribe banishment for a false brāhmaṇa witness and monetary fine for false witnesses of other castes. Manu II. 185. enjoins upon a brāhmaṇa brahmacārī not to beg at the houses of grave sinners. Manu X. 76 says that ordinarily a brāhmaṇa was to accept gifts from a pure person, while X. 103 allows him to accept gifts from censurable people in times of adversity ; but X. 109 says that gifts from unworthy persons are worse than even teaching those who should not be taught or officiating as priest for those for whom it should not be done. Nārada p. 220 v. 40 enumerates people from whom gifts should not be accepted.

969. This verse has reference to offences similar to those mentioned in v. 781 above. Compare verse 487 for lesser punishments in the case of women. Gautama (2. 48), Manu (VII. 16 and VIII 126) and Yāj. I. 368 enjoin that time, place, ability, age, learning should be looked to in awarding punishment. Manu IX. 230 prescribes that these persons should be beaten with ropes &c.

971-97. What is unjustly acquired (by the king) should be consigned to the treasury; the treasury should be used for doing (meritorious) works; (otherwise) the king's undertakings will be destroyed; a wise (king) should not bring about destruction (of himself). All that wealth that arises from fines should be bestowed on (learned) brāhmaṇas and after transferring the kingdom to his son, the king should betake himself to the forest.

973. The king being always intent on observing the rules (of the śāstra) should act in this manner and should employ all his servants for the welfare of the people.

971-72. Verse 971 cannot be easily construed. It refers to fines wrongly imposed. Yāj. II. 307 says that the king should offer to Varuṇa (who is the king of kings) 30 times the fine wrongly imposed by him and should then distribute it among brāhmaṇas. Manu (IX. 244-45) asks the king to throw into rivers or to distribute among brāhmaṇas all fines imposed upon great sinners and not to put them in his treasury through greed. Manu VI. 1 ff speaks of the order of forest hermit (vānaprastha).
